FINANCE PLAN ACCORD FOUND BY CONFEREES

Final Enactment Is Due Today or Tomorrow in Congress.

AGENCY WILL BEGIN WORK NEXT WEEK

Treasury Experts Say Sales Tax Would Be Practical Revenue Producer.

(Associated Press).

Out of a two-day conference of House and Senate fiscal experts there emerged last night in definite and carefully considered form the mightiest peace-time financial institution ever reared.

Called the "Reconstruction Finance Corporation," this giant $2,000,000,000 Government credit agency is to pour its billions in loans into electric as well as steam railways, into exporting agencies, agriculture and a long list of financial institutions, including insolvent banks.

Whipped into a single voluminous bill of eighteen printed pages after hours of comparing the House and Senate versions, the mammoth undertaking is scheduled for final congressional enactment today or tomorrow with prospects that the corporation will begin early next week its work designed to lead the way to better times.

Differences Reconciled.

Differences between the House and Senate were reconciled at a brisk afternoon session which followed a hurried call at the conference room by Charles G. Dawes and Eugene Meyer, already named president and chairman of the board of the institution.

Getting ready to start the corporation functioning as soon as the bill has reached the President and received his signature, Gen. Dawes moved rapidly between White House and Capitol during the day, entering and leaving the former by the back door to avoid delays.

In the House a study of the closely related subject of taxes went forward before the ways and means committee, which has promised its program about February 1.

Sales Tax Report.

From experts sent by the Treasury Department to study the Canadian sales-tax system the committee members heard a report that it would be a practical revenue producer for this country.

Today another measure of the economic program—the Glass bill to revise the national banking act and close the doors of the Federal Reserve system to speculators—will be sent on its way to the Senate.

This measure by Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, was drafted after a year of study by a banking subcommittee, and its principal features have been included in the nonpartisan economic program urged by President Hoover.

Senator Glass intends to seek its consideration next on the Senate calendar of major business and has been promised the right of way in the banking committee. Among its important features is provision for aid to insolvent banks.

Included in Functions.

To speed this form of relief in the meantime, the finance corporation conferees included it among the manifold functions of that institution but with a limitation that not more than $200,000,000 should be used for relief of closed banks.

Senator Walcott (Republican), Connecticut, spokesman of the conferees and author of the Senate bill, described as "very important" the provision as revised which authorizes making loans secured by the assets of any bank that is closed or in process of liquidation upon application of the receiver or liquidating agent.

Senator Walcott explained that a part of the funds received by these banks on their good but slow assets is calculated to reach the depositors.

"At the present time," he observed, $1,800,000,000 is locked up in frozen deposits."

For direct loans to farmers for 1932 crop production, the bill sets aside $50,000,000 capital. Under a clause which permits the corporation to issue obligations amounting to three times

Naples Is Alarmed By Vesuvius Blasts

Quake Rocks Metropolis as Volcano Explosions Frighten Populace.

Naples, Italy (Thursday), Jan. 21 (A. P.).—Inhabitants of Naples were aroused from their beds late last night by a light earthquake and loud explosive noises from Mount Vesuvius, volcano of restless and disastrous history.

Rumbling sounds continued to come from the volcano depths periodically for two hours after the first explosion at 11:19 p. m. Then they ceased.

The fright of the people subsided and they returned to their beds, but they were still curious as to why the volcano's crater, which always has been illuminated at night by internal fires, had gone dark and remained that way. An observatory, military police barracks, a convent, a funicular railroad and a hotel situated on the volcano's side were so strongly shaken by the earthquake, that they "danced," said reports received here.

Merchant, 77, Killed And Aid Shot by Thief

Three Customers Look On as Storekeeper at Old Germantown, Near Rockville, Is Felled; Four Held, Three Hunted.

An aged cross-roads merchant was shot to death last night by a Negro robber at Old Germantown, Md., 14 miles west of Rockville, in Montgomery County. A money belt containing $55 to $60 was wrenched from the body of the merchant by the intruder, who also fired at an elderly clerk, inflicting a slight wound in the wrist.

A companion of the gunman stood in the doorway while the robbery took place. Three Negro customers, residents of the neighborhood, also witnessed the slaying.

The storekeeper was H. D. Waters, 77 years old, who had lived at Old Germantown most of his life. The clerk is R. A. Bennett, 67 years old, also of the same place.

Mr. Bennett said he was sitting in the front of the store about 7:30 o'clock last night while Mr. Waters was in the rear with three colored men.

A colored man, about 6 feet tall and of slender build, entered, the clerk related, and walked to the rear of the store. Mr. Bennett said he paid no particular attention to the man until he heard the sound of scuffling in the rear.

He looked up and saw Mr. Waters in the grasp of the robber, attempting to keep him from taking the money belt from around his waist. Mr. Bennett started towards the scene of the struggle.

When the colored man saw him coming, Mr. Bennett declared, he fired two shots point-blank at the store keeper. Mr. Waters fell to the floor with a bullet wound under his heart and another in his hip.

The robber started running from the store and fired once at Mr. Bennett as he fled, the bullet taking effect in his wrist.

Jesse Siever, 30, driver for a Rockville bakery, reached the store just after the man fled from the scene. He took in the situation and immediately phoned police at Rockville.

Police arrested the three colored men who had been in the store at the time of the shooting, and took them to Rockville for questioning. They were also seeking three strange colored men who came to Old Germantown yesterday morning in a sedan and made inquiries for another colored man.

A lookout was broacast to neighboring counties and to Washington police for an old touring car containing three negroes, who police believe formed the gang responsible for the slaying and robbery.

About a half an hour after the slay-

ANTI-HOOVER PACT CHARGES RENEWED

Brookhart Is Working With "Big Bill" Thompson in Scheme, Cole Says.

Citing reports of a secret political meeting in Chicago recently between Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, and former Mayor William Hale Thompson, Representative Cyrenus Cole renewed his charge yesterday that Brookhart and "Big Bill" are working together an Illinois-Iowa alliance to name anti-Hoover delegates to the Republican national convention next June.

"It is known that you stopped off in Chicago and tarried long enough to confer with the same man about the same manner covered in our former correspondence," the Iowa representative wrote.

In this conference it was agreed, Representative Cole charged, that Thompson would run for district delegate in the April presidential primaries, "and thus lead the anti-Hoover fight in that State."

The possibility of entering former Senator James W. Wadsworth, of New York, in the Illinois primaries also was discussed in the Chicago meeting, Cole's letter asserted.

The representative repeated his demand that Senator Brookhart make public the letter he wrote Thompson last October suggesting that Thompson take command of the anti-Hoover campaign in Illinois.

"I continue to believe that what a United States senator writes on such an important matter as the next Presidency of the United States is highly public matter," Representative Cole said in rejecting Brookhart's plea that the correspondence with Thompson was a "private affair."

The recent Chicago conference was

Smith Delegate Slate Seen in New Hampshire

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 20 (A.P.). The Manchester Leader says a complete slate of delegates to the national Democratic convention, pledged to a man to the candidacy of Alfred E. Smith, will be filed at the office of the secretary of state within a few days.

PORTO RICAN POST GOES TO BEVERLEY

Roosevelt's Young Successor Attorney General There for Seven Years.

(Associated Press.)

Slowly filling a list of major vacancies, President Hoover yesterday named the 37-year-old attorney general of Porto Rico, James R. Beverley, to be governor general of the island.

Comparatively young for so important a post, Beverley will succeed the only slightly older Theodore Roosevelt, whose strong indorsement he carries. Roosevelt, now in the Capital, will sail shortly to be governor general of the Philippines.

Despite the fact he has named four men to as many major posts since yesterday, the President tonight found his appointment problem far from solved. He is finding some difficulty in the selection of a man for the Supreme Court seat suddenly left vacant a week ago by Oliver Wendell Holmes. White House officials said yesterday an appointment for this high post was not in immediate prospect.

Within the next few hours seven suggestions of new names for the court were placed before the chief executive for his consideration. More than a score of others had already been laid before him.

Orie L. Phillips, 46-year-old Federal Circuit Judge of Albuquerque, N. Mex., continues to be mentioned often for this place should Mr. Hoover turn to that part of the Nation for his choice. Each section, however, apparently is championing one of its own.

New England speaks of Chief Justice Arthur Rugg, of Massachusetts; the Midwest of Federal Judge William S. Kenyon, of Iowa, and others; California of Federal Judge William James, of Los Angeles, and North Carolina of its chief justice, Walter Stacy.

Archbishop of Canterbury Wins Intercommunion Plea

Upper House of Clerical Assembly Takes Step Toward Establishing Great World Organization of Churches by Unanimous Resolution.

London, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The upper house of the convocation of Canterbury took what the archbishop described as an "historical step" today by adopting unanimously a resolution proposing intercommunion between the Church of England and the Old Catholic churches of Europe.

This designation is the name which was assumed by those members of the Roman Catholic Church who refused to accept the Vatican council decision of 1870 regarding papal infallibility, and organized a separate ecclesiastical structure.

The archbishop, in presenting the resolution for a vote, made it clear that he looked upon it as a first step in the establishment of a great world organization of churches, each maintaining its individual independence, but all united by a "definite unity of structure in faith and order."

The resolution originally was proposed by the Bishop of Gloucester and its adoption, said the archbishop, marks the first time in the history of the convocation that the Church of England has "formally and by resolution brought itself into a relation of communion with another church." He expressed the hope that with regard to Sweden "we can be able to carry matters further."

"We are setting up a new horizon for ourselves," he said. "We are looking forward to relations with other churches and I hope that there may gradually be built up the horizon which seemed to be opened out at Lambeth (scene of the regular decennial religious conference) of a great organism of churches throughout the world, each fulfilling its own function, yet united not by mere sentiment but by a definite unity of structure both in faith and order."

The resolution provides that communion between the Church of England and the old Catholic churches is permissible, but it stipulates that "this does not require from either communion acceptance of all doctrinal opinion, sacramental devotion

WOOD TO FORCE HOUSE VOTE ON U. S. PAY SLASH

Insists Hoover Does Not Oppose Cut, in Spite of Statement.

MILDER REDUCTION IS NEW OBJECTIVE

Says Passage of Bill Would Help to Balance Budget and End Slump.

By J. B. M'DONNELL.

Confronted by statements from the White House that President Hoover does not favor slashing Government salaries, Representative Will R. Wood (Republican), of Indiana, brushed these aside with the emphatic declaration:

"I know the President is not opposed to salary reductions."

From his knowledge of the President's attitude and his own convictions in the matter Representative Wood said he intended to force a vote on his salary slash proposal in the course of consideration of the Agriculture Department appropriation bill, now before the House, and he predicted his pay cut amendment to the measure would be approved by the House.

Proposes Milder Cut.

His latest proposal to cut salaries is milder than his earlier proposals. He would reduce by 5 per cent salaries of all persons receiving from $2,000 to $5,000 a year and reduce by 10 per cent the pay of those receiving more than $5,000 a year.

The Federal judiciary and the President would be exempted from these cuts, but members of Congress, personnel of the Army and the Navy, persons on the retired list, employes of the District Government, including Police and Fire Departments—in brief, "every single one getting $2,000 or more from the Treasury"—would be affected by the amendment he will offer, the gentleman from Indiana said.

Asked whether his plan conforms to the ideas of the President, Representative Wood refused to say, but indicated that it did not.

"I know he is not opposed to salary reductions," he said. "He and I may not agree on just how it should be done. I am not at liberty to say what he may have in mind. I quoted the President as far as I care to on the floor of the House yesterday."

Sees $45,000,000 Saving.

Mr. Wood estimated that his latest salary cut plan would affect about

$35,000 Fire Hits Newspaper Office

Kansas City Star Damaged and WDAF Also in Same Building.

Kansas City, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Fire originating in the library of the Kansas City Star did damage estimated by officials of the newspaper at $35,000 late today and for a time threatened the Southwest division headquarters of the Associated Press.

The flames, of undetermined origin, swept through a portion of the library and burned one of the broadcasting studios of WDAF, the Star's radio station, from which musicians had fled a few minutes earlier. The fire was confined to the third floor of the Star Building.

Although the control room of the broadcasting station was threatened, WDAF did not go off the air. A chain program was switched on while the building was burning.

Ensign Killed as Plane Strikes Warship's Mast

San Diego, Calif., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Ensign Malcolm Dulaney, 25, was killed tonight when the Navy amphibian plane he was piloting on a night flight struck the foremast of the destroyer Alden anchored in the bay here.

Ensign Dulaney had just taken off from the water near the naval air station on North Island and was gaining altitude when the crash occurred. The young officer's body was taken from the wrecked plane a few moments later.

PEACE DEPENDS ON CHINA, DIET TOLD AT TOKYO

Japan's Foreign Minister Says Change of Heart Is Required.

SPEAKS HOPEFULLY OF ARMS CONFERENCE

Will Uphold All Treaties Relating to Area in Far East, He Avers.

Tokyo, Thursday, Jan. 21 (A.P.). Manchuria holds the key to peace in the Far East, Foreign Minister Kenkichi Yoshizawa declared today at the opening session of the Imperial Diet after the New Year recess.

In his first public pronouncement since he was installed formally in the foreign office, M. Yoshizawa dwelt at length on Manchuria as the most outstanding diplomatic question confronting the government.

He emphasized that both the United States and the League of Nations now have a much better understanding of Japan's case, thanks to the government's clarifying reiteration that Tokyo has no territorial aims in the province and is standing for the policy of the open door.

"Our neighbor China always stands both economically and politically in intimate relationship with this country," he continued. "Regarding Manchuria, particularly through historical and geographical reasons, political considerations must become of preponderant interest.

Manchuria of Great Moment.

"It is, of course, beyond argument that the welfare of Manchuria is of the greatest consequence to Japan. There are more than a million Japanese subjects there and we possess, in connection with the leased territories, railways, mines, and numerous vital interests secured either by treaty or by contract.

"In recent years the Chinese authorities, ignoring the historical fact that the present development of Manchuria is entirely due to Japanese efforts, and taking advantage of our complaisance, have pursued a policy of oppression toward the Japanese and repeatedly have set at naught their treaty rights. The protests and warnings of the Japanese government were of little avail.

"Thus the situation became more and more disquieting and the menace to our position increasingly grave. The Japanese patience was tried to the breaking point when the bombing incident of September 18 came suddenly. (The reference was to the

Cooper's Son Dies In Auto Accident

Ohio Representative Gets Notice of Death as He Speaks in House.

A telegram delivered to Representative John G. Cooper, of Ohio, as he was making a speech on the floor of the House yesterday afternoon, brought news of the death of his oldest son, John Lawrence Cooper, 32 years old, of Warsaw, Ind.

The telegram stated that Representative Cooper's son was instantly killed when the automobile in which he was riding with his wife, Mrs. Helen Cooper, overturned about 12 miles from Warsaw. Mrs. Cooper escaped with only slight injuries.

Representative Cooper left immediately by automobile for his home in Youngstown, Ohio. He wired his daughter-in-law to have the body sent to Youngstown for burial. John Cooper was the oldest of five children, and had been married only a short time.

Virginia to Give Hoover 1932 Vote, Slemp Says

(Associated Press.)

C. Bascom Slemp, Republican national committeeman from Virginia, predicted yesterday that the Old Dominion "will go for Hoover in 1932."

"Both political parties," he said in support of this theory, "have indorsed President Hoover's economic program, and in addition there is a Virginian in the Cabinet and Hoover has a summer home in the State."

Foreign Diplomats Here Act To Clear Selves in Loan Row

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Foreign diplomats here acted promptly yesterday to clear themselves of any implication of irregularities in the negotiations between their governments and American bankers in the flotation of governmental loans in the United States.

Chilean Ambassador Don Miguel Chuchaga Tocornal, who acted for the Chilean government in the signing of four loans during his previous term of oce here as ambassador, transmitted to his government the request of the Senate finance committee for information regarding the creation of the Cosach, the enormous $300,000,000 nitrate monopoly owned jointly by the Chilean government and the Guggenheim interests. This has been transmitted to the ambassador by the State Department.

At the same time, Dantes Bellegarde, the Minister from Haiti, requested the State Department to forward to the Senate finance committee a request that the committee pursue its investigations regarding loans made to the Haitian government by American bankers. The margin or "pread" between what the Haitian government paid the American bankers and what the bankers who unloaded the bonds

EUROPEAN PARLEY ON DEBT PUT OFF BY GREAT BRITAIN; SESSION MAY NOT BE HELD

Disarmament Ship Departs With America's Godspeed

Dr. Mary Woolley Called Delegation's "Queen Mary" as Band Fanfares and Salutes Bid Good-By to Group Bound for Geneva.

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Amid fanfare and bands, flutter of flags, salutes of a seaplane and hopeful good-bys of Disarmament Conference delegates, broadcast to the Nation by radio, the liner President Harding steamed out from port today on its mission of world peace.

Dr. Mary E. Woolley, only woman among the 40 members of the American delegation to the Geneva conference, which will convene February 2, was the center of excited last-minute admonitions, while crowds milled up and down the gangplanks.

Erect and with scarcely a shadow of gray in the hair peeping from beneath her hat, the 68-year-old college president voiced her hope of "good will and understanding among men" before the microphone on shipboard. She was introduced as "Queen Mary."

Senator Claude A. Swanson, Virginia Democrat, arrived on board with Mrs. Swanson too late to participate in the radio program. Secretary of State Stimson, named yesterday by President Hoover to replace Gen. Charles G. Dawes as head of the delegation, will go later, having been unable to prepare for the trip on such short notice.

Senator Swanson said he was "hopeful" of the outcome of deliberations at Geneva, but would not go so far as to describe himself "optimistic."

"I still have faith in the wisdom and good sense of the world," he said. Then he paused, and added: "If not, Lord knows what will happen."

For three hours before the sailing, the liner was a colorful scene of shifting groups of the delegates, an unofficial party of twenty other delegates, farewell committees, passengers and friends.

When the last visitor was shooed off the gangways, and the liner pulled slowly away from its pier, a seaplane piloted by Ruth Nichols circled it and dipped in salute.

The aviatrix was commissioned to deliver flowers and messages to Dr. Woolley after the vessel reached quar-

DEALERS HERE JOIN FIGHT ON MOTOR TAX

Irate Automotive Men Plan Vigorous Action Against Proposed Levies.

Washington motor car dealers and others in the automotive trade last night jumped into the thick of the fight being led by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce against the proposed special excise tax on motor cars, parts and accessories.

In that it ranks as the third most important business in the National Capital, any additional restriction upon the automotive trade at this time constitutes a serious menace to the incomes of thousands of Washington residents, it was emphasized in the statement of the Washington Automotive Trade Association.

Voicing stern opposition to the proposed tax, the trade body declared that the only difference in its effect, nationally and locally, was one of degree and it warned that the imposition of a further burden upon motorists of the National Capital could serve only "to put the brakes upon returning prosperity."

Of a total volume of retail trade amounting to $331,000,000 annually, 15 per cent, or approximately $50,000,-

Hoover and Roosevelt Pledges Seen in Maine

Portland, Me., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Delegations favorable to President Hoover and to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, will be sent by Maine to the Republican and Democratic national conventions at Chicago in June, if forecasts made today by the national committeemen from Maine hold good during the next five months.

In the presidential election Daniel J. McGillicuddy, of Lewiston, Democratic national committeeman, sees "a fair chance to carry the State," while Joseph W. Simpson, of New York Harbor, Republican committeeman, looks "for the usual party majority."

FORTESCUE COUNSEL ASKS FOR DISMISSAL

Deputy Attorney Declares Grand Jurors Will Get Murder Case Today.

Honolulu, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—A legal move to free Mrs. Granville Fortescue and three Navy men of a Police Court complaint charging them with the murder of Joseph Kahahawai, was made here today while the Territorial Legislature advanced its program to clean up Hawaii.

Invoking constitutional grounds, Defense Attorney Montgomery Winn filed a motion in Circuit Court asking dismissal of the murder complaint against Mrs. Fortescue, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones.

Winn charged that the right of the four to a speedy trial had been prejudiced and that City and County Attorney James F. Gilliland was delaying presentation of the case to the grand jury while attempting to obtain a special prosecution.

Griffith Wight, deputy city and county attorney, announced, however, that the murder case would be presented to the grand jury tomorrow afternoon.

Gilliland's office has been under fire as the result of investigations and reform movements growing out of the recent trouble climaxed by the abduction and slaying of Kahahawai, alleged attacker of Mrs. Massie. He has been seeking an outside attorney to prosecute the murder case on the ground that it would embarrass his administration to conduct the matter.

Under proposed legislation, Gilliland would be relieved of prosecuting criminal cases, which would be assigned to an assistant to the territorial attorney general.

Gov. Lawrence M. Judd's law enforcement program advanced in both houses of the Legislature.

The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill to reorganize Honolulu's roundly criticized police department. The Senate passed the bill on first reading and expected finally to enact it Friday.

The governor also submitted to the Legislature a proposal to eliminate

Education Board Approves Washington Essay Contest

Unanimous Action Taken Favoring Post's Competition; Plaques Announced as Additional Prizes to Be Given Classrooms of Winners in Test.

Unanimous approval of The Post Washington Essay Contest, which is open to school children up to 18 years of age, was given yesterday by the District Board of Education at a meeting at the Franklin School Building.

The board members expressed their favor of the contest after the committee on student activities of the board submitted a report recommending such action. The report was submitted by Dr. I. R. A. Bennett, chairman of the student activities committee. All members of the board were present at the meeting.

Eight bronze bas reliefs of the Houdon Head of George Washington will be awarded to the classrooms from which come the eight winners of first and second prizes in The Post Washington Essay Contest in which $1,000 in cash prizes will be distributed.

This announcement yesterday was made after a consultation between the officials of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission and The Post Essay editor. The commission through a special arrangement will furnish the bronze bas reliefs, each mounted on an attractive mahogany wood panel suitable for hanging in the classrooms.

Best of all, on each plaque The Washington Post will place a plate telling that the plaque was won for the classroom through the good work of one of the students therein.

The award of these plaques furnishes still another incentive for good work in preparing the essays. Not only will the successful contestants be able to win this distinction for themselves but through the award of these plaques they will honor the schools and grades from which they come, as well.

Other good things are in store for the prize winners and those who can claim honorable mention, as well. The Washington Post, the leading morning newspaper of the National Capital, is determined to see that this London's Action Is Climax to Failing Negotiations.

REICH'S STAND AFFECTS MOVE

Uncertainty of Political Situation in France Also Is Factor.

London, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The British government, bowing to the inevitable, announced tonight in a foreign office statement it was "evident" the Lausanne reparations conference could not begin next Monday, as originally had been planned.

The announcement raised doubts among responsible commentators about whether the conference would be held at all, and on this point the official statement was extremely guarded.

"The conversations which have been taking place between the governments chiefly concerned with the conference at Lausanne are not yet concluded and it is evident that the conference can not be begun as early as next Monday, the date which had been provisionally arranged," the statement said.

"Further conversations are now in progress and the British government entertain the hope it may be possible to come to a satisfactory agreement as to the procedure to be adopted in the course of a few days."

Move Not Unexpected.

The announcement, which came at an unusually late hour, by no means was unexpected in the best informed quarters here.

Earlier in the day those in touch with political developments noted the prevalence of a strong feeling that postponement was inevitable in view of the French political situation. Not until tomorrow will Premier Laval know whether his new government has the confidence of the chamber, and it was felt there scarcely was time for the conference arrangements to be completed between then and the beginning of next week.

Apart from this, there has been no disposition lately in official quarters here to attempt to persuade anybody that preliminary arrangements for the conference were going smoothly.

Chancellor Heinrich Bruening's recent declaration of Germany's inability to pay reparations was only one of the unexpected factors the would-be negotiators would have had to take into consideration.

Important voices have been raised in France, and in Italy Premier Mussolini himself—or some one writing under his direct inspiration—made a declaration of faith scarcely less drastic than D. R. Bruening's own.

Described as Muddle.

With all these disturbing factors affecting the conference even before it had commenced, responsible commentators here have despairingly described the whole situation as an unpecedented muddle and confusion.

An appeal for cancellation of reparations and war debts signed by sixteen bishops of the Church of England and a number of other prominent clericals was issued tonight.

The signatories assert they desire "to make an earnest appeal to all

Third Tremor in 2 Days Felt in Lima 58 Treated for Shock and Heart Attacks and One Is Reported Killed.

Lima, Peru, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Inhabitants of Lima, severely shaken last night by an earthquake, felt a lighter tremor tonight, the third in two days. The shock tonight came at 6:15.

The newspaper, El Commercio, reported that one person was killed in the crumbling of a house at Huacho in last night's quake, which rolled the ground as if in waves. Only two were reported seriously injured here, although 58 persons received treatment at first aid stations for heart attacks and nervous shocks.

Buildings were cracked and windows broken by the underground disturbance, which was felt strongly at Huaraz, Pisco, Canete, Ica and other nearby towns.

100,000 MEET TODAY TO FIGHT GANDHI ARREST

Will Asesmble Illegally to Protest Britain's Drastic Steps.

TWO COLLEGE GIRLS TRIED FOR SLAYING

Statistics Reveal Japan Is Replacing England in Exports to India.

Bombay, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—A hundred thousand persons are expected to assemble illegally tomorrow to voice their protests at the arrest of Mahatma Gandhi and Great Britain's stifling of the civil disobedience movement.

The merchants' organization, representing markets and exchanges that have been closed for sixteen days in sympathy with the Nationalist congress, called a mass meeting which—if held—will violate the repressive ordinances forbidding gatherings of more than five persons.

The effect the boycott against British goods is having on commerce was revealed in statistics from authoritative sources. Japan is rapidly displacing England in exporting cloth to this country, having shipped nearly 15,000,000 yards in one month, as compared with less than 3,000,000 yards by her rival.

College Girls On Trial.

Two 16-year-old college girls went on trial at a special tribunal in Calcutta today in the slaying of Magistrate C. G. B. Stevens, a crime which grew out of India's struggle for self-government.

Both girls, attractive students at Bengal University, pleaded innocence and said their confession of shooting the magistrate on December 14 had been extorted by threats.

One of the defendants, Sunnity Chowdury, appeared to be weakening in her attitude, however, and answered the court's questions in a choked voice. The other, Santi Ghose, maintained her composure and laughed at intervals.

Gaily Dressed in Scarfs.

They appeared in court gaily dressed in dainty red sarees (scarfs) and with flowers behind their ears in the traditional style of Hindu girlhood. They seemed to be oblivious of their serious position and chatted gaily as they sat barefooted in the dock.

They resorted to fasting yesterday as a protest against the quality of food supplied them in prison, but would not submit a written petition to the court. They objected to standing during the trial, saying "we demand chairs, otherwise we shall not take part in the proceedings."

They were given chairs.

News of further violence came from two points. A British police sergeant was stabbed in the head in Dacca by an unidentified man, who stole his revolver and fled. Two suspects were seized. When a crowd attempted to rescue several prisoners in Gorakhapur police fired two rounds of buckshot into their midst, but wounded no one.

Former Mayor Jailed.

Sen Gupta, former mayor of Calcutta, and a prominent nationalist, joined Gandhi in prison at Poona after being arrested as he stepped off an Italian ship. A specific charge was not lodged against him, but it was taken for granted he was being jailed because of his membership in the Congress.

The Rev. H. V. H. Elwin, a young English missionary, accused British authorities in the northwest frontier provinces of oppression, cruelty and "things that ought to make an Englishman ashamed." He was arrested and deported from that area, he said, after he sought an interview with the deputy provincial commissioner.

"For their Nationalist activities," he charged, "whole villages are raided by columns of troops in the dead of night. The dwellers are beaten and stripped of their clothing, which is burned. The local Nationalist headquarters are then burned to the ground."

Blames Special Police.

He paid tribute to the regular British police forces and blamed special police and soldiers for the alleged outrages. He characterized the British administration as "unimaginative, crude, totally out of touch with the spirit of the times, and therefore dangerously incompetent."

The Indian Daily Mail, a supporter of the Congress, said the government was on the wrong track in trying to crush the campaign by representative ordinances.

"You can stop a clock or smash the dial to pieces," the paper said, "but time will go on. You can not extinguish the sun by branding eyes. Although the Congress is ceremoniously wiped out, the trouble is still there. The present chaos has been created by sheer lack of imagination and sympathy. Those who don't support the cause of peace and reason during this crisis are but blind promoters of anarchy."

Auto Sales Tax Plan Held Threat to Young Romance

By JOHN J. DALY

EVERY man who owns a car, or who hopes ever to own a car—whether it be a big car or a small car, an old car or a new—will rejoice over the action of the car manufacturers in assaulting the Mellon sales tax plan.

Leaders of the auto industry, the largest in the United States—the largest leaders and the largest industry—contend that a tax on autos will slow down the selling of cars.

On the face of it, this seems like a selfish argument; but the manufacturers have an altruistic motive back of their gesture. They claim, and rightly so, that a tax increase of $25 a car is more than the average budget can stand.

In framing the manufacturer's sales tax, Uncle Sam and his able Secretary of the Treasury forgot that, in the long run, the tax is passed down the line to the ultimate consumer. It is the old American art of passing the buck, the most popular pastime of the Nation.

So the manufacturers of cars prepare to battle for a supreme right of the consumer, hoping he has enough left to buy a car.

The poor old ultimate consumer! He gets it going and coming. If he buys a car he must be prepared to pay not only the manufactur's sale tax but also those innumerable and additional taxes that creep up along the line of the car's progress—from the show window to the junk pile. As he sallies forth into the countryside, on a sunny Sunday afternoon, his family gathered round him, the good wife begins to tax him with instructions from the back seat.

* * * *

THEN, he is taxed along the highways and the byways for the gasoline he purchases. There is a tax on his patience as the children start opening and closing the doors and windows, honking the horn and monkeying with the steering gear. When they arrive at a hot dog stand, for lunch, the chief of the ultimate consumers gets taxed for the mustard on the dogs. If he lets his car remain too long near the curbing, some benevolent sheriff taxes him $2 for overtime parking.

Life to the motor car owner is just one tax after another. When the time comes to pay the repair bills on a new car turned old, as come it will, he is taxed for the inefficiency of garage mechanics who specialize on taking engines apart and putting them back again minus most of the mechanism.

Nor is the married man the only one who bears the brunt of the tax burden. The young gallant, riding forth in his iron steed to court his light o' love, is handed the same taxes, with many more on the side. He gets taxed even for the very delicate appetite of the young lady, the tip to the waiter often proving the old theory that two can live cheaper than one. This leads to housekeeping and a score of other taxes, real estate and personal.

* * * *

OF course, if the gentle pastime of heaping taxes on the shoulders of the ultimate consumer continues on apace, the young Beau Brummel, sallying forth on love's sacred mission, may have to change his tune, singing:

In the evening I'll be calling for you dearie,
My dearie, so bright and cheery,
How I hope you long for my arriving
    In storm, dear, or shine.
    Sue, Sue, I do love you
    As in the days of auld lang syne.
But I blush to have to tell you that I'm driving
    That old car of mine.

Certainly, the sales tax would slow up the selling of cars. Also, it would break up love matches. Where, oh, where is the young girl of the machine age who would a-riding go with a swain in an old, broken-down, battered car when she might just as well step on the gas in one of the new models?

This, while it has its romantic side, is really a defense of the poor. It is claimed, by the manufacturers, that more cars are sold in this country each year to the poor than to the rich—which is probably why the rich are so rich and the poor so poor.

FOREIGN DIPLOMATS HERE ACT TO CLEAN SELVES IN LOAN ROW

got from American investors was informally characterized by the minister yesterday as grossly excessive." He said:

"On a loan of almost $2,000,000, the National City Co. told the Senate committee its profit was more than $250,000. The Haitian government has contracted obligations amounting to $23,000,000, and at the same rate of profit the bankers' share would be more than $2,000,000 for these same loans."

The Brazilian Ambassador was also a caller at the State Department yesterday, and despite the fact that the Brazilian issues in default, municipal and governmental, amount to $469,136,615, he announced he had not come with regard to the Senate committee's revelations.

The Chilean Ambassador transmitted to his government the complete text of Senator Johnson's letter without comment except to request of his minister of foreign affairs a reply as speedily as possible in view of the comparatively restricted session of the committee. It was subsequently announced that the committee would not meet again until next Monday, when it is expected that the reply from the government at Santiago will have been received.

The duel between Secretary of State Stimson and Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, the author of the resolution which started the revelations regarding American financing methods in Europe and Latin America, was still a draw, as statements were from both the Secretary and Senator Johnson with regard to the stand they had both maintained.

Secretary Stimson resolutely refused to furnish the committee the telegram which was demanded in Senator Couzen's resolution yesterday. The Secretary's statement was in the form of the text of the letter he had dispatched to the finance committee's chairman, Senator Reed Smoot. The Secretary's letter was as follows:

"Dear Senator Smoot: I have received the request of the Senate finance committee for a telegram of June 19, 1931. Mr. White's testimony stated correctly the substance of the telegram as to the Barco concession. The telegram is available for examination in executive session to your committee if the desire is to check the accuracy of Mr. White's testimony. It would not be in the interest of the United States and its foreign relations to publish the telegram itself.

(Signed) "HENRY L. STIMSON."

From the Capitol the Johnson communique was issued shortly after the Secretary of State's refusal to disclose confidential diplomatic documents for public comment.

The senator from California characterized the situation as "absurd and ridiculous." The senator had elicited from Assistant Secretary of State in Charge of Latin Affairs Francis White the fact that the contents of the telegram which he was requesting had been read almost in entirety to some bankers in Wall street. Secretary Stimson assured the committee during his presence before it that the contents of the telegram would be made available under the usual restrictions of executive session, but this was indignantly waved aside by Senator Johnson.

The Johnson statement also said:

"But that's that. We are still investigating foreign loans and the activities of international bankers in foisting them upon our public. We do not intend to turn aside any collateral issue. We expect to continue in the hope that some remedy might be found, and that never again may those who deal for their own enrichment in foreign securities impoverish the American people."

HOOVER NOT OPPOSED TO SLASH IN FEDERAL PAY, WOOD INSISTS

one-third of the 700,000 persons in the Government service and would result in a saving of betwen $45,000,000 and $50,000,000 in the annual budget.

The Indiana statesman, whose utterances are given additional weight because as chairman of the congressional Republican campaign committee it is a part of his job to keep in touch with widespread sentiment, warned the Government workers to accept the "moderate" cut in pay he proposed or they would find themselves later compelled to accept drastic cuts imposed by the aroused will of an angrily burdened Nation.

Representative Wood made it clear that his antipathy to high wages was not limited to those in the Government service, but declared that there must be general wage cuts throughout the country in all branches of business and industry. He cited the recent action by Sears & Roebuck in cutting the pay of the employes of the firm as supporting his stand.

Held Way to End Slump.

"It is inconceivable to my mind that wages shall be kept up," he said, speaking of both the Government and the business life of the Nation. "Commodity prices are down to about their prewar levels but they are talking about keeping up wages. The effort to keep up wages has been one of the worst things in the country. If they cut wages it will help business and help to get us out of the depression. We got into the depression through an orgy of squandering and they tell us the way to get out is to keep on. Why, we've been on a squandering drunk and we are finding it hard to sober up."

Replying to a suggestion that cuts in Government salaries might embarrass workers who counted on their steady income to buy homes and furniture and necessaries on the installment plan, Representative Wood said:

"Let them stay away from the movies a little and make up their loss."

"It might take a considerable time to make up out of movie expenditures the amount of a monthly installment on a home, mightn't it?" he was asked.

"Well, let them stay away entirely."

Claims Pay Is Higher.

"Wouldn't that be a calamity," Mr. Wood jeered.

In his discussions anent the proposal to cut Government pay, Mr. Wood constantly referred to Government workers as "these clerks" and said that the recent decline in commodity prices had resulted in an actual increase in pay for them.

"The only thing that hasn't been reduced in price in this town," he said, "is rents. Why, eggs are down to 16 cents a dozen. I saw that price on a sign on a little store on my way home the other night."

"Did you buy any?" he was asked.

"No, I didn't. But I saw an advertisement by Sears & Roebuck the other day offering canned goods for 5 cents which you couldn't get a while back for 20 cents a can."

Mr. Wood declared that he would appear before the rules committee today or tomorrow seeking a special rule which would make his proposed salary-cut amendment germane to the agriculture bill. If this general rule is refused, as it probably will be, he said he intended to offer an amendment which would apply solely to that bill and the same fight would be made on each subsequent appropriation bill.

REFERENDUM VOTE SENATE AIM TODAY

Asked by Bingham Following Testimony in Favor of Beer Measure.

(Associated Press.)

A Senate vote will be asked today on a resolution proposing that State governors ask for referenda on repeal or modification of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead law

The resolution was introduced yesterday by Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, after advocates of his bill to permit the manufacture and sale of 4 per cent beer had completed testimony before a Senate manufactures subcommittee.

The measure would have the Senate go on record as welcoming "any action that the governors of the several States might take in recommending to their respective legislatures that such action be taken by the State as may be necessary to obtain the opinion of the people of the State with respect to (1) the repeal or modification of the eighteenth amendment, and (2) the repeal or modification of the national prohibition act (commonly known as the Volstead act)."

At the hearing, Matthew Woll, a vice president of the American Federation of Labor, said:

"If the church leaders continue to engage in politics on this question, as they are doing, let them take the dirt that goes with it; labor will meet them on that ground."

Woll was among the last witnesses to testify in favor of the bill. Opponents will begin their arguments next week. Those testifying for the bill yesterday included former Senator Gould, of Maine. He said his State was undergoing a "marked change" in sentiment and would vote for State control if given the opportunity.

Senator Barbour (Republican) New Jersey, said the bill [illegible] toward the return to reason and common sense."

Dr. Martin Dewey, of New York president of the American Dental Association, said light wines and beer would aid the general health of the public.

Antisaloon Head Lauded By Wet for Urging Vote

(Associated Press.)

Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, yesterday made public a letter to Bishop Ernest G. Richardson, the newly elected president of the Antisaloon League, saying in part:

"Very respectfully I say to you that at last we are getting together, and it is high time.

"Your plea for a referendum by States to decide the question of retention or repeal of the eighteenth amendment is such an honest recognition of our Nation's need that I must send you this word of congratulation, just as sincerely and gratefully as I can.

"You have put your finger on the very point. Of course, the idea of a single Nation-wide referendum betrays ignorance of our Constitution. The only constitutional way to do it is by States, just as you say, and the sooner we do it and get this thing settled the better for us all.

"The Beck and Linthicum resolutions provide for just such a constitutional referendum.

"You are the new president of the Antisaloon League. Will you join with me in marshalling the strength of our two associations in favor of these resolutions?"

from the present law a provision barring juries from convicting men of criminal attacks on the uncorroborated testimony of a woman.

The Senate, after pausing to hear some of the members sharply criticize the Kentucky Legislature and Representative Curry, of California, for allegedly unwarranted activities against Hawaii, passed on first reading a House bill prohibiting loitering on streets and sidewalks. This was designed to give the police power to break up gangs.

Bar Meeting Called.

The Hawaii Bar Association called a meeting to decide whether an inquiry should be made into circumstances under which Gilliland gave Joseph Kahahawai, sr., father of the slain youth, a check for $55.

Gilliland said the check was given January 11, the day after young Kahahawai's funeral, when the father came to his office to identify clothing held in evidence.

The prosecutor said the elder Kahahawai wept and appealed for funds with which to feed his family.

"I felt," said Gilliland, "that under the circumstances, by responding to the appeal, I might win the father's confidence to the extent that he would give me information I could not get in any other way and which would be valuable in the Massie assault retrial.

Furnished Information.

"The elder Kahahawai promised and already has furnished information which may be valuable. The fact that I gave a check and not cash should evidence itself that my intentions were proper."

The father cashed the check at a newspaper office when he paid for the funeral notice. This, Gilliland said, gave rise to the report that he (Gilliland) paid the funeral expenses. Gilliland said he had no thought of paying for the funeral. He said all the facts had been placed before Gov. Judd and that he would welcome an inquiry.

(Associated Press.)

Legislation to give the Governor of Hawaii power to appoint and remove prosecutors was introduced yesterday by Chairman Bingham, of the Senate Territories committee, as new demands were voiced in the Senate for a "clean up" of the Island. Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York, demanded the "cleaning up" of conditions in Hawaii.

Seth W. Richardson, Assistant United States Attorney General, left his home at 101 Raymond street, Chevy Chase, Md., yesterday afternoon, en route to Honolulu to take command of the investigation into law enforcement in the Hawaiian Islands.

He was accompanied by his wife and Charles E. Stewart, administrative assistant in the Department of Justice. A stopover will be made at Fargo, N. Dak., Mr. Richardson's home, and he will sail from San Francisco on January 29.

Seaman Ignores Order On Beard to Win Girl

(Associated Press.)

Somewhere on the high seas is an American "gob" growing a beard despite his commander's orders that he shave it off.

Torn between obedience to these orders and those of the parents of his fiancee who say he must grow a beard before he can marry their daughter, the man has written Senator Smoot asking assistance.

He couldn't see why he should not grow a beard "when most of the admirals have them."

"Besides," he added, "Mine is kept up with the rules which say they must be trimmed up nice."

And anyway, he concluded, "I'm not going to shave."

BLOC RENEWS FIGHT ON TARIFF INCREASE

Senate Recalls Order Voted Tuesday on Probe Into Foreign Costs.

(Associated Press.)

Senate Democrats and Republican Independents renewed an old tariff alliance yesterday to defeat a move they feared would lead to higher duties.

By a 43 to 32 vote, they recalled an order adopted Tuesday directing the Tariff Commission to inquire into the results on American trade of lower production costs in foreign countries under their debased currency standards.

Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, ranking Democrat on the finance committee, moved for the recall of the resolution sponsored by Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania. It had been adopted Tuesday without discussion.

Yesterday's sharp debate brought a declaration from Reed that he certainly would favor action for an increase in the tariff "if I found that any country had captured the American market from American workmen by debasing her currency."

Warning From Borah.

This brought from Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, a warning that "we are riding to certain disaster" if it is proposed to meet the foreign situation in that manner.

The Democrats complained that the Reed resolution was asking the Tariff Commission for an opinion of policy. Earlier in the day they had won an agreement to have the new tariff legislation approved by the Democratic House taken up tomorrow by the Senate finance committee.

Harrison's motion was supported by a part of the old coalition which fought the 1930 Smoot-Hawley act. It was referred to the finance committee.

Reed later said he would move to discharge the finance committee if it did not act within a week. He also disclosed that the Tariff Commission was already at work on the job of determining the effects of the new standards of currencies in foreign countries.

Passage Is Predicted.

Senator Harrison confidently predicted during the tariff exchange that the Democratic bill reorganizing the Tariff Commission and providing for rate changes only upon consent of Congress would be passed by the Senate shortly.

Reed referred particularly to the British trade in arguing that "certainly there is no harm in our getting the facts."

"Everyone knows that the tariff established in the days when currency was at par is not adequate to meet the situation resulting from the depreciated currency," he said. "Great Britain has gained a 25 per cent advantage over us by going off the gold standard."

It is entirely possible the administration may act on its own initiative to establish higher emergency tariff. Upon recommendation of the commission, the President may raise or lower rates as much as 50 per cent.

Speaking Tour Opened By 'Pussyfoot' Johnson

(Associated Press.)

William E. "Pussyfoot" Johnson, representative of the World League Against Alcoholism, began a speaking tour of the Valley, South Side and Eastern Shore sections of Virginia at Front Royal last night.

The tour was arranged by the Rev. Ed J. Richardson, Virginia superintendent of the Antisaloon League.

PIPE STILL IS HELD ILSLEY DEATH CLEW

It Will Be Examined Here; All Concerned Freed in Funeral Fight.

Although criminal investigation "experts" declared that Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley and her servant were killed with a sharp instrument, presumably a hatchet, the District chemist will examine a blood stained iron pipe found in Fairfax County yesterday in an attempt to link it with the crime, Inspector Frank S. W. Burke said last night.

The pipe was found under the Lee highway bridge over Bull Run by State road workers. At the time of the crime Washington detectives insisted that the two women were struck with a hatchet and said that a bloodstained iron bootjack, found in the cottage, was not sharp enough to have caused the wounds.

The pipe is 1¼ inches in diameter and 4 feet in length. The bridge is on the road to Washington from Middleburg, over which George Crawford, the suspected murderer, is presumed to have fled.

Montgomery Hunts Suspect.

Montgomery County police yesterday were making a search for the short, squat colored man observed by several residents in Anderson's Woods, near Derwood, Md., whose description tallies with that of Crawford, former convict.

The man first was seen by two hunters, one of whom, Charles Higgins, of Westmore, Md., picked up an overcoat said to resemble that worn by Crawford when he was seen shortly before the murders. Higgins was accompanied by Lawrence Cissel, of Durwood.

The man jumped up from his sleeping place beside a log and ran when he saw the hunters approaching, they said. They gave chase, but lost him when he again dived into the woods.

A farmer, Oscar Dilleyhoy, yesterday reported that he had seen the same furtive-appearing man run into Anderson's Woods from the Frederick road.

Special to The Washington Post.

Middleburg, Va., Jan. 20.—All parties concerned were exonerated here today by three justices of the peace in connection with a disturbance at the funeral of Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley last Friday.

The three magistrates, John L. Kincaid, Roy Seaton and Fred Stadler, after deliberating for about fifteen minutes, first freed State Policeman Thomas F. Stafford on charges of assaulting Joe B. Roberts, Washington Herald photographer, and in turn cleared Roberts of charges of disturbing worship and resisting arrest, preferred against him by the policeman.

Stafford admitted that he struck Roberts, but insisted that he only used the force necessary to make him "move along." The defense introduced as witnesses several persons prominent in the affairs of Middleburg.

Bond in Newell Case Is Raised to $5,000

On motion of Assistant United States Attorney Milford Schwartz, Gilbert Ward Lewis, alleged assailant of Temple Newell, 27-year-old telephone repairman, in an argument on Twentieth street northeast, Judge Gus A. Schuldt yesterday raised the bond demanded for Lewis' freedom from $2,000 to $5,000.

Newell is in a serious condition at the Sibley Hospital, suffering from a bullet wound in his stomach. He was shot by Lewis who, it is charged, continuing a quarrel, approached Newell and Miss Elizabeth Thorn, of 3210 Twentieth street northeast, and fired at Newell.

Hoover Poses for Artist While Talking to Dawes

Automotive World Leaders Gather Here to Battle Tax

Alfred Reeves Declares Effort Is Being Made to Force Owners of Motor Cars to Bear Burden of National Assessment.

An effort is being made to make the average American, whose automobile represents an average investment of $211, the chief bearer of the Nation's tax burden, declared Alfred Reeves, vice president and general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, upon his arrival in Washington last night to assist in the fight against the proposed special Federal exise tax upon motor vehicles.

Answering the contention of proponents of the plan that automobiles are in the luxury or semiluxury class, Mr. Reeves asserted that not only have they become an actual necessity to most owners and that a reasonably good horse and buggy represented a larger investment in an earlier day. Mr. Reeves' arrival marked the beginning of an influx of the most prominent figures in the automotive industry for mass appearance before the House ways and means committee next Saturday. Many heads of the great motor manufacturing companies will arrive today and by tomorrow the National Capital will have become the temporary headquarters of the industry.

Unfolding the industry's attitude toward "the direst situation that has confronted it at any time during the economic depression," Mr. Reeves said that the fundamental importance of balancing the Federal budget is recognized. It will ask only that increased levies be so distributed as to be nondiscriminatory, he said.

"All of us having been doing a lot of talking about facing facts during the last two years," said the veteran spokesman of the industry. "One of the first facts all of us should face is that the automobile is an indispensable necessity to those who own the Nation's 26,000,000 motor vehicles.

"The total value of America's cars is $5,500,000,000. That makes the average car in service worth approximately $211. The time has come for a showdown. Apparently the American people have decided it is not, for next to food it represents their largest expenditure.

"There is only one reason why motor transportation provides employment directly and indirectly for more than 4,000,000 persons; why it has factories in 41 States, draws raw materials from 48 States and sustains a host of enormous other industries, among them petroleum, rubber, steel, glass, cotton, and lumber. That reason is that a need for the automobile exists. That need can not be taxed to death without a militant repercussion. It is recognized in our industry that it is quite as vital to economic recovery that the Federal budget be balanced as it is that private individuals and industries begin to get back to firm ground. Our idea is that neither can be accomplished by one trying to survive at the expense of the other."

Two members of Congress, Representatives Robert H. Clancy and Royal C. Johnson, of South Dakota, appeared before the House ways and means committee yesterday to oppose the proposed excise tax upon automobiles.

"This most sensational gamble of all industrial history was made while practically all the auto companies were 'in the red,'" said Mr. Clancy. "The new models meant the junking of many millions of dollars worth of practically new machinery and the installation of new machinery. The big investment of the automobile manufacturers already made was jeopardized. The greatest possible number of employes and distribution of work was made by bringing men into this vast imperial progress."

Mr. Johnson argued in favor of a general sales tax in which the burden would be spread over many industries and would prove "painless" to the payers.

CAPITAL MOTOR DEALERS JOIN IN FIGHT ON PROPOSED TAX

000, represents the Washington public's yearly investment in motor transportation, the association's figures show. That there are 573 automotive retail establishments giving employment to 3,800 persons, approximately 10 per cent of the total in each classification, are other facts established by the trade body.

The economic importance of the industry to the city is further illustrated by the fact that the annual pay roll of the automotive group amounts to $6,000,000 in excess of 14 per cent of the total of $43,000,000.

"The chief source of the revenue sustaining this third most important business in the Nation's Capital," the association states, "is, of course, derived from the sale and servicing of new and used automobiles. Washington spends more than $30,000,000 a year for new cars and a million more for used cars. In the last census year new car dealers here paid out $3,233,931 for salaries, which could not be maintained in the event of a new tax that most certainly would discourage buying.

$654,091 Paid for Rents.

"The automotive industry pays to the property owners of Washington a total of $654,091 for rents. Other essential expenses, not including income taxes, cost of merchandise or return on invested capital and allowing officers and executives only the salaries of ordinary full-time employes, total $2,790,601. The total for wages, rents and other essential expenses is nearly $7,000,000."

Allied enterprises dependent upon the automotive industry also constitute an important element in the city's economic life, it is pointed out. These include more than 460 merchants selling repairs, gasoline, oil, accessories, tires and batteries, and 106 public garages. After listing these, the statement continues:

"The result of all this is that the aggregate sum of well above $12,000,000 is spent by the automotive group right here at home. Even the most optimistic could not hope for the maintenance of this circulation of money in the District if Congress orders the proposed special tax. The proposal is for a 5 per cent levy on the sale of every new automobile, 3 per cent on trucks, and 2½ per cent on all tires, parts, and accessories."

In the creation of superlative automobile values, the motor car industry this year has sought to stimulate consumption, the first step toward renewed employment, but the effect of reduced prices will be seriously diminished by the imposition of a tax which would be less than $25 in no case, the dealers declare. Their statement concludes with the warning that:

"The motoring public of Washington, where the ratio of car ownership is higher than in any other city in the United States, is directly concerned in the menace of the proposed unfair tax. The business welfare of the city, in which the automotive industry occupies such an important place, is no less imperiled."

Veterans' Body Opposes Civil Service Changes

Provisions of the deficiency supply bill which prohibit any reallocation of civil service ratings during the coming year were branded last night as "utterly demoralizing" by members of the Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars. After a discussion the post adopted a resolution voicing strong disapproval of these provisions in the bill.

declared by Cole to have occurred when Brookhart was en route from Iowa, where he had gone to launch his own campaign for reelection.

Plea for "Fair Play."

Representative Cole's letter was dated January 16, but was not made public, he said, until a reasonable time had been allowed for a reply.

"I want to assure you that I am not writing this letter because I have my eye on the seat that you now are occupying; but because I have a human interest in fair play as well as a high esteem for Herbert Hoover, who was born in the Iowa District which I am representing in Congress at about the same time you were born in Missouri."

The letter ended with a "protest in the name of the people of Iowa."

"I am writing for honor, even in politics; and for consistency, fair play and human decency in general," the letter concluded.

Renewal of Brady Case Still in Doubt

Johns Hopkins Professor Urges Study for Fingerprints.

Alan Bowie, State's attorney for Prince Georges County, said last night that he had not decided whether or not to reopen the case against Lawrence Leroy Brady, convicted of the Seat Pleasant bombing, on the new evidence uncovered by the finding of seventeen sticks of dynamite in a garage where Brady was formerly employed.

The dynamite was found Monday by a colored porter concealed in a flue in the Barry-Pate Co. garage in Washington where Brady worked at the time of the explosion.

RAIL OFFICIALS BUSY ON REPLY TO LABOR

Preparation of Explanation on Need for Wage Cut Delays Session.

Chicago, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—It took longer than the railroad presidents had anticipated to compile statistics in support of the argument for a voluntary 10 per cent wage cut, so there were no negotiations today between the executives and their organized workers.

The sixth session of the conference on wages and unemployment was first postponed from 10 a. m. until 2 p. m. and then deferred again until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. It was the first day since the negotiations got under way last Friday that no session was held.

Leaders of the two sides took advantage of the delay to confer with their committee members.

Both David B. Robertson, head of the Union delegation, and Daniel Willard, leader of the president's group, said the negotiations so far had been harmonious and that there was no reason why either side should feel discouraged. The compilation of new figures by the railroads was the result of the reply made yesterday by Robertson to the proposal of a 10 per cent wage reduction for one year.

Robertson told the presidents, in effect, labor was not interested in talking about inadequate return on investments or lowered living costs and that furthermore many of the figures the presidents had used in their presentation were all wrong

If the railroads wanted careful consideration given their suggestion, Robertson said, it would be advisable for them to present "a written compilation of what they regarded as important statistics" along the line of the needs of the carriers to meet fixed charges and maintain credit.

The "important statistics" kept the presidents and their assistants busy most of yesterday and all of today.

SENATOR HIRAM W. BINGHAM.

If the ever-immaculate, silver-haired, Hiram W. Bingham—a senator from Connecticut and consequently a Republican—ever lost his poise and dignity the occasion very probably would be one to remember.

Not that Senator Bingham carries his dignity around like a sandwich board advertising 3-cent cups of coffee in One-Arm Joe's Beanery, just around the corner—far to the contrary, and, to change the image, he is never likely to resemble a spread peacock in front of a tail wind.

When one speaks of tail winds, incidentally, one borrows a phrase from a technical language in which the senator is thoroughly at home, for he is the most enthusiastic supporter of aviation in Congress and practices what he preaches. Though the Senate has voted millions for aviation development, the senators have admired from the ground and left demonstrations to the gray-eagle from Connecticut the thrill of looking down on the clouds as he spurned limitations of surface travel.

Perhaps it is significant of the man that though he is never other than impeccably attired he has not the reputation of a Beau Brummel; though he would, when in danger of pneumonia, stand in a cold draft to converse rather than be curt, he is not referred to as a Chesterfield.

The son of parents so religious they went as missionaries to a foreign land to spread word of Jesus, the senator is the leading beer advocate in the Senate. Born in Honolulu on November 19, 1875, he is chairman of the Senate committee which shall pass on the fate of the Hawaiian Islands as a result of the recent turmoil here, and there are those who indicate their displeasure that he is not prone to submerge the rights of the people of the islands in a popular wave of demagogic patriotism.

Perhaps no other man in the Senate has had his education so widely spread geographically nor academically. He has been a professor at Harvard, Princeton, and Yale Universities.

Teacher, soldier of prideful career, explorer, author, military aviator, politician, lieutenant governor and governor of his State, and its Senator—Hiram W. Bingham. J. B. M.

LEE IS FOUND GUILTY OF SLAYING FARMER

Towson, Md., Jury Takes Only 34 Minutes to Decide; Appeal Planned.

Towson, Md., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Yuel Lee, 59, colored, today was convicted of first-degree murder for the slaying last October 11 of Green K. Davis at his farm home near Berlin, on the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

The jury in Baltimore County Circuit Court, to which the case was removed on change of venue from Worcester County, required but 34 minutes' deliberation to reach its verdict. David Levinson, associate defense counsel, filed notice of his intention to ask a new trial.

Under Maryland law a first-degree verdict without recommendation of mercy makes imposition of the death sentence mandatory. Judge T. Scott Offutt, who with his associates, C. Gus Grason and Frank I. Duncan, presided at the trial, deferred sentence pending the new-trial motion.

Although Lee was convicted of killing Davis, he also is under indictment for the slaying of the farmer's wife and their two daughters of high school age, Mary Lee and Elizabeth. The entire family was found slain in the house when neighbors and police broke down the doors 36 hours after the crime was committed.

Lee was arrested a few hours later at a rooming house in Ocean City, nearby seashore resort. In his room were found possessions of the Davis family, which had been taken after the four were killed with shotgun and ax.

Three attempts were made by Worcester County mobs to take the suspect, and the day after his arrest he was taken to Baltimore for safe keeping. He was taken back to the city jail here after the trial today to await action of the court on the new-trial plea.

Attention was attracted to the case after the mob which had been thwarted in its attempts to seize the man attacked Bernard Ades, attorney for the International Labor Defense League, which interested itself in the case. Levinson also was an attorney for the league.

SEVERAL QUIT POSTS IN MEXICAN CABINET

Ortiz Rubio Announces New List of Members, With Tellez Transferred.

Mexico City, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—President Ortiz Rubio announced tonight that several members of his cabinet had resigned and issued a new cabinet list.

Albert J. Pani, ambassador to Spain, was appointed minister of finance to succeed Luis Montes de Oca, who had held the post since February, 1927.

Manuel C. Tellez, former ambassador to Washington, was transferred from secretary of interior to the office of foreign minister. Gen. Juan Jose Rios was appointed minister of the interior.

Ambassador to Spain.

Genaro Estrada, who retired as foreign minister, will become ambassador to Spain and Mexico's representative to the League of Nations, the president announced.

Gen. Miguel M. Acosta was appointed minister of communications, succeeding Gustavo B. Serrano, and Gen. Abelardo L. Rodriguez was named minister of industry in the place of Aaron Saenz.

Minister of War Plutarco Elias Calles, Minister of Agriculture Francisco Elias and Minister of Education Narciso Bassols retain their posts.

Former Presidential Aid.

Gen. Rios formerly was chief of President Ortiz Rubio's military staff and Gen. Acosta has been chief of military operations in Vera Cruz and later in the federal district which includes Mexico City. Gen. Rodriguez, former governor of the northern district of Lower California, recently has been undersecretary of war.

Four generals, including War Minister Calles, are in the new cabinet, the same number that were dropped out when the cabinet was reorganized last October. Senor Pani was minister of finance before he became ambassador to Spain.

Former Finance Minister Montes de Oca, who left tonight on a train due in San Antonio, Tex., Friday morning, said he was on his way to New York.

RISING PEACE TIDE NOTED, SAYS IRWIN

Author Tells Conference of Strides Made During Past Decade.

A rising tide for peace has been noted in the past decade, Will Irwin, author and newspaper correspondent, said yesterday before the seventh conference on the cause and cure of war at the Washington Hotel.

Since the World War, Mr. Irwin believes the world has advanced further in cultivating aversion to war than in all the recorded ages before.

Following Mr. Irwin's address, Philip M. Brown, professor of international relations at Princeton University, said, "war can not be prevented under all circumstances without striking a blow at the moral qualities which have enabled our Western civilization and made the Anglo-Saxon peoples the instinctive defenders of the righteousness which exalts a naton."

Asks Higher Levels.

To cure the cause of war, he argued, "we must lift the mass of humanity by raising the level of the individuals that compose it." To women he assignes a special mission in performance of this task because of their secret of power in the "transmission of the emotion of the ideal."

The Polish corridor, that narrow strip of territory which gives Poland access to the Baltic Sea, is a danger spot for world peace, Mrs. Rachel Conrad Nason, of Hartford, Conn., told the conference.

Mrs. Nason has just returned from Europe after five months study of the situation. "The underlying cause for war in the Corridor is the fact that it bisects Germany, where there is a growing resentment," she said.

France Holds Key.

France holds the key to the success of the Geneva disarmament conference," James T. Shotwell said, in discussing "What Improvements in the Paris Pact Will Give Nations More Confidence in Its Reliability as a Preventative of War?"

He said that the Kellogg pact can not function successfully because it depends on public opinion for its force. Public opinion can not operate unless it has the facts, and it will always fail if governments pursue secret diplomacy, he argued.

At the night session all the delegates were divided into six discussion groups the objectives of the conference in the building of peace machinery and the reducing of war machinery. The findings of these groups, when approved, will form the program for 1932.

antine. After the little plane came to rest, Miss Nichols boarded the liner, and presented a bouquet from Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and another from the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

With the League flowers was this message:

"We trust you not to allow technicalities to involve or mislead you. You have been chosen for a great mission at a critical time. You carry with you 400,000 signatures of American citizens, who demand genuine disarmament now. They express their confidence in you. They send you out with Godspeed. When you come home victorious, you will have inaugurated a new era upon a stricken earth."

The signatures referred to are signed to a petition which will be taken to Geneva by three delegates of the Women's League, who were given an enthusiastic send-off with parade and demonstration at Madison Square Garden before they went to the pier.

These delegates are Miss Katherine Devereaux Blake, of New York; Mrs. Hannah Clothier, of Swarthmore, Pa., and Mrs. Victor L. Berger, of Milwaukee.

Still another unofficial delegation was headed by Mrs. Frank Day Tuttle, of New York, chairman of the board of directors of the League of Nations Association; Mrs. Ben Hooper, of Oshkosh, Wis., of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Henry L. Fradkin, of Montclair, N. J.

Sixteen bundles of petitions, bearing 618,415 signatures representing eleven national women's groups, were in custody of this delegation. The petitions are to be presented to the Geneva conference on the opening day of its session, the women said.

Miller, high priest and prophet; Warren W. Grimes, first ceremonial master, and Robert P. Smith, second ceremonial master. The treasurer is Frank E. Ghiselli, while F. Lawrence Walker is recorder.

CROWLEY WON'T SEE GIRL BEFORE HE DIES

Helen Walsh's Plea for Interview Before Chair Tonight Is Turned Down.

New York, Jan. 20 (U.P.).—Helen Walsh, who made an idol of a gangster and with him stood off the police siege that ended in his capture and conviction of murder will not be permitted to see Francis (Two-gun) Crowley before he goes to the electric chair at Sing Sing tomorrow night

The girl whom Crowley described as "just a kid that don't know nothing," and who was his companion on the riotous trail of burglary, assault and murder, wept when Supreme Court Justice Charles J. Druhan denied her request today for permission to visit the condemned man.

But despite her tears, there was a conflict of opinion over the sincerity of her request. It was said—and denied—that Crowley, between fits of cursing in his cell, had made a "dying request" to see her. It was also said, by representatives of Warden Lewis E. Lawes, that Crowley scorned the girl; that he never forgave her for testifying against him at his trial.

"This girl feels," said Burton B. Turkus, counsel for Miss Walsh, "that if she does not grant Crowley's dying wish, she can not be happy."

To this Peter Brancato, representing the attorney general's office, replied that he had talked with Warden Lawes about Crowley's attitude, and that he understood Crowley had given vent to this unloving expression:

"To hell with her. She just wants to sell her story to the newspapers."

But whatever the reason behind the attempt of sentimentalists—or publicists—to bring the two young people together, it failed and Crowley will spend his last day in the company of his foster mother, Mrs. Anna Crowley.

Mrs. Crowley's trip to Albany to see Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt was futile. It was announced that no further pleas would be heard.

Playing Baby Burned As He Upsets Coffee

Richard Irby, a 9-month-old baby, is in serious condition at Casualty Hospital as a result of burns on his back received at his home in Seat Pleasant, Md., last night.

It is understood that the child upset a coffee pot full of the scalding liquid while at play in the kitchen of his home.

Lieut. Van Winkle Faces Retirement

Head of Woman's Bureau to Appear Before the Police Board.

Inspector Ernest W. Brown, acting superintendent of police, yesterday ordered Lieut. Mina C. Van Winkle, director of the Woman's Bureau of the department, to appear before the Police Retiring and Relief Board. The action was forecast in an exclusive story in The Post several months ago.

The order, which was based upon the recommendation of the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons, may mean the end of Mrs. Van Winkle's long and successful service on the police force.

The Woman's Bureau head has been ill for some time and last week was unable to appear in District Supreme Court in connection with a damage suit.

In November, 1930, she underwent a serious operation in Baltimore, from which she recovered and resumed her duties, but later she was stricken with spinal arthritis and has been away from duty since.

1931 Cheney Trophy Given To 2 Valiant Army Fliers

Posthumous Award Made to Lieut. Moor, With His Mother Being Recipient; Private Smith Cited for Rescuing Officer From Burning Plane.

An officer and an enlisted man of the Army Air Corps, were jointly awarded the Cheney Trophy for 1931, the former posthumously for performing the outstanding acts of valor in connection with flying, according to an announcement made yesterday by the War Department.

The men receiving the award this year are Lieut. Robert D. Moor, who was killed in the performance of duty on August 23, 1931, and Private John B. Smith, a member of the Ninetieth Attack Squadron, at Fort Crockett, Tex.

Lieut. Moor, flying in a three-plane formation, near Romulus, Mich., had his ship disabled when it was struck by another plane in the formation. Lieut. Moor's observer, an enlisted man, was dazed by the accident and it was only after repeated warning on the part of the officer that he left the ship. By this time the plane was too close to the groud for both men to leap to safety and Lieut. Moor remained with the ship, being killed in the crash while the enlisted man escaped with a parachute. The award will be made to Lieut. Moor's mother, Mrs. Agnes W. Moor, of Holland, Ohio.

In addition to receiving the Cheney award Lieut. Moor has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Private John B. Smith is credited with rescuing an officer of the Air Corps from a burning ship that had crashed at Fort Crockett, Tex. Besides the trophy, Lieut. Smith will receive a substantial cash award.

The Cheney trophy is given in memory of Lieut. William H. Cheney, who was killed in Italy in 1918. It is donated by his mother and sister.

JUDD COUNSEL HINTS AT ANOTHER'S GUILT

Defense Shifts Tactics While Jurors Are Picked in Murder Trial.

Courthouse, Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Suddenly changing tactics, defense counsel in the Winnie Ruth Judd murder trial hinted broadly today of an effort to shift the guilt once confessed by the woman accused of slaying Agnes Anne Le Roi and Hedvig Samuelson.

Adding to previously indicated plans to attempt to establish both insanity and self-defense, her counsel entered into the court record, during questioning of prospective jurors, the hint.

Prespective jurors were asked by Herman Lewkowitz, of Mrs. Judd's counsel, if they would vote "not guilty" should the evidence produce "reasonable doubt as to the connection of this defendant with the act charged," or if they found in their minds "the possibility the crime was committed by another party."

State Objects to Question.

The State objected to the framing of the question as to the possibility of another person, as not a true statement of the case. The question was allowed by Judge Speakman only after the court had interpreted it to the witness following a conference of attorneys.

The defense also definitely named J. J. Halloran, Phoenix lumberman, who was a friend of both Mrs. Judd and the victims, as a key witness.

Asked to interpret outside of court, the question regarding possibility "the crime was committed by another person," defense counsel declined forthright comment.

Jury Panel Is Seated.

"We might," said they, "be looking toward establishment of reasonable doubt the defendant was connected with the crime, and again we might be presaging possible establishment of some other person as the perpetrator."

A jury panel of 29 and an alternate panel of 4 were seated, according to Arizona law, before Judge Howard C. Speakman's Maricopa County Superior Court adjourned today. Overnight opposing counsel were to decide upon the names to be stricken by peremptory challenge, to thus select the trial jury of twelve men immediately after court convenes tomorrow.

One alternate will be seated. The defense may exercise ten peremptory challenges and the State seven.

ESSAY TEST BACKED BY EDUCATION BOARD

Post Washington Contest Is Unanimously Approved at Meeting.

essay contest becomes one of the principal events of the bicentennial observance.

This is only right and proper, for Washington is the name city of the Father of His Country and what is done here, in a sense, is national at the same time. Cities all over the country are watching the contest in The Washington Post with special interest.

The essays received yesterday included entries from Lucille Kirk, age 12, St. Anthony's School; Elizabeth Johnson, age 17, 117 Forty-ninth street northwest; Nancy Crawford, age 12, 1751 Eighteenth street northwest; Edwin Wise, age 14, 496 N street northwest; Charles T. Russ, 229 Anacostia road northeast, and Margaret Gleason, age 10, 415 Twelfth street southeast.

Today's specimen essay is as follows:

"George Washington should be respected for the wonderful way in which he left his beloved Mount Vernon after the Revolutionary War and served his country as its first President. He helped the country when she was faced with difficulties that a young nation has to always face. Men have marveled for many years at the way Washington handled the early problems.

"What a great responsibility he must have felt as he stood on a balcony of Federal Hall in New York on April 30, 1789, and took the oath of office as the crowd below shouted, "Long live George Washington, the first President of the United States."

"The Government at that time had no capital or buildings of its own but used borrowed ones. Washington had to start things going from almost nothing and he did it in a wonderful way.

"Washington was always very formal as it is seen by his levees. At these levees he appeared in a black velvet suit with knee and show buckles and black silk stockings. When Washington went to Congress he rode in a beautiful carriage ornamented with gold nymphs. All this showed his great liking for formality.

"The Treasury had no money and there were many Revolutionary War debts. People who had lent money to the Government gave up hope of ever getting it back and the United States notes they had thought were worthless. Washington helped people get their money back and gradually the European countries that had lent money received their share.

"In 1790 Washington made a trip through New England and in 1791 he made one through the South. He did this to bring the Federal Government nearer to the people. It was while he was on these trips that he slept in so many beds that people loved to connect with traditions.

"Washington's firmness in dealing with the Whisky Insurrection made the people respect the Federal Government.

"At that time there were two parties, the Federalist and the Democrats or Republicans. Washington was a Federalist and believed in a broad construction of the Constitution and in getting the favor of the upper class of people, and in looking after business affairs. After Washington's death the parties died out but later on they were taken up again with great spirit and still exist today under other names.

"Washington served two terms but refused the third one in 1797. In 1796, before retiring to Mount Vernon, he made his famous Farewell Address in which he advised the country to mature and grow older before entering another war.

"Washington went to Mount Vernon, where he died in 1799. He died as simply as he had lived and expired without a struggle.

"Washington had no children of his own and was really the Father of His Country. It was true that he was "First in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

FIRST IN THE HEARTS OF HIS COUNTRYMEN

BUCHAREST, ROUMANIA, IS TO HONOR WASHINGTON.

Bucharest, Roumania, is preparing to celebrate the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington, according to word just received by the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

Musical festivals and plays on the life of Washington will be held at the Roumanian National Theater, according to plans being arranged by the Society of the Friends of the United States of America, and it is expected that King Carol II of Roumania will attend the ceremonies.

A George Washington Bicentennial committee of Bucharest is being organized, and arrangements are also being made for radio addresses on the life and achievements of the first President.

WASHINGTON'S FRIENDSHIP FOR GEN. KNOX.

Washington always kept this useful and scientific officer near his own person, and he not only honored him with confidence, but with brotherly affection. After the defeat of Gates' army at Camden, Gen. Greene was offered the arduous command of the southern department. The Quaker general, with his usual modesty, replied, "Knox is the man for that difficult undertaking; all obstacles vanish before him; his resources are infinite." "True," replied Washington, "and, therefore, I can not part with him."

Churches Ask Ban On Stock Gambling

Congressional Inquiry on Markets Is Urged by Ohio Council.

Cleveland, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—A congressional investigation of stock markets "with the object of abolishing gambling in securities" was recommended today in a resolution adopted by representatives of sixteen Ohio church denomiantons.

The resolution approved by the Ohio pastors covention and by members of the assembly of the Ohio Council of Churches in a joint session here last night, recommended:

A thorough investigation of the motion picture and radio industries, disarmament and a careful study of international debt cancellation, United States entrance into the world court, unemployment insurance, and the creation of a national planning board to prepare a ten-year plan for American economic development.

"Plane" Believed Lost Only Meteor Fragment

Laguna Beach, Calif., Jan. 20 (A.P.). The mystery of a ball of fire which fell into the ocean here last night and which was investigated by authorities on the theory it might have been an airplane, was believed solved today by a witness who said it was the fragment of a meteor.

Richard H. Marriner, a resident of Laguna Beach, said he saw the meteor shoot out of the North and disappear to the South, a fragment of it breaking off and falling in a streak of fire into the ocean. About the same time, he said, he saw a trimotored airplane cross near the path of the fragment.

Dakota Truck Tax Rise Is Hit by Court Ruling

Huron, S. Dak., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—South Dakota's truck license law was held unconstitutional as it affected interstate commerce, in a decision by three federal judges today, but was sustained as affecting trucks operating within the State.

The law, passed last year, materially increased license fees on large trucks. Automobile rates were also readjusted but increases were provided for only large, expensive machines. In some instances trucks would have been taxed from $300 to $500.

Oregon Couple, Feared Dead, Lost in Blizzard

Bedford, Oreg., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Edwin C. Brown, 56, and his wife, are believed by friends to have perished in a blizzard January 11, which swept the country surrounding their ranch in the Dead Indian district. The two left the ranch of A. R. Cooley at 4 p. m. that day in the midst of a blinding snowstorm and have not been seen since then.

A searching party was organized but no trace of the man or woman was found.

Roosevelt Asks Fund For Good Farm Roads

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—A recommendation for a $3,500,000 fund to be used for experimental "get the farmer out of the mud" roads was made to the Legislature today by Gov. Roosevelt.

In a message, the governor suggested the three and a half millions be set aside from the general State highway construction program for this work.

Ruth Barron Wed To Vice Consul

Aviatrix Becomes Bride of William F. Nason in Kobe, Japan.

Kobe, Japan, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Ruth Barron, New York woman aviator, was married here today to William Franklin Nason, the American vice consul The ceremony was performed at the home of E. R. Dickover, the consul.

The two became acquainted last spring when Miss Barron came to Japan to participate in preparations for a flight across the Pacific with Capt. Thomas Ash. Bad weather and other factors prevented the flight.

Mr. Nason was born in Brockton, Mass., studied law at George Washington University, and entered the consular service in 1921.

Motion for Warners To Bare Books Made

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—A motion asking for a court order to direct Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., to produce certain of its books and records for examination by Jules Endler, of Passaic, N. J., was presented today before Chief Justice James Pennewill, of the Delaware Supreme Court.

Endler recently filed suit in chancery court asking for the appointment of receivers for the corporation on grounds of insolvency. The corporation filed an answer denying insolvency and contending Endler was not a stockholder of record.

Illinois Bank Is Robbed.

Mundelein, Ill., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—After holding the cashier and his family captives in their home for six hours, four men looted the vault of the State Bank of Mundelein early today and escaped with $3,200.

POLICE TRAP ELUDED IN DENVER KIDNAPING

Thugs Call Wife of Victim and Ask $50,000, Despite Guarded Phone.

Denver, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Extortionists holding Benjamin F. Bower, Denver bakery manager, for $50,000 ransom, today secretly communicated with the kidnaped man's relatives despite efforts of the entire police department to intercept the message.

Police tonight admitted an elaborate trap to trace a promised telephone call and dispatch riot squads to the point from which the message was received, had failed.

"Hello. This is the mob who's got your husband. Get that $50,000 ready and we'll call you later," was the message fired into a telephone shortly after noon at the Bower residence.

Previously the extortionists had promised to make the phone call, and inform Bowers' family how and where to pay the ransom. Police hoped to plug in on the conversation. The bakery manager was seized at his home last night.

Bower Is Not Wealthy.

Authorities are puzzled over the methods of the kidnapers, since it evidently was known by them that Bower is not wealthy. Stephen Knight, owner of the bakery in which Bower is employed as manager, is reputed to be wealthy, and it was Knight from whom the abductors believed they might get the $50,000 for Bowers' release.

Knight is confined to bed by illness. Authorities believe experienced criminals would have taken him instead of Bower.

"This looks like the work of narcotic addicts," said Capt. William Armstrong. "The whole thing is too theatrical—the kidnaping first of two women which these men drove to Bower's home, the use of the women as a shield to gain entrance to Bower's home, and the arrangement for a telephone call at noon, when the formal demand for $50,000 was to be made on Knight."

The automobile of Mrs. T. H. Winsbourn, which was commandeered by the kidnapers, was the object of an intensive search all day by firemen who went through hundreds of private garages in South Denver. Mrs. Winburn and her companion, Mrs. Clara Pool, were so frightened when forced to drive at the point of a gun to the Bower residence that they could give police only a meager description of the kidnapers.

Mrs. Bower Receives Call.

"Shelton, of Illinois," was the name given by one of the kidnapers in his conversation with Mrs. Bower. A man who earlier this month held up and robbed C. H. E. Alexander, cashier of the baking concern, gave the same name. One of the men told Mrs. Bower he had directed two holdups of the bakery, from which $1,500 was taken.

Officers scouted the theory Bower may have been taken into the mountains a few miles west of Denver, saying the few roads leading into that region precluded an adequate channel of escape. They believe he is held in Denver.

In spite of the gaudy manner in which the kidnaping scheme was carried out, police believe the abductors spent considerable time in arranging for Bower's actual capture. One evidently posed as a meter reader yesterday and secured the interior plan of the house. The telephone was jerked from the wall before the men left, with orders it should be installed again for the call today.

BEVERLY APPOINTED TO PORTO RICO POST

crat), Virginia, gave his indorsement to four possibilities.

Indication was given at the executive mansion during the day that probably the second most important vacancy, the ambassadorship to Great Britain, might not be filled immediately. Ambassador Dawes resigned definitely Tuesday to become president of the $2,000,000,000 reconstruction finance corporation.

One interesting bit of speculation heard about the Capital is that Ambassador Edge at Paris might be moved to London, with Ambassador Garrett in Rome shifted to France to take his place.

This would leave vacancies in Italy and Angora, since the President has decided upon Joseph C. Grew, Ambassador to Turkey, to replace Ambassador Forbes at Tokyo. Forbes has signified he wishes to retire.

The President also announced Tuesday he would hold conferences with Democratic and Republican leaders before naming other directors to his finance corporation. Bernard M. Baruch and Angus McLean, former North Carolina governor, both Democrats, have been suggested as fitting running mates to the Republicans, Dawes and Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, already named.

The President apparently had little difficulty in his choice of Beverly to be Governor of Porto Rico. The island attorney general has been close to the problems of that possession for the past seven years. He speaks Spanish fluently and is popular with the island leaders and people.

Roosevelt felt especially inclined toward him because of his familiarity with the economic, sanitation and education programs already instituted there. Still another factor was his knowledge of the five political factions in the island in the face of an approaching election.

Beverley originally was a Texan and learned his Spanish in sections close to the Mexican border. He graduated from law school there also.

Beverley Is War Veteran And Republican of Texas

Amarillo, Tex., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—James Rumsey Beverley, appointed today by President Hoover as Governor of Porto Rico, succeeding Theodore Roosevelt, jr., was born here June 15, 1894, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Beverly.

He received his law degree from the University of Texas in 1923, and was admitted to the Texas bar the same year. He practiced law for a time in Corpus Christi. He is a Republican.

Mr. Beverley was appointed deputy attorney general of Porto Rico and served as special advisor to the Porto Rican Public Service Commission from 1925 to 1927. He was second assistant attorney general from 1927 to 1928, and has been attorney general of the island since May, 1928.

The new Porto Rican Governor served as a first lieutenant in the Army during the Warld War and now holds a major's reserve commission.

Bridge War Showed Value Of Leading Shortest Suit

Play, Though Daring, Often Defeats Sure Contract; Culbertson Used Principle of Withholding Attack to Advantage in Match With Lenz.

(This is the first of three articles on methods of play demonstrated in the recent Lenz-Culbertson contract bridge match. In most respects the play of the participants was similar. Their methods of bidding differed. Today's article is on a play that is largely Culbertsonian. The next two articles will discuss plays common to all masters and often necessary for success even after proper bidding.)

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Bridge sharps, who have been giving second thought to principles demonstrated in the Culbertson-Lenz contract match are convinced that at times, in playing the cards, it is highly profitable to wait before attacking.

Often the side which essays a game contract succeeds or fails through the first lead of an opponent. The wait, which emerges from the match as the one play not generally used by all experts and as successfully demonstrated in most cases by its great proponent, Ely Culbertson, consists of the lead of the highest card of a short suit, a doubleton or tripleton.

Time and again it has caused a contract to be set when any other lead would have resulted in the defending side failing to stop game.

Play When Partner Silent.

The play is employed when the first player to lead has no guide in the way of a bid by partner, lacks good reentries, or holds tenaces—that is, suits containing honors not in sequence, such as ace-queen and one or more small, or king-knave and small cards. To lead from such tenaces usually would give a trick to the opponents. It is highly desirable to have the lead come up to the holders of tenaces. In such cases, for instance, the queen would take a trick when otherwise it might not.

A lead from the top of nothing is made with the deliberate intention of giving the first trick to opponents and is used in defending both against trump and no-trump contracts.

The card led is the highest of the short suit, so that partner will not confuse the lead with the standard fourth best of longest suit. For that reason cards above the seven usually are the most desirable for the waiting lead.

Illustration of Principle.

Here is a hand illustrating the principle:

NORTH.
S—A Q 10 6 3
H—A 7 4
D—A K Q
C—K 5

WEST.	EAST
S—K J 5	S—7 4
H—K 10 8 6 3	H—J 9
D—9 5 2	D—J 10 7 4
C—Q 4	C—A J 9 8 7

SOUTH.
S—9 8 2
H—Q 5 2
D—8 6 3
C—10 6 3 2

North, the dealer, opened with a forcing bid of two spades. South responded with the mandatory two no trump required of a poor hand in answer. North rebid the spades and South went to three no trump, which became the contract. West and East did not bid.

Contract Defeated.

The lead of the nine of diamonds by West caused the contract to be defeated. Any other lead especially the fourth best heart would enable South to make game.

The short suit lead is not recommended when the original leader has a good suit to establish, or knows his partner's best suit or should cash in high cards against a trump contract before the contracting side can make discards.

There is danger in failure by partner to recognize a short suit lead. For instance, in the Culbertson-Lenz match, Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson could have taken the first five tricks in hearts against a no trump, but each thought the other had a short suit.

Jail-Break Guns Source Discovered

Former Leavenworth Inmate Held in Canada as Weapon Shipper.

Windsor, Ontario, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The source of the weapons with which seven inmates of the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kans., forced their way to temporary liberty last December 11 was believed by United States investigators to have been discovered today with the arrest in Windsor of Harold Fontaine, a former inmate of the prison.

Fontaine was released from Leavenworth last November after serving a sentence for smuggling aliens across the Detroit River. He was arrested in Windsor Tuesday. He has announced he will fight extradition, but faces possible deportation as an undesirable.

United States officers said the weapons reached the convicts in a large can of shoe polish which was shipped into the prison shoe factory where Fontaine had worked.

State's Governor Hears Miners' Plea

Demands From Free Lunch to Doles Presented to Gov. Lafoon.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Eleven demands, ranging from free lunch to a public dole, were presented to Gov. Ruby Lafoon here today by two dozen representatives of striking coal miners from southeastern Kentucky headed by Joe Weber, national miners union organizer, who claimed he was kidnaped and beaten by Harlan County deputy sheriffs last week.

The delegation sat behind closed doors in the governor's office for two hours and fifteen minutes and told him what they wanted.

Weber, who acted as spokesman for the group, told newspapermen that the governor was "very evasive and like a shrewd politician, he promised us nothing but gave us mouthful after mouthful of sympathy."

Electricity in Railroading

By H. G. WELLS

THE first electric railway was exhibited by Siemens at Berlin in 1879. But electric generators and motors were then in their infancy. Ten years were to elapse before big machines were available, and another ten before many of the details of the transmission were worked out. The Liverpool Overhead Railway and the City and South London Railway were opened about 1890. Then several short lines were converted from steam to electricity. Meanwhile the New York, New Haven & Hartford and other American electric lines were opened, and electrical working adopted for the tunnel sections of the Swiss railways.

* * * *

The advantages of electricity were more obvious, and the difficulties of introduction and operation less in the case of short suburban and interurban lines with a heavy passenger traffic. By distributing motors along the train, the grip on the rails was increased. Electricity secures quicker acceleration than steam, and less time is lost in increasing or decreasing speed when leaving or approaching a station. It had obvious advantages, too, on underground lines and in long tunnels which are difficult to ventilate. As the power from a large central station is more flexible than that of a steam locomotive, there were also advantages in the use of electricity on main lines with steep gradients. And so the new method of traction has gradually invaded the domain of the steam engine.

* * * *

THAT, however, could not be done in a day. It required cheap power such as can be obtained most economically from falling water. Hydroelectric development was a powerful stimulus. Then there was an enormous field to be explored. The most economical pressure for the transmission of electrical energy; whether it should be direct or alternating current, and, in the latter case, whether it should be single-phase or three-phase; the most satisfactory method of communicating energy to the train; the best type of motor; these were only a few of the questions which had to be investigated. Each one of them carried a mass of detail in the design of auxiliary devices. Throughout the nineties and beyond, the patent offices were busy in registering new ideas.

* * * *

The most wonderful achievement during the last ten years is the equipment of automatic substations. The line is divided into sections of a dozen miles or more in length, and each section is supplied independently with energy from the central power station through a substation. The substation contains machinery or apparatus for transforming the high-tension current into one of low enough tension to be communicated to, and used with safety on, the train. The overhead lines are liable to have produced in them surges of electrical energy from lightning flashes; the substation machinery may be overloaded by too many trains on the section, and a number of irregularities may occur which formerly required an operator to observe them and make the necessary adjustments. This is now unnecessary. The substation can be and often is, entirely automatic. When an irregularity occurs the machines correct themselves or stop. And the man in charge of the control station can see, by glancing at colored lamps on a board, whether each control device is doing the work for which it was designed.

* * * *

AS yet we are only on the threshold of this phase of transportation. Omitting urban and interurban lines, there are only 6,500 miles of electrified track out of 563,000 miles. The United States has less than 1,500 miles out of more than 236,000 miles of line. Great Britain has 400 miles out of 20,000. Italy has made use of her immense hydroelectric resources in the streams which flow down the southern slopes of the Alps. She has 670 miles of electric railway out of 12,500 miles. But the greatest development has been in Switzerland. The figures—595 miles out of 1,852—hardly reveal the truth. No less than 67 per cent of the track is electrified and 85 per cent of the trailing-ton miles is accomplished by electrical power. Man has been observing, experimenting, discovering, for scores of generations. Within the last three he has achieved the railway, and within the last one the electric train.

SENATE NAILS BOOST PART IN POSTAL ACT

General Changes of Parcel Rates Would Be Balked by Voted Measure.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday passed and sent to the House a bill to repeal the section of the postal act under which Postmaster General Brown asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to increase parcel post rates.

The bill was introduced by Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee.

A committee report said heretofore the section had been used by the Postmaster General to make small or inconsequental changes in zones and classifications, but it was not intended to be "used for a general revision of parcel post rates."

An indication that first class postal rates will not be increased at this time came yesterday after the House ways and means committee had decided to leave the matter in the hands of the postoffice committee.

Chairman Mead of the postoffice committee predicted that his group would not approve the request of Postmaster General Brown to hike the first class postage rates from 2 to 3 cents an ounce. Mead said other legislation to meet the Postoffice Department's prospective $150,000,000 deficit would be drafted.

Two Treasury experts gave the ways and means committee their opinion that a manufacturers sales tax such as the Canadian system could be used in this country. Their views were based upon a study of the Canadian plan.

The tax brings $44,000,000 annually to Canada, but the experts declined to estimate what might be expected from it in this country.

Richmond Reserve Bank Runs at Loss

Fifth District Institution Drops $497,000 on 1931 Business.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, which serves banks in five States and the District of Columbia, operated last year at a loss of $497,000.

Gov. George J. Seay, in making the announcement, said the decrease was due to "extraordinarily low return on the aggregate earning assets of the bank." He pointed out that for a good part of the year the discount rate was 3 per cent, equal to the lowest rate ever established by this bank.

The bank's surplus at the end of 1931 amounted to $11,482,816.30. The Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond serves banks in Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, District of Columbia, North Carolina and South Carolina.

Bill to Solve Financial Ills of Chicago Is Voted

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—A bill designed to remedy Chicago's financial ills through reorganization of Cook County's taxation machinery, thus paving the way for collection of taxes, now three years in arrears, was passed by the House of Representatives tonight.

Church Worker Found Slain in Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Stabbed 22 times and beaten, Norman R. Bechtel, 31, an accountant and church worker, was found on an unoccupied estate in Germantown early today and died in a hospital.

He was found by a policeman who had been detailed to guard the nearby home of Judge Harry S. McDevitt, of the Common Pleas Court, because of recent threats. Police are working on a theory that he may have been the victim of mistaken identity.

SOLDIER MEMORIAL WILL BE RESTORED

Montgomery Commissioners Pledge Action on Statue of Confederate.

Restoration of the Confederate Soldier Memorial to the center of the parkway in front of the Rockville courthouse and treatment of the parkway so that the statue will remain a prominent figure to motorists was pledged by Montgomery County Commissioners at a meeting of Ridgely Brown Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, yesterday at Rockville. The meeting was held at the residence of Mrs. Walter Mobley, with Mrs. Hattie Griffith and Mrs. Medford Canby as associate hostesses.

Lacy Shaw, president of the commissioners, and Commissioners Claggett Hilton and Frank Ricketts attended the meeting at the request of a committee of the chapter, appointed to urge proper care of the memorial. Mrs. Walter Mobley was appointed chairman of a committee to arrange for George Washington Bicentennial tree planting.

Chairmen of committees announced yesterday by Mrs. John C. Weedon, president, were: Mrs. A. B. Foster, chairman of Georgia G. Bright fund; Mrs. J. Frank Wilson and Mrs. Hattie Griffith, membership; Mrs. Robert E. L. Smith, scholarship fund; Miss Mary Sellman, historian; Miss Pauline Hutchison, the Mrs. Norman B. Randolph fund; Mrs. David H. Warfield, custodian of flags; Miss Mary Sellman, World War memorial; Mrs. Brown, veterans magazine; Mrs. Earl Graeff, sunshine committee.

Plans for entertainment of the State meeting of the U. D. C. on April 6 at Rockville Methodist Episcopal Church South, were discussed.

POLICEMAN FREED IN FIRING ON AUTO

Conflicting Testimony by Prince Georges Witnesses Causes Dismissal.

Charges of assault with a dangerous weapon, made against Prince Georges County Policeman Ralph Brown after he fired at an automobile last Sunday, were dismissed in Hyattsville Police Court yesterday when witnesses for the State told conflicting stories.

Only one witness at a time was allowed in the courtroom during the hearing, which lasted for about 1½ hours. Estimates of Brown's distance from the car when he fired varied from 15 feet to 300 feet, although all State witnesses testified that the policeman did not order the car to halt. Brown was represented by Attorney Arthur C. Keefer.

While Brown was being questioned, Judge J. Chew Sheriff asked him if he had ever fired at cars before. Brown said he had, and Judge Sheriff then asked him if he had ever injured anyone, to which he answered no. The judge then said there was not sufficient reason shown to hold Brown on the charge. Alan Bowie, State's attorney, then stated that he agreed with this decision, but wanted to warn policemen that guns were to be used in misdemeanor cases only when a prisoner was escaping.

Brown was called to a house near Takoma Park Sunday and said he fired at the auto when the machine started away from the house ignoring his command to stop.

Former Aid of Capone Sought in Kidnaping

Los Angeles, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Ralph Sheldon, alleged Chicago gangster and once an aid of Al Capone, and nine other persons, including two women, were sought by authorities today on an indictment charging them with the kidnaping of E. L. Caress, Tia Juana betting commissioner.

The indictments followed the appearance of Jimmy Dollen, a county prisoner, accused of implication in the $50,000 ransom plot, before the grand jury. He charged Sheldon attempted to intimidate him through two jailers, who have been suspended. Sheldon is at liberty under $10,000 bond under the original complaint in the kidnaping case.

Hungarian Bank Shows Profit.

Bundapest, Hungary, Jan. 20 (A.P.). The board of directors of the Hungarian National Bank reported net earnings of 8,739,000 pengoes (about $1,520,000) in 1931 and recommended distribution of a 12 per cent dividend, the same as last year.

AS TO FEDERAL PAY CUTS.

President Hoover's attitude with respect to wage reductions for Federal employes has been grossly misinterpreted. It is an untenable assumption that the President would urge the maintenance of industrial wage scales and then inform members of the House of Representatives that he would not oppose the slashing of Federal salaries. As a matter of fact, Mr. Hoover is still firm in his opposition to cutting salaries to balance the budget.

It is true, of course, that the President has urged Congress to effect every practicable economy. Some members of the House seem to have concluded that any cut in expenditures would meet with his approval. The abolition of Congress, for example, would save money, but it is safe to assume that the President was not advocating such a move in his appeal for economy. Those who represent the President to be agreeable to wage cuts are merely reading their own desires into his general statement that appropriations should be brought into line with revenue.

There is no indication that a wage-cutting bill could be passed in either house. Bills introduced in the lower chamber have been pigeonholed without reaching the floor. It is reported that the rules committee will not allow Representative Wood to add a rider to the agricultural bill, carrying a general salary reduction. Certainly the House should allow no legislative short cuts on a matter of this importance. If the subject must be considered, let it be brought out into the open where no representative will have opportunity to hide behind an important supply bill. Any other procedure on a matter of such far-reaching consequences would be a travesty that no self-respecting legislative body should tolerate.

Congress is engaged in the enactment of a comprehensive rehabilitation program. The proposal to cut Federal salaries while extending financial aid to private enterprise so that wage reductions will not be necessary is a discordant note. It tends to nullify the good effect of the reconstruction program, keeping alive the fear and uncertainty that have undermined productive enterprise.

Government salaries are not too high. While wages were rising fast in the late era of prosperity, Federal salaries did not keep up the pace, and since the depression began all normal advancement has ceased. Under the circumstances, salary-cutting would not be economy. Congress can find plenty of opportunity to economize without being "penny wise and pound foolish."

THE LEGION'S GOOD MOVE.

Supplementing its patriotic attitude announced at the annual convention last year not to make appeals for additional bonus payments under present conditions, the American Legion is adding positive efforts to help the unemployment situation. A Nation-wide campaign has been launched to secure 1,000,000 jobs. Aiding the Legion in this "war on depression" are the American Federation of Labor, the Association of National Advertisers and business organizations by the hundred throughout the country.

National Commander Henry L. Stevens, jr., has established offices in New York to direct the work of locating positions for unemployed men and women to restore public confidence and revive normal buying, thus stimulating all branches of trade and industry. "Many great corporations," says Mr. Stevens, "can well afford to increase the number of their employes 10 per cent from surplus. Others, with diminished surpluses, can make a 10 per cent increase in the number of men actually employed by a spread of work."

Vice President Matthew Woll, of the Federation of Labor, has been delegated to active service in connection with the big drive for jobs. He announces that the 300,000 local unions will back the campaign to the limit, and he believes that "our Nation has enough brains, there is enough capital and there are enough consumers to end depressions forever." On behalf of the National Advertisers both President Lee H. Bristol and Chairman of the Board Bernard Lichtenberg will take an active part and all lines of publications will be represented in the national group.

Mr. Bristol says: "The United States is still the richest country in the world. We have the greatest per capita wealth and unlimited resources. We believe that a turn for reemployment and business recovery can be made by united action for the recovery of public confidence and the resumption of normal buying."

Commander Stevens appeals for a realization that this is an emergency that calls for war-time organization in which the Government, business, bankers and all the people must cooperate and make the beginning toward business recovery. The Legion is showing the same fine spirit in this movement that its members did in war days and it will have the hearty support of all American citizens.

CONFIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS.

Once more a Senate committee has run into a stone wall in its attempt to obtain confidential diplomatic documents from the State Department. Secretary Stimson has refused to make public the full text of a telegram sent to the department by the American Minister at Bogota in connection with the Colombian government's effort to convince New York bankers that they should pay the final installment on a $20,000,000 loan. Since the committee has no authority to force the Secretary of State to comply with its request it will have to be content with the substance of the telegram, which was stated orally for the record by Assistant Secretary White.

This question has been thrashed out many times. No Secretary of State will reveal confidential messages that would embarrass this Government in its foreign relations or put a foreign government in an awkward situation. Any official who would violate the confidence of a foreign government would be unworthy of trust. The Senate has always been rebuffed whenever it attempted to have foreign relations conducted as are public hearings before a legislative body.

If the diplomatic correspondence of the United States should be thrown open to public inspection this Government would be constantly embroiled in petty squabbles with foreign governments, and the State Department would be denied information on which American foreign policy must be based.

In the present case the committee stands on flimsy ground. Mr. White testified as to the substance of the telegram in question, and parts of the document were submitted to the committee verbatim. Only those parts that might cause embarrassment between the two governments were withheld. Any member of the committee is at liberty to call at the State Department and examine the original telegram. Secretary Stimson even offered to produce it in an executive session with the understanding that the confidential portions would not be made public.

The Senate committee, therefore, has the opportunity to obtain all the information in possession of the State Department. The demand for publication of the correspondence is incompatible with the public interest, which is best served when interchanges between governments are kept inviolable whenever their disclosure would work injury to either of the governments concerned. Good faith and confidence are the essence of successful conduct of intergovernmental relations.

THE REPARATIONS DEADLOCK.

The deadlock over reparations continues, and the Lausanne conference has been postponed. Premier Laval tells the French Chamber that France will not forego her right to reparations from Germany. He adds:

> France faces a double duty—the duty toward the generation which went through the war, to sacrifice nothing of what is due us without a corresponding remission of our own debts, and the duty to future generations, to subordinate all agreements to a just balance between conditions of production and existence. That balance would be disturbed if, once the crisis is passed, the disproportion of fiscal charges curbing the activity of the people should place us in a position of inferiority in international competition.

As to the first clause, repeating the thesis that France will remit nothing unless a corresponding remission is made in her debt, the answer of the United States has already been made. The President and Congress have declared that the obligation to pay war debts is not contingent upon the collection of reparations from Germany. All efforts of European debtors to induce the United States to remit the debts on the ground that Germany can not or will not pay reparations will be in vain.

The fixed obsession of France is that the Young plan makes payment of war debts contingent upon payment of reparations. Fernand Bouisson, president of the Chamber of Deputies, said:

> The Young plan is a definite settlement of reparations, establishing the real connection between what France should receive and what she should pay her creditors.

The weakness of this statement lies in the fact that France's creditor, the United States, is not a party to the Young plan and long ago warned France that it would be futile to set up the claim that France is not bound to pay unless she collects from Germany. Among the negotiators of the Young plan were two Americans, Owen D. Young and J. P. Morgan. They were participating in the formulation of provisions which would have made debt payments contingent upon the collection of reparations. The United States Government sent a most positive and final note to the debtor governments, informing them that Messrs. Young and Morgan (naming them) were not acting in behalf of the United States, and that the United States would not be bound by any agreement made by the parties to the Young plan. Notwithstanding this warning, the arrangements concerning "outpayments," or payments upon debts to the United States, were inserted in the annex to the Young plan, and now French spokesmen insist that they are binding upon the United States. Of course this claim has no validity whatever.

If the Lausanne conference should prove abortive it seems probable that Secretary Stimson will be consulted by the debtors while he is in Geneva, in the hope that he can be persuaded to agree that debt payments shall be made contingent upon reparation payments. An immovable obstacle stands in the way of such an agreement. The European debtors, if they fail to meet the obligations which they entered into without reference to German reparations, will do so at the peril of their credit.

LOWER POWER RATES.

The temporary rates on electric power agreed upon by the Public Utilities Commission and the Potomac Electric Power Co. are significant for two reasons. First, they allow the public a rate reduced from 4.2 to 3.6 cents per kilowatt-hour during the controversy over the commission's new sliding scale. Second, the company recognizes that its earnings are excessive and ought to be distributed to the public in the form of lower rates.

The agreement will not affect the judicial contest over the sliding scale arrangement, which would bring about further substantial reductions in the cost of power. But it does mark the end of the old consent decree under which rates have been determined for a number of years. Apparently the company found that it had nothing to gain by clinging to the old method of determining rates, which clearly allowed it to earn excessive profits.

Regardless of what action is taken by the courts on the modified sliding scale this compromise renews hope of an equitable solution of the problem on a basis that will be fair to both the public and the power interests.

OLD SILVER FALLACIES.

A new generation has grown up since free silver fallacies were demolished in the great Bryan campaign and the gold standard assured, to the lasting benefit of the United States. The depression of the last two years revived many of the delusive arguments as to the benefits to be derived from inflation. Silver sympathizers have been active in an endeavor to revive the romantic interest in the white metal, inaugurating a campaign that attributed to it inherent qualities that would work miracles of prosperity and recovery of foreign trade.

With the departure of Great Britain from the gold standard the silverites redoubled their efforts to expound the necessity of this country taking a similar step to adulterate its money. As in times past, the temporary interest in the exaggerated claims put forth by inflationists wanes as the facts of trade and the workings of economic laws are studied by those who previously had little occasion to look into them.

One of the most frequently repeated misconceptions is that the trade of countries on the silver standard, and which are large consumers of silver, is adversely affected because of a decline in the purchasing power of silver. But China and India do not pay for imports with silver. They pay with the credit established by exports sent to other countries. Exports and consequent credits are stimulated by cheap silver. It may be argued that this condition is prejudicial to the best interests of the silver country, but it does not generally affect adversely that country's foreign trade.

Last year's trade with China confirms the working of these economic laws. Notwithstanding all the internal trouble in that country the advantageous exchange rates resulted in larger purchases from gold currency countries, and with the proceeds of these sales China purchased more foreign goods for import. The decrease in China's purchases of American goods last year was only one-third as great as the decline in the total of American exports.

The world production and consumption of silver last year confirmed the fact that silver has reached its proper status as a commodity. Supply and demand were influenced by conditions in a world suffering from the depression, just as other commodities were affected by the same situation. Silver production last year, amounting to 196,100,000 ounces, was the lowest in ten years, and a decrease of 20.5 per cent from last year. The consumption of silver during the last year was 59,500,000 ounces greater than production, the difference being furnished largely by sales from Indian and Siam. India's consumption of silver last year declined 40 per cent and China's more than 50 per cent.

COMPANY TIMES.

When Ma's expecting company
She gets all hot and fluttery,
And says: "Oh, me! Oh, my! Oh, dear!
Get busy now or they'll be here
Before we've swept and shined the stairs
And dusted all the parlor chairs!
Good gracious It is half-past one,
And I've still got my apron on!"

When Ma is going to entertain
Her club, coz it's her turn again,
She sends us children out to play
And asks us kindly please to stay
An' not come runnin' in an' out
Or hang around the door an' shout.
She doesn't want her friends to see
How big a nuisance we can be.

When Ma's expecting company
The neighbors all come in to see
Just how she's fixed the parlor chairs
An' where they'll leave their wraps upstairs,
An' how the curtains drape, an' they Stand 'round an' talk, till Ma says: "Hey!
Get out of here. It's half-past one!
An' I've still got my apron on!"

It Is No Kindness to Save a Man's Life By Breaking His Spirit

By ROBERT QUILLEN

RESENT and deny the fact as you will, the people of America are divided into class-conscious social groups.

The division isn't arbitrary or snobbish. It is a natural division, made by circumstance, and seldom gives or takes offense.

So long as birth, environment and training combine to make one person differ from another, people will choose to associate with those most like themselves, and thus will form distinct groups, each having rules, standards and customs peculiar to itself.

Failure to recognize a fact so clearly apparent is absurd and inexcusable, and often results in grave injustices.

Observe, for example, the cruelty of "charity work" that regards the need of two families as proof of their equality and makes no allowance for the pride and social position of the well-bred poor.

In normal times there is no provision for the white-collar poor. A man who works in overalls can take his wife to a maternity ward. She will receive the best that medical science can give, and the cost will not exceed $25. The taxpayer pays most of the bill. But a white-collar poor man must have a room, a nurse and a special physician for his wife, and his baby costs him something in the neighborhood of $500.

The white-collar man may earn less than the other, but he can't share society's provision for the poor. That kind of "charity" would shame him before his kind, cost him social prestige and possibly injure his career.

Call it snobbishness if you wish. Say that he should swallow his pride or pay for it without whining. That doesn't alter facts or change human nature.

In times like these there are thousands of middle-class families, formerly well-to-do, that suffer for want of the bare necessities of life, and yet are too proud to let their plight be known.

Their spirits must break before they accept charity, and they never again will lift their heads.

In the name of mercy, let them save their decent pride. Give them opportunity to earn their bread. It is a chance they want, not charity.

It is a strange form of kindness that withholds alms until proud heads bow in confession of defeat.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Senator Johnson's Great Service.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

While disagreeing with Senator Johnson's opposition to the moratorium, we are far from agreeing that the Senate Finance Committee has done the bankers an injustice in investigating foreign loans.

As a matter of fact, Senator Johnson, who has chiefly prosecuted the inquiry, has rendered a great public service. The country was aware that immense sums of money had been lent to foreign countries after the war. It could not be otherwise. When the United States was a debtor country, vast loans were made over here by the English, French, Belgians and Hollanders. The war left the United States with a wealth beyond its domestic needs. The thing to do was to put that wealth to work among debtor nations, which was what we did.

But, except for Senator Johnson, however mistaken he might have been in opposing the moratorium, we would not know how some of these foreign loans were made, the discreditable part played in them by our State Department, and the hollow fashion in which our bankers sometimes took their own greedy share and left investors to hold the bag. If something still remains hidden that the people should know, we hope to see the committee dig it out.

Political Bees Buzz.

Houston Post-Dispatch.

The political bees are beginning to swarm in Texas, but few have yet settled upon a place to light. On the whole, they're still up in the air.

A remarkable Garner-for-President sentiment seems to be sweeping the State and even manifesting itself in Washington and elsewhere. There is no doubt that he will be Texas' candidate, and possibly a serious contender. Nationally, what with the division of sentiment among the other major candidates and the consequent possibility of a deadlock in the national convention.

Former State Senator Tom Love, leader of the anti-Smith forces that put Hoover over in Texas in 1928, has served notice that Garner's standing with him and his school of thought will depend upon Garner's stand upon the prohibition question. It is not recalled that the popular new Speaker from Uvalde has ever committed himself against the dry laws; but whatever his position, he probably will be the favorite-son choice of the Texas delegation, and he or any other Democrat who might be nominated for President will probably carry Texas and the "solid South" this year. Conditions have changed since 1928.

What Johnson Might Do. . . .

Springfield Republican.

Senator Hiram Johnson's hesitation in responding to the invitation of the North Dakota senators to oppose President Hoover's renomination with his own candidacy may be prolonged. It is not at all improbable that by declaring himself a candidate the senator would defeat the President in a number of Western primaries and also in California, the home State of both men. Yet no one of sound and trained political judgment concedes that Senator Johnson could hope to control the national convention and prevent the President's renomination. His efforts would accomplish nothing but to advertise the divisions in the Republican party and expose still more its weakness in the approaching presidential election.

A third party, it is being said again, may emerge. In a period of political confusion, with widespread and profound discontents, an insurgent presidential candidate in opposition to the Republican and Democratic tickets could surprise no one.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Miss Burke Voices the Bewilderment of Many Who Wonder What It's All About.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Maybe I am dense or hypersensitive, but this up-to-date, improved civilization of ours is too much for my mental processes and nerve. The news of the day is for me a cross-word puzzle. If I go into a picture show hoping, faintly, for diversion I come forth feeling stunned. The radio adds to my confusion with its propaganda and its crooners and announcers.

And now today a member of Congress (from Missouri, of course) gets up and demands to be shown: "Will the gentleman give us some information as to the wealth of the President?" But, what is that his business is my query. Does he think this is Russia?

We hear prophecies from able men on the impending downfall of civilization. But if I have the right meaning of the word, it has already fallen down, the higher civilization. And if this uproar goes on, by our next election we shall be wishing we had a President. Washington is full of conventions talking their heads off just like Communists. And Mr. Dawes says this is not a talking job. So I will proceed to hush my mouth. But not with apologies, as I have the support of recognized authorities along this line of thought.

HINDA BURKE.

Suggests That Old Government Employes Be Retired to Create Jobs for Young People.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is high time that Government retire a vast number of old employes who have served between 30 and 40 years. Many have worked over 40 years. Adequate compensation should be provided for these veteran employes in order that they would be glad to retire and make room for the younger generation who are walking the streets now looking for work.

Government offices are filled with feeble old people while healthy, eager young people are unable to find employment. What's to become of them?

If all those old enough from the point of view of both service and years are retired, it will help to give employment to hundreds who are now unemployed.

G. W.

Rev. Mr. McAdie Defends Right of Preachers to Keep Tab on Politics.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me to say a word of emphatic protest to statements made by prominent Democrats at the recent Washington so-called "Victory" dinner! As one who has often voted the Democratic ticket, as a war veteran, and as a preacher I protest against Mr. Cox's deliberate reflection upon the honesty of the clergy, when he demanded that "political ecclesiastics be sent back to their pulpits (from Washington, I presume!) so that the truth may go to the people on the issue of prohibition!"

Now by what right does this spokesman of "liberty" dare to exclude preachers from rights enjoyed by all the political hacks of both parties? And if he wishes to know (which I doubt!), those preachers who keep tab on politicians and politics are there just because we have no confidence in political demagogues. Further, it is not the "political ecclesiastics" whom Mr. Cox has most reason to fear; it is just those preachers who are "back in their pulpits," pulpits which they would not be occupying unless their honesty and veracity were held at a much higher estimate than statements made by time-serving politicians.

To prove this demagogic habit of the latter class one has merely to listen to Al Smith's assertion that we "are missing billions that would come in taxation" (with the legalizing of the liquor traffic)! Here is a sample of "the truth" about prohibition so ardently demanded by the Ohioan wet, a statement so palpably absurd that one wonders if Mr. Smith really said it. If Mr. Smith will look up the tax receipt records of the liquor traffic he will see how such an assertion is either a joke or a deliberate effort to deceive the public.

I am a firm believer in letting the majority rule, but I have nothing but contempt for those who, claiming liberty for themselves, would deny it to others, and who do not hesitate to besmirch a large body of the clergy as well as to deceive the public with frothy exaggerations.

Federal Employe States the Case in Regard to Pay of Stenographers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I say a few words in defense of the Government employe in reply to the various comments as to civil service soft snaps, average salary of $2,000, &c., anent the pay cut? I feel I have had my share of pay cuts. As a per diem employe, after the war I had over $400 per year deducted from my salary, and again some years later $120 per year from my pay in order that I might have a higher grade and thus a "better chance for promotion." After eleven years (ups and downs; mostly downs) in the service, my salary is now $1,560, which, after paying my bills, if I am fortunate enough, leaves very little for the luxuries mentioned by one of our friends, to say nothing of laying something by for an emergency or for old age. I could not work until the retirement age (70 years) as no one in the service or outside would consider employing a stenographer anywhere near that age.

STENO.

Brief, but Impressive Tribute to the Late William Knowles Cooper.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I do not believe it is an exaggeration to say that William Knowles Cooper will be missed by more men, and more classes of men, than any who have died in this city during this generation.

MILLS BACKS RELIEF IDEA OF ECONOMISTS

Government Economy, Tax Boost and More Credit Factors in Plan.

Administration approval of a program advanced by leading economists to bring about business revival, restore values, increase employment and strengthen banks was given yesterday by Ogden L. Mills, Undersecretary of the Treasury.

As outlined for the Associated Press last week by Warren M. Persons, widely known economist, it calls for:

Enactment of the Federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation to deal more effectively with emergency situations;

Increased taxation and proper economy in municipal, State and Federal expenditures;

A liberal Federal Reserve policy, designed to check credit contraction and encourage some expansion, and Termed Blow to Slump.

A commercial bank policy cooperating with the reserve banks in checking credit decreases and encouraging increases.

In an interview at the Treasury yesterday afternoon, Mr. Mills saw the program as one based on sound principles that should strongly influence an upward trend of business, if given the full hearted cooperation of industry and the financial world. In it he felt there was embodied much that he has urged.

The plan was evolved after two months of interchange of opinion among leading economists in this country. Mr. Mills restricted his approval only to its outline and the principles involved, inasmuch as he had not time to go into the details.

Favors Independent Action.

The economists' contention that general contraction of credit and deflation of prices has gone far enough was indorsed by the Undersecretary. He also agreed that business recovery could be brought about in this country without waiting for solution of Europe's difficulties, and upon a sound money basis without recourse to monetary panaceas.

Mr. Mills has maintained just as did the economists, that the present situation will not cure itself, but requires prompt, intelligent and vigorous action. The recommendation that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation be established forthwith is a feature that the administration has been working for, and Mills has repeatedly urged that municipalities, States and the National Government adopt strict economy budgets.

He seconded the plea that a reserve bank policy be adopted to check credit contraction, and encourage some expansion.

CONFEREES REACH ACCORD ON GIGANTIC FINANCE PLAN

its capital, this could be expanded to $200,000,000.

Senator Walcott said, however, the Secretary of Agriculture had informed him that only $50,000,000 actually would be needed. Preference is to be given those who suffered crop failures in 1931.

Six thousand miles of interstate electric railways, as well as steam railroads, will be eligible for loans, the Senate having yielded to the House on this point.

Victory in Elimination.

A victory for the Senate, and for Senator Glass individually, was elimination of a House provision that the debendtures of the corporation should be eligible for Federal Reserve rediscount.

The quarterly reports of the corporation are required to show the names and compensation of all persons employed by it whose salary exceeds $400 a month.

Loans to exporters of "agricultural and other products" under a $500,000,000 limitation, are provided for.

A "blanket" provision for loans to "other bona fide financial institutions," contained in the House version, came out under Senate objections that this would permit the National Credit Association, a private banking pool formed several months ago, to "unload" its loans on the corporation.

Institutions Eligible For Fiscal Assistance

(Associated Press.)

Here are the institutions eligible for loans by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation:

Federal and State banks, savings banks, trust companies, building and loan associations, insurance companies, mortgage loan companies, credit unions, Federal land banks, joint stock land banks, Federal intermediate credit banks, agricultural and live stock credit corporations; also interstate steam and electricity railways, exporters and farmers.

As defined by Senator Walcott (Republican), Connecticut, one of its authors, its purpose is to "lift their unliquid collateral and substitute cash therefor in order to aid in financing agriculture, commerce and industry and to facilitate the exportation of agricultural and other products."

BRITAIN DELAYS DEBT PARLEY; CONFERENCE MAY NOT BE HELD

who owe allegiance to Christ in this country, and, so far as our words can reach them, in other countries, to use their influence for cancellation of reparations payments and international war debts."

The document contrasts the "easy terms" accorded to defeated France by the congress of Vienna after the Napoleonic wars with the treatment given Germany at the end of the World War.

A "spirit of vengeance prevailed at Versailles," the document says, "in particular, the reparations imposed upon Germany in spite of her urgent protests that they were impracticable and unjust have been abundantly proved to have been both and have had consequences disastrous alike to the victors and vanquished."

Germany Again Cites Revision Delay's Danger

Berlin, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Germany held today to the contention that any delay in easing its reparations burden would be dangerous to the world's economic situation. The German attitude remained unchanged, despite the announcement from London that the Lausanne reparations conference could not meet next Monday as tentatively planned.

The announcement did not surprise official quarters in Berlin, in view of the earlier suggestion from France that the conference be postponed and the Hoover moratorium on Germany's payments be extended another six months or one year, providing the United States gave Germany's European creditors a moratorium on their war debts.

The German standpoint is that the Reich's perilous economic situation does not permit such palliative measures as an extension of the moratorium, and that only a final settlement can have the desired effect, Germany having notified the world it could not pay reparations even after the moratorium.

Germany could accept no commitments beyond next June 30, when the present moratorium will expire, authoritative quarters said. They thought the next five months should suffice for the search for a final solution, but pointed out that every day lost meant a continuation of the tension and uncertainty which was a principal factor in the world crisis.

Paris, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—News from London that the Lausanne reparations conference apparently would have to be postponed was received without comment tonight as following the views already expressed by France.

Postponement of the conference had been expected here. French official circles had expressed all along the opinion that it would be preferable for signatories of the Young plan, under which Germany's reparations payments are scheduled, to meet only when there was a prospect or agreement on a new solution of the problem raised by Germany's declared incapacity to pay.

MANCHURIA HOLDING KEY TO PEACE, JAPANESE SAYS

bombing of the Japanese-owned South Manchuria Railway.)

"Manchuria holds the key to peace in the Far East. This was true before the Russo-Japanese war; it is even more true at present. In the past Japan always has done everything in its power to prevent civil commotion in China from spreading to Manchuria because we possess there important rights and interests rendering the maintenance of peace a matter of absolute necessity to Japan * * *

No Territorial Designs.

"In this connection I desire to make clear that Japan harbors no territorial designs in Manchuria and she will uphold the principles of the open door and equal opportunity as well as all existing treaties relating to that territory.

"What Japan desires is only to secure peace and order in Manchuria and to make that region safe, both for Chinese and foreigners, and to open it to all for economic development."

M. Yoshizawa then turned to conditions prevailing in China proper, saying that for many years anti-Japanese agitation had been carried on and that this agitation increased in violence after the outbreak of September 18. There was unmistakable evidence that the boycott of Japanese goods had been promoted by unofficial organizations, he added, "under the direct or indirect control of the Chinese government, but quite against the free will of the Chinese merchants and the people generally."

"Solutions of the issues involved between China and Japan must await a complete change of heart and reversal of Chinese policy. I am convinced the Chinese people as a whole and their enlightened leaders are not hostile, but, contrarily, are in their hearts amicably disposed toward Japan, and we need not be overpessimistic as to the prospects for restoration of normal relations."

Shock Caused at Geneva.

Referring to the "considerable shock" caused in Geneva by the Manchurian outbreak, the foreign minister recalled the request of Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese delegate, that the League of Nations take cognizance of it, whereupon the question officially was made a subject of investigation by the council, which subsequently held three sessions and passed two resolutions.

"On the other hand," he continued, "the United States, although not a member, acted generally in concert with the league, evidently because, as a signatory to the antiwar pact and the nine-power treaty, America felt deep concern in the Far East situation.

Better Understanding.

"Our government exercised its utmost efforts to make its position clear both to the league and to America. Although there have been occasions when the present incident seemed to lead Japan into more or less delicate relations with the league and with America, we have succeeded through careful and complete presentation of our case in bringing both to a better appreciation of Japan's position and of the vital interests she possesses in Manchuria."

Turning to the question of the disarmament conference, the foreign minister said Japan had formed definite plans and given definite instructions to the Japanese representatives now en route to Geneva.

"This momentous conference is the first to be held whose deliberations will cover the entire field of armament, involving land, sea and air forces, and the world is looking eagerly forward to its outcome," he said.

Hoping for Results.

"So far as Japan is concerned, we will, of course, strive to carry our points, but at all events we earnestly hope the conference will bring forth tangible results which shall be alike rational and equitable and so contribute to the establishment of permanent peace throughout the world."

The foreign minister's paragraph regarding Russia was: "Toward the U. S. S. R., which steadily has maintained an attitude of impartiality and noninterference in the present affair, I desire to express the satisfaction of the Japanese government."

(Associated Press.)

Antipathy between Japanese and Chinese in Shanghai culminated in a bloody battle yesterday, in which two persons were killed and many were injured.

Investigations of the clash were started by the authorities of the foreign settlement and the Japanese consulate, and from the large Japanese colony of the city came threatening rumblings.

Five American and five Canadian airmen, lured to China by stories of $1,000-a-month jobs piloting military airplanes, were stranded without money in Shanghai. Chinese authorities said they weren't hiring any fighting help.

Drives Against "Bandits."

In Manchuria Japan pushed ahead with a series of operations against "bandits."

Meanwhile Tokyo prepared for the dissolution of the diet at today's opening session. A call for a general election was expected, made necessary by the fact that Premier Inukai, in power only about a month, has a minority backing in the Parliament.

League of Nations officials, commenting on reports that China intended to invoke against Japan the league covenant provisions for economic boycott and military action, said technicalities would prevent any such action.

or liturgical characteristics of the other, but implies that each believes the other to hold the essentials of Christian faith."

The action taken by the Canterbury convocation began in 1930 at the Lambeth Conference of Bishops of the Anglican Church. As an outgrowth of that conference there was a meeting at Bonn last July between representatives of the Anglican communion and the old Catholic churches, the Bishop of Gloucester presiding.

Subsequently, the old Catholic congress at Vienna resolved that intercommunion should be permitted between members of the old Catholic churches and of the Anglican communion.

CONFERENCE IS HELD BY LEGION AUXILIARY

Objectives Are Discussed at District Group Meeting in Alexandria.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The annual conference of the Eighth District, American Legion Auxiliary, Department of Virginia, was held in Alexandria yesterday at the George Mason Hotel, presided over by Mrs. D. W. Kelley, of Culpeper, district committeewoman.

Mrs. B. M. Roszel, of Winchester, Va., department president, stressed the importance of membership as a force to carry on relief work for the service men and their families. The meeting opened with luncheon at 12:30 o'clock, with Mrs. Margaret F. Bailey, president of the local unit, in charge. She opened the meeting with a welcome from the Alexandria group. Mrs. Kelley introduced Mrs. Roszel. A short talk on the forthcoming convention in this city of the American Legion and Auxiliary was given by Past Department Commander F. Clinton Knight.

Delegates were present and gave reports from the auxiliary units of Warrenton, Culpeper, Clarendon and Alexandria. Mrs. Kelley presented to Mrs. DeLana L. Robertson, president of the Clarendon unit, the award for the largest number of new members obtained prior to December 1. The meeting went on record as commending the resolution of Alexandria Post, No. 24, that all public school teachers be required to take the oath of allegiance to the Constitution of the United States when they assume their duties as teacher.

Mrs. W. G. Trow, of Warrenton, was selected district committeewoman, to succeed Mrs. Kelley, and Mrs. Charles M. Shepperson, of Alexandria, alternate district committeewoman, to succeed Mrs. Trow, these appointments to be confirmed at the next department convention, to be held in Alexandria in August, 1932. An invitation was extended by Clarendon for the next conference.

At a meeting of the Drum and Bugle Corps, of Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion, following a dinner at the Belvoir Hotel, a committee, with J. J. Young as chairman, was appointed to look into the possibility of staging a minstrel show by the drum corps. Ed Williams was also appointed chairman of a committee to investigate the possibility of establishing an American Legion orchestra.

The drum corps accepted the invitation to participate in the parade on February 22. Dr. Howard L. Arnold was guest speaker.

Partnership Snarl Is Taken to Court

Equity Suit Filed to Clear Prince Georges Firm's Cash Matters.

Asking that the Prince Georges County Circuit Court clear up the financial affairs of a partnership formed in 1925 and dissolve the firm, Joseph H. Rogers, of Hyattsville, yesterday filed an equity suit against Dr. Thomas E. Latimer, of the same town.

Mr. Rogers, through Attorney Robert W. McCullough, says that he agreed to furnish the direction while Latimer was to furnish the money and lots for a building project. The profits were to be divided evenly. At a cost of about $80,000, 21 houses were built and sold for about $128,000, the bill says. After this was done, Latimer asked for the books kept by Rogers and would not return them, the plaintiff says.

Since then, Mr. Rogers says, Dr. Latimer has offered to turn over some real estate to him to settle the affairs of the partnership, but this offer was refused. He asks that Latimer be ordered to answer the bill and produce the books.

Prince Georges Timber Deal Is Aired in Court

A dispute arising over a timber deal in Prince Georges County was aired yesterday when an equity suit was filed in the circuit court by George W. Buck against Joseph A. Darneille, of Capitol Heights. Buck asked an injunction restraining Darneille from entering the woods in question and an order for him to answer the bill of complaint filed against him.

Buck's bill, filed through Attorney Lansdale G. Sasscer, says that he sold to Darneille the timber on Bellfield farm, near Croome, for $1,400. Darneille was to pay $150 every three weeks, and did actually pay $565, the bill states. Nearly all the timber has been taken, it goes on, the supply being "practically depleted," and $835 is still owing, however.

MRS. E. KERRICK DIES.

Alexandria Widow Is Survived By Seven Children and Brother.

Mrs. Elizabeth Kerrick, widow of Hugh L. Kerrick, of Fauquier County, Va., died yesterday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary Priest, 1714 Duke street, Alexandria. She is survived by the following children: Mrs. Priest, H. W. Kerrick, W. P. Kerrick and M. F. Kerrick, of Alexandria; Mrs. Joseph W. Reeves, of Fort Worth; Mrs. L. E. Spittle, of Cleveland, and Mrs. Annie Numeler, of Washington, and a brother, R. E. Allen, of Harrisonburg, Va. The deceased was the daughter of the late Lionel Brawson and Catherine Skelton Allen; of Warren County, Va.

Proposed Removal Of School Opposed

Shift of Navy Institution to Pacific Coast Is Rapped by Representative.

(Associated Press.)

The proposed transfer of the Navy Post-Graduate School from Annapolis, Md., to the Pacific Coast, will be studied by the House naval committee.

In making this announcement yesterday the chairman of the committee and the ranking Republican representatives, Vinson, of Georgia, and Britten, of Illinois, indicated they would oppose any change.

Rear Admiral F. B. Upham, chief of the Navy's navigation bureau, which supervises the Naval Academy, told the committee the Navy was making a study of the suggested transfer, but had reached no decision.

"Well, if it's going to be moved, I want to put in a claim for Chicago University," Britten said.

Chairman Vinson asked that the Navy withhold its report until the committee had time to hold hearings on the question.

BUDGET CONSIDERED BY SCHOOL BOARD

Reduction in Year's Total Is Anticipated by Group in Fairfax.

The School Board of Fairfax County, Va., met yesterday at the county courthouse to consider financial questions attendant on the preparation of the annual budget.

Members of the board stated yesterday that while it is expected there will be slight increases in some items the total of next year's budget will probably be less than the previous year.

A resolution was adopted asking the approval of the judge of the county circuit court in the investment of sinking funds collected to retire the several school bond issues.

The county school board has collected approximately $25,000 toward the total. These funds have been placed in the Falls Church Bank in a savings account.

The Fairfax County Teachers Association presented a resolution adopted at its last meeting asking the board to consider granting teachers cumulative sick leave amounting to fifteen days spread over a period of three years. Under existing regulations teachers are granted but five days' sick leave with pay each year.

Another resolution petitioned establishment of the teacher tenure plan advocated by prominent educators. Under such a plan adequate regulations would be passed governing the appointment of teachers. Each new teacher would be first appointed for a probationary period at the expiration of which they would be permanently appointed for a definite period of tenure.

A third petition stated that the present plan of State-aid school libraries was inoperative a large part of the school year because of lack of funds. They asked for an increase in the annual appropriation.

The school board yesterday laid all three petitions on the table to be considered February 5. Yesterday's meeting was continued until today.

Legion Auxiliary Installs Officers

Mrs. Lee Thompson Head of Group in Rockville; Reception Follows.

Officers of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Henderson-Smith-Edmonds Post of the American Legion, of Rockville, Md., were installed last night at exercises in the Montgomery County Club at Rockville. Mrs. Helen P. Weedon, southern Maryland district chairman, installed the new officers.

The new officers are: Mrs. Lee Thompson, president; Mrs. Dorothy I. Sheads, vice president; Miss Lucy Smith, secretary; Mrs. Arthur Thompson, treasurer; Mrs. Weedon, sergeant-at-arms; Mrs. Lucy S. Smith, chaplain; Mrs. Philip W. Gates, historian. Among the honor guests were: Mrs. Conrad, Maryland department president; Mrs. Hils Binger, department secretary; Miss May Derkin, past department president, all of Baltimore, and Mrs. Susie I. Remsberg, of Frederick, past department commander.

The installation was followed by a reception and social program in charge of Miss Mary R. Pumphrey, Mrs. Harold C. Smith and Mrs. Louis Ryan. Refreshments were in charge of Mrs. Philip Gates.

Sentence of Faircloth Is Upheld by Court

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 20.—Sentence of John G. Faircloth, former president of the Mayflower Publishing Co. of Washington, to fifteen months at Atlanta for aiding and abetting the misapplication of funds of the First National Bank of Mount Rainier, Md., was upheld today by the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit.

Faircloth was found guilty of the charge last May by a jury in the United States District Court and sentenced by Judge William C. Coleman. Word of the appeals court action was received here by Simon E. Sobeloff, United States attorney, who prosecuted Faircloth.

Maryland Officials Test McBride Slaying Confession

Authenticity of a confession purporting to have been made by one of the men concerned in the Barney McBride murder in 1922 is being tested by Prince Georges County officials who have wired to a Middle Western State to check up on names given in the admission.

According to Deputy Sheriff Tom Garrison, he got the confession second-hand. One of the three men said to have been connected with the murder of the wealthy Indian is supposed to have confessed to a friend living in Prince Georges County. This friend then called Garrison and told him of the first man's statement. The confession gives the names of all three men concerned in the murder, tells where it was committed, and gives robbery as the motive, the officer said. If the man named as the actual murderer is living where the confession says he is, Garrison said, an arrest will be made.

McBride, who had come to Washington in connection with Government oil lands he owned, was found dead in a culvert near Meadows, Md., ten years ago. His skull had been beaten in, after a gunnysack had been pulled over his head and tied tightly around his neck. His valuables were missing, and were never located, although Maryland, District and Federal authorities worked on the case for months.

CAB ROBBERY SERIES IS BELIEVED SOLVED

Man Seized in Brickhaven Will Face Washington Driver Today.

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST,
Tel. Clar. 309. Clarendon, Va.

The recent series of taxicab robberies in Arlington County has been cleared up by the arrest of Chick Albrook, colored, Sheriff Howard B. Fields said yesterday. Albrook will be confronted today by C. W. Bockover, of 27 Seventh street northeast, a cab driver held up on December 15.

Albrook has admitted being in a taxi the night of this robbery, Sheriff Fields said, but denies he knows anything about a gun being used. In addition to being linked with the Bockover holdup, he has been identified by two other persons who have been held up in the county, authorities say.

Albrook was arrested early yesterday near Lyon's Row, in Brickhaven, by Officers James D. East, William H. Thompson, Vernon Wilt and Ernest Miller.

A resolution opposing destruction of the Eighth Congressional District of Virginia, contemplated in a bill to be introduced in the General Assembly, was adopted by the Ashton Heights Citizens Association last night, and the executive committee of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce will meet today to plan its opposition to the measure.

Copies of the association's resolution were to be sent at once to Representative Howard W. Smith, State Senator John W. Rust and Delegate Huge Reid. Action of the Ashton Heights group follows the objection already registered by the Lee Heights Citizens Association. The Chamber of Commerce Committee will meet at 12:30 o'clock in the Rucker Building in Clarendon.

The executive committee of the Arlington County Civic Federation meets tonight at the home of Mrs. Ruby G. Simpson, Military road, Cherrydale, to consider the measure.

Charles K. Brown, of Staunton, Va., district governor of the Fifty-sixth Rotary District in Virginia, will speak at the Interclub dinner meeting this evening at Washington-Lee High School at 6:30 o'clock. Large delegations are expected from Alexandria, Warrenton, Leesburg, Fairfax and Arlington.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Stonewall Jackson School will meet in the school auditorium tonight at 8 o'clock. A special Robert E. Lee program will be presented by the pupils.

Phillip B. Dorsey, 67, Dies at Charles Town

Special to The Washington Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., Jan. 20.—Phillip B. Dorsey, 67, died at his home here after a three-day illness. He had been a stock and grain dealer here for many years, entering the trade when 12. He had retired two years ago because of ill health.

Surviving are five children: Mrs. Norman Weller, Washington; Mrs. C. P. Weller, of this city; Paul, Frank and Dorsey, all living here. One brother, Claggett, and one sister, Mrs. Nettie Smootz, of Hyattsville, Md., also survive. Funeral services were held this afternoon with burial here.

ing a .32-caliber long-barreled revolver was found on a bridge about a mile from the Waters store on the road to Rockville. While police admitted it may have been thrown from an automobile carrying the gunmen, they said it apparently had not been fired. It was turned over to Theodore Vollten, fingerprint expert of the state's attorney office, for examination.

Shortly after midnight, another colored man was arrested, but at that time police refused to reveal his connection with the case.

George Owens, who lives near the Waters store at Old Germantown, told police he saw a strange touring car parked about 100 yards away from the store a few minutes before the shooting. He was on his way home, however, and did not hear the shot.

The slaying was executed with a .45-caliber automatic gun, police said. A slug of that caliber was found on the floor and is believed to have been the shot that made the wound in Mr. Waters' hip. Tow shells were found.

Mr. Waters is survived by his widow, three daughters and two sons, including H. Dorsey Waters, clerk in the Census Bureau, of Washington.

There Is an Irresistible Smartness and Freshness in

Frocks with Irish Lace
$19.50
Others $16.50 to $29.50

The revival of the old-fashioned Irish crochet lace is quite the newest and smartest of dress fashions. Black and blue frocks are punctuated with the fresh and charming quality that is typical of Irish crochet lace. Pastel crepe frocks have their lace dyed to match. In fact, Irish crocheted lace finds its smart way to such important points of accent as the higher necklines and interesting new sleeves. All of these frocks have that delightful newness so refreshing for in-between-season wear.

Hay-Adams House Sold for $602,300

Edward L. Brady Acquires Hotel at Auction; Is Sole Bidder.

The Hay-Adams House, eight-story, apartment hotel at the northwest corner of Sixteenth and H streets northwest, was sold at auction yesterday for $602,300 to Edward L. Brady, sole bidder and representative of lenders on the first trust.

It was announced that the fee simple title of the property was sold subject to a 99-year lease, and incumbrances secured on the lease are not affected by the foreclosure. The hotel, it was stated, will continue under present management, which has option until April, 1945, to purchase the property for $600,000. The sale had been postponed from January 6 because of inclement weather on that date. Adam A. Weschler was the auctioneer.

The building, of brick, tile and stone, was erected in 1927, the Wardman Construction Co. being the builder and original owner, and M. Mesrobian the architect. The structure is approximately 123 feet wide and nearly 99 feet deep.

Subsequent owners are listed in District Building records as L. Gardner Moore and Henry J. Robb and Alice Hay Wadsworth. Current assessed valuation of land and building is now placed at $1,324,402. The original estimated cost of the building is listed at $900,000.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

In broadcasting, 1931 was marked by extraordinary prosperity among the stations, and great increases in station valuations, according to O. H. Caldwell, of New York, former Radio Commissioner.

"A 500-watt station sold for $900,000 during the year," Mr. Caldwell declared, "and 5-KW stations were held as high as $7,000,000. Increasing expenditures for programs reflect this 'boom' condition. In 1931 $35,000,000 was spent for talent alone; in 1932, this sum will be increased to $40,000,000."

The Veterans of Foreign Wars, assisted by Paul Whiteman, Rudy Vallee, Odette Myrtil and the United States Marine Band, will start the organization's national membership drive over the air tomorrow night (WRC, 11:30).

Representative Wright Patman, of Texas, champion of World War veterans in congressional battles for adjusted compensation, will be the chief speaker. He is to discuss the soldiers' bonus. Among others to be heard is Admiral Robert E. Coontz, senior vice commander-in-chief of the V. F. W. Herluf Provensen will be master of ceremonies.

The addresses and the Marine Band's music will originate in the auditorium of the National Press Club, here in Washington.

The chairman of the House radio committee, Hon. Ewin L. Davis, of Tennessee, will address WJSV's audience on the subject, "Radio Benefits," at 8:30 tonight.

A LARGE library of data on birthdays of world figures famous in literature, music, drama, politics and other fields has been collected by Cheerio, who broadcasts over WRC at 8:30 o'clock each morning except Sunday.

Research experts have worked for months in some of the foremost libraries, including the Congressional Library in Washington, to gather the birthday dates, says Cheerio.

Each day of the Cheerio program, world figures whose birthdays fall on the day of the broadcast, are imaginary guests at Cheerio's studio breakfast, and compositions or excerpts from their creative works are given. Cheerio himself is an indefatigable worker in gathering biographical information.

Light Opera Gems will celebrate its second anniversary with a special program of selections from the various operas which have proved most successful on the air, during the broadcast tomorrow afternoon (WMAL, 4 o'clock).

Entering its third year of weekly broadcasts, the feature is being restored to the 45-minute period. The cast of these presentations has varied from four to sixteen voices, depending upon the opera produced. Rhoda Arnold, soprano; Helen Nugent, contralto; Earl Palmer, tenor, and Crane Calder, bass, have appeared regularly on the programs. Channon Collinge directs.

A GERMAN love song, "Auf Wiedersehen, My Dear," and "How Can You Say You Love Me" will be offered by Alex Gray, barytone, tonight (WMAL, 10:30 o'clock). Nat Shilkret's orchestra will play his arrangement of "Ay Que Me Vengo," a rumba, and "Valse Mirage."

Bernie Cummins' Orchestra, playing at the Washington and Lee University fancy dress ball, will be picked up from Lexington, Va., as a part of the Lucky Strike dance hour a week from tonight.

The Street Singer will include a medley of popular Southern airs in his selections for the program heard here at 9 o'clock over WMAL tomorrow night. He will sing "The Desert Song" and the "Chloe" also.

Announcement is made by Yolande Langworthy that she has amicably settled her differences with Columbia with regard to the program known as "Arabesque." Columbia intends to continue its radio presentation of that program indefinitely.

THE largest music class in the world—said to number more than 6,500,000 pupils, is conducted by Walter Damrosch. Tomorrow morning (WRC, 11 o'clock) he will explain to his young hearers the overture and rhythm in music.

Beatrice Lillie, English musical comedy star, will be the guest of Rudy Vallee and his Connecticut Yankees tonight (WRC, 8 o'clock). Ray Perkins continues as master of ceremonies.

Buddy Rogers, barytone and motion picture star, will be guest artist with Leonard Joy's orchestra tomorrow night over the WJZ network. Rogers is going into the new Ziegfeld show, "It Never Rains," and is organizing his own orchestra.

SENATOR COUZENS, of Michigan, will be heard from if President Hoover sends the name of Col. Thad Brown to the Senate to succeed Judge Ira E. Robinson as Radio Commissioner.

"I do not regard Col. Brown as qualified for the position of radio commissioner," Senator Couzens declared. "He is being appointed because Mr. Hoover is under political obligation to him. I resent the idea of men to whom the President is under obligation being placed on administrative bodies through political patronage methods."

If Col. Brown is finally chosen, he will be found well versed in the political ways of Capitol Hill. This comes to the colonel naturally because he hails from a great old political State. He was formerly secretary of state of Ohio, having previously been chairman of the Ohio State Civil Service Commission. He became a candidate for Governor of Ohio on the Republican ticket, but lost out in the primaries.

Of portly build, Col. Brown is agreeable in demeanor and in the prime of life, having just celebrated his forty-fourth birthday anniversary. Although he has not been conspicuous by personal participation in radio cases, the legal division of the Radio Commission under his direction as general counsel, has made a good record for itself.

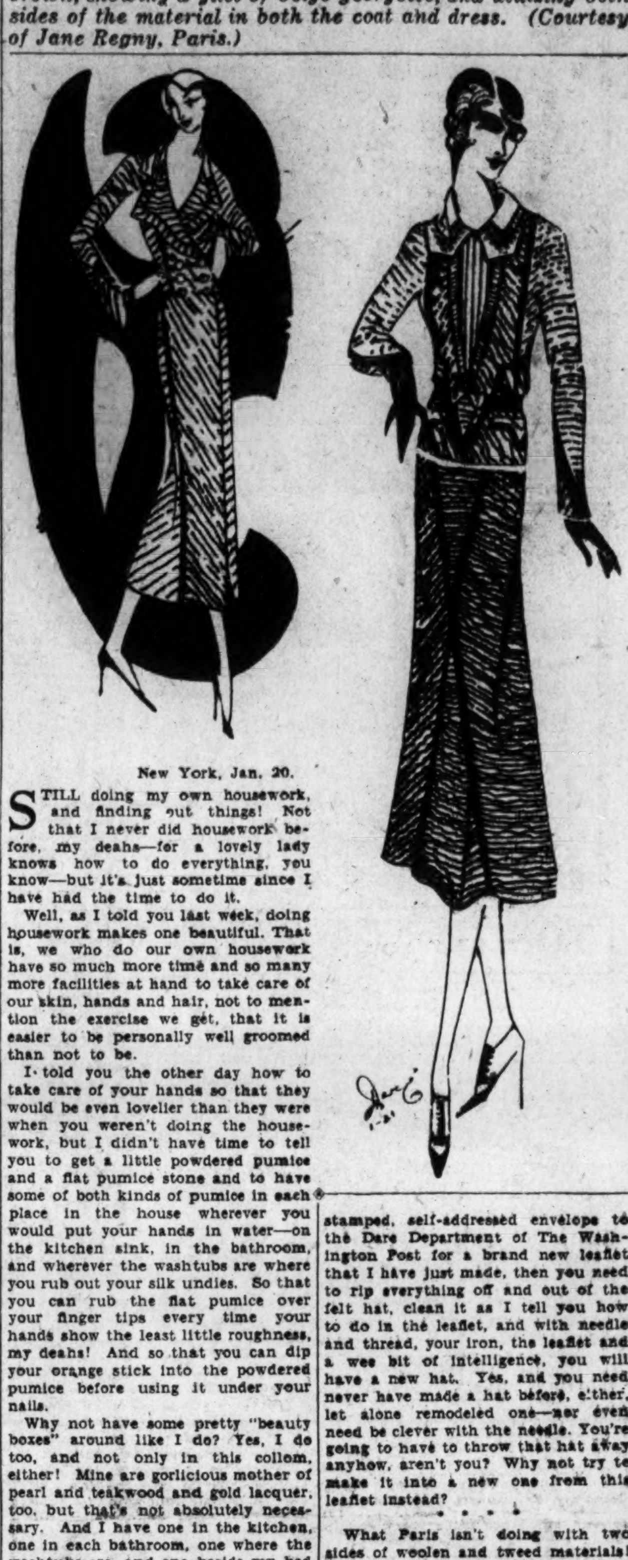
Dare INTERPRETS the MODE

A very smart ensemble in a woolen mixture of red and brown, showing a gilet of beige georgette, and utilizing both sides of the material in both the coat and dress. (Courtesy of Jane Regny, Paris.)



New York, Jan. 20.

STILL doing my own housework, and finding out things! Not that I never did housework before, my deahs—for a lovely lady knows how to do everything, you know—but it's just sometime since I have had the time to do it.

Well, as I told you last week, doing housework makes one beautiful. That is, we who do our own housework have so much more time and so many more facilities at hand to take care of our skin, hands and hair, not to mention the exercise we get, that it is easier to be personally well groomed than not to be.

I told you the other day how to take care of your hands so that they would be even lovelier than they were when you weren't doing the housework, but I didn't have time to tell you to get a little powdered pumice and a flat pumice stone and to have some of both kinds of pumice in each place in the house wherever you would put your hands in water—on the kitchen sink, in the bathroom, and wherever the washtubs are where you rub out your silk undies. So that you can rub the flat pumice over your finger tips every time your hands show the least little roughness, my deahs! And so that you can dip your orange stick into the powdered pumice before using it under your nails.

Why not have some pretty "beauty boxes" around like I do? Yes, I do too, and not only in this collom, either! Mine are gorlicious mother of pearl and teakwood and gold lacquer, too, but that's not absolutely necessary. And I have one in the kitchen, one in each bathroom, one where the washtubs are, and one beside my bed where my "night books" are. In each box, hidden from sight and little fingers, are a flattish bar of glycerin and rose water, orange sticks and a small nail file, a wee box of powdered pumice, a pumice stone, a tiny box of powder and a puff, a mirror and a lipstick. Does that sound far fetched? Well, it isn't—it's darn useful!

And if all the other lovely ladies who are doing their own housework now will watch this collom, I'll tell you something Saturday about the kind of dresses to wear while doing it, and another day, some more about housework making one beautiful.

What do you need for making over that three or four year old felt hat into a new, spiffy Paris model? Well-l-l-l-l, you need to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for a brand new leaflet that I have just made, then you need to rip everything off and out of the felt hat, clean it as I tell you how to do in the leaflet, and with needle and thread, your iron, the leaflet and a wee bit of intelligence, you will have a new hat. Yes, and you need never have made a hat before, either, let alone remodeled one—nor even need be clever with the needle. You're going to have to throw that hat away anyhow, aren't you? Why not try to make it into a new one from this leaflet instead?

What Paris isn't doing with two sides of woolen and tweed materials! Mamzelle selected the ensemble I sketched for you today from the house of Jane Regny in Paris to show you several chic notes, and what turning such materials as this ensemble is made of inside out does for them! Also to show you how a one-piece frock, simulating a two-piece outfit, can be worn with or without its matching coat, depending upon the weather. And note the handwork on the beige georgette gilet, and the brown kid belt with its gold buckle! Sorry I can't show you exactly how and where the material, which was brown and red and beige woolen, was used on either side.

Remember, I appreciate all requests for leaflets—what would you like me to make?

Au revoir.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

He Is a Reporter.

MY dear Frances McDonald:

I have found your column intensely interesting and very helpful, at times I wonder if you could help me.

I doubt if my problem is very puzzling to any one but myself, but I have thought about it a great deal and have come to no conclusion as yet. I don't believe in confiding to any one except by mother, and I rather hate to bring up this subject with her.

I am 19, and he is 21. We had been to the same Sunday school and church since we were children, but he didn't begin to notice me until two years ago this past fall. We were never very friendly; in fact I disliked him.

At the time he was a reporter on the biggest paper in town, and he had acquired the "nervy" manner of a good many reporters. That was one of the things mother objected to.

For two years he has been very nice to me, and has succeeded in making me love him. He doesn't go with other girls in spite of the fact that he now goes to the State college, which is coed. I know this, and not just from him but from his friends.

I go out with young men when I get the chance if I like them. He knows it. Naturally he doesn't like the idea, but he knows better than to voice his objections. He seems to be satisfied to be friends along with the rest.

Just recently he has told me he would like to marry me when we are through school. (We are both sophomores). I answered that it was quite a while away, and we might both see some one else before then. I do like him better than any one else I have ever met. Whenever I go out with any one else, I always think how much nicer he is. That's the trouble, he knows how to make a girl like him by being so considerate.

Mother says he is not her idea of a son-in-law. (She guesses how he plans). She has nothing against him personally; she thinks he has high ideals and will get ahead. But she doesn't want him for me.

She thinks he is conceited, but I know that he really isn't. He often takes that attitude to cover up his real feelings. He gets horribly depressed at times when he can't see his way clear because of money matters.

His father is dead, and he is working his way through school. I'll never forget the night he lost his job, and began raving about how his mother and father had done so much for him and how he never had appreciated it. The poor kid almost cried. I can't believe any one can be conceited and hard when he thinks things like that, can you?

I suppose, because of family opposition, I'll have to drop him. Last year when I tried it, we had a terrible scene. I hadn't the heart to go through with it. He vows and declares there probably will never be any one but me. (I don't really believe that. I think I know men too well).

I have been foolish in many ways. I have kept up a steady correspondence with him, and I realize I must cut down on the number of letters immediately, but gradually.

He is coming home and we have planned to go to several affairs together. The following week he is coming down to one of my formal dances.

Now with the situation that way how can I begin to drop him gradually?

Mother hasn't asked me to, but I had rather do it than have any trouble with her.

On the other hand, I hate the thought of hurting him. If only he would become interested in some one else. I hate to think of giving him up; I'd be desolate without him.

Could you suggest some way without hurting him? I happen to know that his mother likes me, and before I told him, if he really loved me, to persevere, and so finally win me.

What is a girl to do in a case like that? "PERSIS."

Well, why cross all these bridges before you come to them? Ever since time began, mothers have been aghast at the mediocre young blades who have found favor in their fair daughters' eyes. And since time began mothers have been making the best of just such "nervy" young men and just such puzzling situations. How about letting time take care of this as it has of the world itself? You know there is a rather widespread belief that some hidden power watches over the destinies of fools and newspapermen. Suppose you begin subscribing to that belief, and let that unseen power guide this lad to another girl or temper your mother's aversion to the go-getter attitude that distinguishes the reporter from the grocer? And—just between ourselves—you could do worse than marry a newspaper reporter!

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

DOUBLING INSURANCE.

IT is an established principle of sound Contract play, when considering the question of a Penalty Double, that the Doubler number among his tricks at least 1 sure trump trick if the doubled contract is a suit bid. This safety measure assures the Doubler that he will be in the lead to take his established tricks before the Declarer has discarded losers in his own hand or Dummy on established cards in the other.

Violation of this principle, coupled with lack of imagination in the play, brought disastrous results to several players in Duplicate at the Deschapelles Club in New York recently, as the hand below discloses.

East-West vulnerable.
North-South not vulnerable.
South—Dealer.

	♠ K Q 3 ♡ Q 10 4 2 ♢ 2 ♣ A J 8 5 4
♠ 7 2 ♡ A K J 5 ♢ A Q J ♣ K 10 7 6	N W E S	♠ 10 5 ♡ 9 8 7 3 ♢ K 10 9 8 7 6 5 ♣ —
	♠ A J 9 8 6 4 ♡ 6 ♢ 4 3 ♣ Q 9 3 2

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	1♡	2♣	3♡(1)
3♠(2)	4♡(3)	4♠(4)	Pass
Pass	Dbl.(5)	Rdbl(6)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—East counted, in support of his partner's bid, 3 tricks for ability to ruff clubs and 2 tricks for the diamond honor plus length, as well as ½ trick for the length in trumps—a total of 5½ playing-tricks.

2—South's hand looks quite strong opposite his partner's club Take-out.

3—West, with 4 honor-tricks and assured of adequate trump support, bids for game.

4—North is torn between a desire to make a Penalty Double and the hopes for game. Feeling there is a chance for game and at least an even chance that East and West, unaware of the favorable situation of the trump suit, may go to five, he decides in favor of the game declaration.

5—Carried away by his strong honor holding, West unwisely doubled.

6—North's Redouble is in keeping with the policy outlined in Note 4.

West led the King of hearts, and, when the Dummy went down, a shift was, of course, indicated. At one table West shifted to the trump, and South, after drawing two rounds of trumps, led the Queen of clubs from the closed hand. West covered, and the trick was won with Dummy's Ace, and then the Declarer had only to lose 1 club and 1 diamond trick, thus making the redoubled contract of four spades. This was rather wooden defense, lacking wholly in imagination and almost equivalent to a concession of defeat.

At another table, where the same final contract had been reached, West, after winning the King of hearts, shifted at once to a club. Much to his surprise his partner trumped and returned a diamond, which he won, and led another club, which East ruffed. Thus the contract of four was defeated—not through happy chance, but through sound defensive play.

Even the success of East and West by accurate play in defeating the contract 1 trick did not justify a Penalty Double, as the margin of victory was too narrow to give North and South the opportunity to redouble.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Question: Why must we have firmly fixed minimum requirements for Opening bids?

Answer: To give partner as much accurate information as possible. . . .

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

SOME BABY FOODS.

DR. B. W. JARVIS thinks we have been too conservative in varying the diet of bottle fed babies. Even good breast milk falls somewhat short of being a perfect food since it is generally too watery and it is always poor in iron. The mothers who furnish it usually live under such abnormal conditions that their milk is deficient in some vitamins, especially in vitamins B complex and D.

Cow's milk is nearly a perfect food for a calf of just the right age for milk. Mixed cows' milk from all sorts of cows, at all periods of milk production, is not even a perfect food for a calf of a given age and is far from being such for a baby.

Dr. Jarvis, therefore, begins at about the sixth to the eighth week of life to give some accessory vitamin foods. If the baby is bottle fed he begins the use of these accessories somewhat earlier; if breast fed, later.

He uses a mixture of cod liver oil and a watery extract of germinating grains. Most of the baby foods now contain grain germ in some form or other. This mixture is rich in vitamins A, B, D and E. He gives one teaspoonful in milk three times a day. In order to prevent scurvy and to have the gums kept in good condition he gives either orange juice or tomatoe juice.

All of these substances mix well with milk. Fruit juice is superior to ordinary milk and lime water, in that the stomach juices can digest it better. The combination is eaten with relish. It is easily handled by the digestive apparatus and can be expected to agree with the child. If the milk be of good quality and right as to quantity the baby will gain in length and weight and will be comfortable. An ample supply of these vitamins promotes the development of the teeth and protects against rickets.

For some reason or other rickets and susceptibility to coughs, colds, pneumonia, and winter infections seem to go hand in hand. Any diet which protects against one operates against the other. The greatest menace of baby life is the infections of the breathing apparatus, the diarrheas of babyhood having become of secondary importance.

F. G. M. writes: Please describe angina pectoris and how to live to either cure or check it. Is there a difference between angina and pseudo-angina?

REPLY.

Angina pectoris is a neuralgia of the heart. The outstanding symptoms are pain and apprehension of impending disaster. The pain ranges from a feeling of weight or constriction to most violent pain. The pain or oppression is generally felt behind the breast bone. It is likely to shoot down the arm. It is caused by disease of the coronary artery, or first part of the aorta. Somewhat related conditions are angina due to exertion and coronary thrombosis. A diagnosis between these and angina pectoris can be made by taking the pulse and the blood pressure, making a cardiogram, and studying the history.

False angina is an entirely different matter. It is a rheumatism or neuralgia of the chest wall.

IT MIGHT BE HARMFUL.

Mrs. S. R. writes: Is half a teaspoon of bicarbonate of soda after dinner in a half a glass of water harmful?

REPLY.

I think it would be.

What Today Means to You

"AQUARIUS."

IF January 21 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:40 a. m. to 10:50 a. m., from 4:15 p. m. to 6 p. m. and from 9 p.m. to 10:30 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 1:40 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8:40 p. m.

Both adverse and propitious influences on January 21 will be due to the fair sex. In private life a woman relative or friend will "butt in," and business men will find trouble brewing through the malice or envy of female employes. The stars favor lovers of both sexes.

The child born on this January 21 will possess most of the vices as well as the virtues of the typical child of today. It will be very outspoken, full of life and amusement mad. It will be irresponsible and energetic in all respects but the practical. It will have exaggerated opinions about itself.

Born January 21, you are an intelligent being without being mentally quick. You are slow on the "get away," but when you start, there is no stopping you until you reach your desired goal. Your efforts will always be the fruit of unflagging industry—a large per cent perspiration and a small per cent inspiration. You have very strong ideas about many things and are not afraid to express your opinions. Your sincerity often runs away with you, and you say what you believe to be the right thing in both the wrong way and at the wrong time. In many of the graver games of life, your integrity is more important than cleverness.

Your talents from a material standpoint may be of more value to others than to yourself, and your ability will probably be the cause of filling some one's else pocket more than yours. You are exceedingly fond of art, music and literature, but seem to have more ability in other studies or vocations. You have marked social tendencies, and you delight in giving pleasure to others. You are always kind, and you would not from intent hurt a fly. You are acquisitive without being miserly. If you wed, you will love with a "Darby" or "Joan" constancy.

Successful people born January 21:

John C. Fremont, explorer and soldier.

Horace Wells, physician.

John A. Bingham, jurist and legislator.

John C. Breckinridge, congressman.

Thomas J. (Stonewall) Jackson, soldier.

(Serving 6)

3 cups boiled macaroni
3 tablespoons fat
3 tablespoons onions
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon celery salt
2 cups tomatoes.

Heat fat in frying pan. Add and brown onions. Add rest of ingredients. Cover and cook slowly 10 minutes. Stir frequently.

Boston Baked Beans.

1 quart navy beans
½ teaspoon soda
½ pound fresh pork butts
½ cup molasses
6 tablespoons brown sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon dry mustard
2 tablespoons chopped onions.

Wash beans thoroughly. Cover 5 inches with cold water and soak over night. In morning drain and rinse well with cold water. Cover with boiling water 6 inches and add ½ teaspoon of salt and the soda. Cover and boil gently until beans are soft. Drain and reserve 4 cups of bean stock. Reserve remaining stock for soup. Place a layer of the beans in the bottom of a crock or bean pot. Add rest of ingredients and remaining beans. Add bean stock (4 cups). Cover and bake very slowly 5 hours. If beans seem dry add more stock.

Baked Brown Bread.

1 cup corn meal

2 teaspoons soda
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon soda
½ cup molasses.
1¼ cups milk

Mix ingredients and pour into 2 greased loaf pans. Bake 1 hour in slow oven.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

TWO WAYS TO MAKE IT!

Here's a new idea, full of charm and youthfulness.

The low placement of the circular skirt flounce, joined to the upper part of the dress in diagonal lines, is decidedly slenderizing.

As seen in the miniature view it's a bit more feminine with the capelet collar.

And how utterly simple it is to fashion it.

Style No. 829 is designed in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material with ⅝ yard of 39-inch contrasting and 1½ yards of trimming.

Linen prints, rayon novelties, wool jersey, cotton mesh, pique and cotton shantung are delightful suggestions.

Price of pattern 15 cents. Address Fashion Dept., The Washington Post, Fifth avenue and Twenty-ninth street, New York City.

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

Answers to Queries.

Please tell me what to do to make an ardisia grow and bear fruit. It is apparently healthy but never gets any larger. ANN G. U.

Nothing can be done to hasten the growth of this plant. The ardisia is a very slow grower.

Please tell me how to care for the tubers of tuberous-rooted begonias over the winter. MRS. PAUL O., M. G. G. and MRS. FREDERICK L.

There are several methods used for keeping these tubers over the winter. Some allow them to remain in the soil in which they have been growing all summer (this applies to potted plants), allowing them to become quite dry. The pots may thus be stored in a dark closet where the temperature remains above 40 degrees but does not go over 50 degrees. In March such plants must be brought to the light and be given water and heat. When sprouted they must be repotted into fresh soil. Another method is to leave the tubers in their pots until all foliage has died off. When the soil in the pots is dry the tubers are removed, wrapped in separate pieces of paper and stored in a dry, frostproof room until March when they are again started into growth.

Please tell me the proper soil to use when repotting a dracaena. CHARLOTTE K.

A soil composed of loam, leafmold and enough charcoal to keep the soil open and sweet. Later, when you find the plant is well established and is starting to grow, give an application of liquid manure.

I have a window box containing a collection of eight garden plants which I brought into the house in the late fall. The plants are doing very well but my entire kitchen is overrun with ants. These came after the flowers were brought inside. The ants do not seem to be really injuring the plants, though they are on them. Can you tell me how to get rid of these pests? MRS. HAROLD G. W.

If you care to write again and will inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope I shall be glad to tell you the name of a proprietary preparation that will, if you follow directions carefully, soon banish the ants.

Please tell me something about peat moss, which I see so often mentioned in garden books and magazine articles. I have never seen this material. HELEN F. W.

Peat moss is moisture-retaining humus and an important aid to soil fertility. It is used for mulching rosebeds, shrubbery, evergreens and rhododendrons. Late in the autumn it is sometimes used as a covering for lawns.

I want to make a few small dish gardens. Can you use ferns and cacti in the same dishes? HENRY T. G.

No, because the cacti are desert plants and demand a sandy soil and a great deal of sun at all times. The ferns are moisture-loving plants which demand light but little sun and a very rich soil. A collection of dwarf cacti and succulents makes a pleasing dish garden and such plants have similar requirements, therefore do well when planted in the same container. I do not think ferns ever do well in any dish unless you use a rich soil and have plenty of drainage.

Please tell me how to store some boxes of tender pond lilies. I have three boxes planted with nympheas. SALLIE MCV.

Store the boxes in which they are planted in a coldframe or cellar and bury them in sand. Some growers drain their pools and permit the boxes to remain in them during the winter, merely covering them with leaves, but I think it is better to place them in a coldframe or cellar.

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed stamped envelope is supplied.

HOME POWER RATES COMPROMISE MADE

3.6 Cents Per Kilowatt Hour to Go Into Effect on February 1.

A compromise household electric rate of about 3.6 cents per kilowatt hour for 1932 in place of the present 4.2 cents will go into effect on February 1 under the terms of a compromise reached yesterday between the Public Utilities Commission and the Potomac Electric Power Co. after several conferences.

Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman, in a formal statement announced yesterday that an agreement had been reached that $860,000 of the power company's excess profits for last year will be used in the reduction of rates for the new year. This amounts to about 70 per cent of the utility's profits above 7½ per cent on the rate base.

The compromise was reached because of the litigation that has tied up the sliding scale adopted last June by the commission and intended for use in the fixing of rates for this year. The old consent decree under which rates were established for the last seven years has definitely been discarded.

New Sliding Scale Used.

The $860,000 agreed upon is $260,000 more than would have been used for rate reduction under the consent decree, but is $140,000 less than would have been set aside under the new sliding scale. Nevertheless, the commission and People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech feel that the lower rates might be considerably delayed if the commission should wait until the litigation over the sliding scale is settled.

Another rate reduction may follow the final ruling on the sliding scale by the courts as this compromise does not prevent such a retroactive step. Such action is not likely this year, however. Meanwhile, the power company agrees to abide by whatever rates the commission fixes with the $860,000.

The hearing scheduled to open next Monday consequently will be simplified to the question of how the excess profits are to be distributed among the various rate schedules.

Dr. Marvin Is Negotiator.

The $860,000 is more than $30,000 greater than the reduction made at the end of 1930, under which the rates for the past year were established.

In anouncing the acceptance of the compromise, Gen. Patrick said:

"In view of the business uncertainty now existing, the considerable difference made by the destruction of so many buildings in the triangle area, the probability that heavier taxes will be imposed on the company during the year, and the positive benefits which will promptly follow an undisputed order fixing the new rates, the commission has thought it best to accept this offer of the power company."

Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University and one of the directors of the Potomac Electric Power Co., conducted the negotiations with the commission.

Five Suspects to Face Grand Jury in Theft

Arraigned in Police Court on a charge of breaking into the store of J. A. Rosenbloom, 2520 Fourteenth street northwest, where they allegedly stole 111 women's dresses, Eric Van Horn, Phillip Davis and Audrey A. Lacey were each ordered held for the action of the grand jury on bonds of $5,000.

The store was entered a week ago. Two others, William Coleman and Edna Juanita Roberts, charged with receiving the stolen property, were held under bonds of $500 each for the grand jury.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

TALK about the gathering of the clans!

Yesterday was get-together-day for all of the boys in the film industry—partially on account of changes in personnel in the local organizations representing national theater chains, and partially by reason of the hearing on the Carey bill, up in Congress for the restriction of seat sales for local motion picture theaters to the number of seats actually available in the given house.

In framing his bill Senator Carey (Republican), of Wyoming, evidently wrote his measure while still on fire from a personal experience which, while it could happen to anyone, is not at all typical of the general practice of those catering to public taste in the matter of cinematographic entertainment. I doubt if Sen. Carey realized quite to what degree he was attempting legislation against the enjoyment of the man in the street, his wife and his children.

As has been pointed out here time and time again, there is nothing compulsory about this business of waiting in a comfortable lounge or a sheltered lobby for a chance at a seat in a movie theater. No one forces, blackjacks or coerces a cash customer into standing in line for a chance to get in to his favorite movie. Furthermore, the motion picture theaters do not sell seats. They sell admissions, with the full and unrestricted right to occupy seats when, and if, any becomes vacant and available.

What Senator Carey's bill, like all the others that have come before it of like intent, really seeks to do is to prohibit the patron, willing to take his turn, from purchasing the right to abide his time at the turnstile. It is legislation against the individual power of choice on the part of the prospective attendant at the cinema.

And not only that. If the number of sales were to be limited to the number of seats in the theater, the net result would be to place the motion picture theater on a reserved seat basis, and thus necessitate the probable doubling of admission charges. It is that "all day grind" that permits the movie houses to cater to the greatest number of amusement seekers at the lowest possible tariff—and don't let any one tell you different!

But that isn't so much what I started out to say as that Loew's, Inc., held open house in Suite 428 in the Willard yesterday, from midafternoon until train time, and a pleasant period of relaxation was had by all.

Heading the Loew delegation were Charles C. Moscowitz, vice president; Oscar Doob, director of publicity, and Harry Long, territorial manager of the Washington bailiwick. And if you think the groaning table of hors d'oeuvres was not severely punished by the hungry members of the press, the Loew executives themselves, Miss Caryl Bergman, of the "Love Is All" company, playing the National, and divers and sundry others, you are just nuts, that's all!

At 5 o'clock in the evening we shouldn't be hungry? Don't be silly!

Mr. Moskowitz, incidentally, yesterday was celebrating the nineteenth anniversary of his joining the Loew organization.

And this Charlie Moskowitz, by the way, in addition to being a smart showman and conspicuously successful theater operator, being right up there at the right hand of Nick Schenck, president of Loew's, is by way of being an extremely regular guy, if you will pardon my soiled gloves and runover heels. He has not lost the common touch, even if he does live in palace at Kew Gardens, on Long Island, and own his own automobile!

And that goes for Mr. Doob, too, all except the palace at Kew Gardens. I don't know where his palace is. We fight a good deal, he and I, but it's all in fun. You can ask him.

And now, after these few felicitous observations—and if you haven't suspected, that, is what they were supposed to be—comes some bad news.

Les Stevens and The Diplomats, who for the past two months have diverted patrons of the Fox Theater with a novel and thoroughly engaging form of informal vocal and instrumental offering, will conclude their local engagement a week from tonight, January 28, to accept a long-run booking at the exclusive Miami Beach and Tennis Club at Miami Beach, Fla.

In order that the boys may reach Miami Beach in time to take up their new duties on Saturday, January 30, a special plane has been chartered to whisk this talented quartet South.

It is with regret that Washington relinquishes the services of this gifted group. Les Stevens, George Bersch, Andy Hamilton and Johnny Ferrara have proved themselves gentlemen as well as showmen and will fly away from Washington with the assurance of having fulfilled the high purpose for which they were brought to the Capital by Managing Director Harry W. Crull of the Fox.

Good luck and best wishes, fellas, and come back and see us sometimes—the sooner the better.

Speaking of "Love Is All," at the National, as we were somewhere back there, it would be a perfectly swell idea, it seems to me, if this column would make up its mind what the title of the show really is. I notice that in yesterday's comments it was alternately referred to as "Love Is All" and "All Is Love," so maybe, after all, it would have been better if Vincent Youmans had continued to call it "Smilin' Through!"

Beginning a week from tomorrow, Friday, January 29, the Metropolitan Theater will join the ranks of the motion picture emporia—hot seats!—inaugurating their new bills on Friday. This will leave only the Earle and RKO-Keith's to open on Saturday.

For the celebration of its switch to the Friday opening, the Metropolitan, beginning January 29, will present what it is pleased to designate "Thrill Week."

The major screen attraction will be the film version of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's story of "The Speckled Band." The auxiliary feature will be the first filming of a complete football game with not a play omitted. For this purpose the exciting contest between Tulane University and Southern California has been utilized. The whole game from start to finish.

And now let's see what next week has to offer:

National, "The House of Connelly," Paul Green's impressive drama, presented by the Group Theater.

Belasco, "The Student Prince," with Gertrude Lang and Arthur Prior in the stellar roles.

Sunday afternoon E. M. Newman in the first of a series of five Sunday afternoon traveltalks, the first to be devoted to "Paris and the Colonial Exposition."

Monday night, January 25, Jan Ignace Paderewski, pianist and statesman, in a recital at Constitution Hall for the benefit of the Red Cross unemployment fund.

This afternoon Efrem Zimbalist, famed violinist, will be solo artist at the fifth symphony concert by the National Symphony Orchestra, Hans Kindler, conductor, at Constitution Hall at 4:45 o'clock.

All Washington dancers are planning to turn out en masse, along with many other folk to see Martha Graham and her company of fifteen dancers and four instrumentalists in their first program here at the National Theater tomorrow afternoon at 4:40 p. m.

La Argentina, the great Spanish dancer, who won such success here last week, said, when she heard Martha Graham was coming to Washington,

"Oh, but she is wonderful; a most highly gifted artist!"

Such praise from one great dancer in favor of another who is of totally different nationality is praise, indeed, and not to be taken lightly.

Oh, yes, those movies:

RKO-Keith's, Pola Negri, in "The Woman Commands," and Lester Allen and Bernice Claire headlining the vaudeville; Fox, Warner Oland, in "Charlie Chan's Chance," and Fanchon & Marco's "Vacation Days" Idea: Earle, Douglas Fairbanks, jr., and Joan Blondell, in "Union Depot," and Johnny Burke headlining the vaudeville; Palace, Charles Rogers and Peggy Shannon, in "This Reckless Age," and Loew's "Hollywood Collegians" revue; Rialto, Anita Louise and Lew Ayres, in "Heaven on Earth;" Columbia, Frederic March, in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde;" Metropolitan, Jack Holt, in "Maker of Men."

An inside tip, in case you care for such things, is—and you can paste this in your hat for future reference—that the new managing director of the Loew Theaters in the National Capital, vice Colby Harriman, resigned, will be a handsome young all-Southern half back from Atlanta, Ga., by the name of Carter Barron.

Mr. Barron will, unless all signs fail, arrive in Washington on Monday next, prepared to take up the reins at Loew's Palace and Columbia precisely where Mr. Harriman let them drop.

"Mike" Cullen, whom we all hoped would be returned to this city, has done so well at pulling Pittsburgh out of the hole that he will be retained in other fields where his value to his company is deemed greater than it would be here—and to himself, incidentally.

Not only the plum tree in blossom, but the croci are coming up!

DISTRICT MAY CALL NEW CHIEF ENGINEER

Secrecy Veils Reported Plan to Add High-Salaried Executive to Staff.

Considerable secrecy surrounds the reports current in the District Building yesterday that the Commissioners are planning to add another high-salaried executive to the Engineer Department, which already has three assistant engineer commissioners as well as heads of various divisions. The post would be that of a supervisor of the municipal architect's office, the building inspector's office, and the electrical engineer, and would pay $8,000 a year.

Maj. D. A. Davison, acting engineer commissioner, declined yesterday to discuss the report, other than to admit the reorganization plans in his department are now before the Personnel Classification Board. One rumor had it that Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, police commissioner, was the sponsor of the new office.

The plan is not meeting with approval among the lower officials of the Engineer Department, as some feel that the department is top heavy now. It is also pointed out that the addition of an $8,000-a-year position would not be in accord with President Hoover's economy program.

One reason advanced for the proposed creation of the post is that it would relieve the engineer commissioner of some of his duties, which include membership on the Public Utilities Commission, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Zoning Commission.

Some time ago an attempt was made to coordinate the work of the municipal architect's office with the building inspector's office, so that a closer check could be made on structural design. This action followed the collapse of the Roosevelt School structure.

Briand, Ill, to Take Rest.

Paris, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Aristide Briand, who was forced to give up his post as foreign minister in Premier Laval's cabinet on account of illness, will go tomorrow to his country home at Cocherel, where he will remain a month. Thereafter he will go to the Riviera for a few days.

MARYLAND FIVE DOWNS NAVY, 26-15, BEFORE 5,000

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

HERR MAXIE SCHMELING, forced to choose between the National Boxing Association and the New York Boxing Commission, has cast his lot with the latter in agreeing to take on Jack Sharkey in his title defense rather than fight Mickey Walker in Florida.

His refusal to meet Walker has brought down upon Herr Maxie the official wrath of the N. B. A., which has already set the machinery in motion to strip him of his title in the twenty-eight member States, but to counterbalance this loss, Schmeling has regained the good graces of the New York Commission, which previously had held him under suspension.

Schmeling has thus turned on his sponsors, because it was the N. B. A. which stepped forward to recognize him as world champion after his bout in 1930 with Sharkey after the New York commission, under whose auspices the match was staged, withheld championship recognition and refused to place his name on the Tunney-Muldoon trophy in the esteemed company of Sullivan, Corbett, Fitzsimmons, Jeffries, Johnson, Willard, Dempsey and Tunney.

Despite his reinstatement in New York, Schmeling is not recognized as the world champion by the Gotham commission and, contrary to popular belief, will not be defending the world title against Sharkey, although the two will be fighting for the title.

Sharkey will go into the bout with official recognition as American heavyweight champion, while Schmeling can claim no title under the New York commission's ruling. The New York body is, in effect, holding the crown in abeyance, until either wins decisively. Then, of course, it will be bestowed with proper ceremony.

By his disavowal of the N. B. A., Schmeling is risking every claim to the title. Should his coming bout with Sharkey end in another Sharkey foul, the title would be withheld in New York and Schmeling, if he were on good terms with the National Commission, would still be regarded as the champion in the twenty-eight States affiliated with the N. B. A. But Herr Maxie, in breaking with the National Commission, has burned his bridges behind him.

Of course all of Schmeling's decisions are preconceived by his mentor, Joe Jacobs, who apparently sees more to be gained on the side of the New York commission than with the N. B. A., although it was the latter's stamp of recognition after the Sharkey fight which went farther than any other action toward stamping the German as the world champion.

With Madison Square Garden the only organization able to promote a heavyweight championship to the limit of its financial worth, Jacobs readily assents to do business with the New York commission even with the risk of the wrath of the N. B. A. The disavowal of the N. B. A. by Jacobs and Schmeling, however, is apt to have its echo in 1933 when the world's fair at Chicago is slated to be the scene of a heavyweight championship. If Schmeling is the holder of the title at that time, he must invade the seat of the N. B. A. headquarters and make his peace with the national association again before he will be permitted to share in the profits of a world fair battle.

But the N. B. A., when it is eager to sponsor a heavyweight fight, is easy to do business with, and Jacobs is willing, apparently, to take the chance that all will be well.

Sharkey will not lack for supporters against the German. Those at the ringside of their battle in 1930 at Yankee Stadium will not be quick to forget the artistic pasting that Sharkey was dealing Schmeling before he ended the fight so ignominously with a foul in the fourth round.

But a year has served to raise Schmeling in the esteem of the fight followers. His knockout of Young Stribling at Cleveland last July gave evidence that the German can not be judged too hastily in early rounds of his battles and there is a growing suspicion that even against Sharkey, if the fight had progressed further, Maxie might have shown to good advantage.

Against Stribling, Maxie was outboxed and made to look like a novice by the flashy Southerner in the first five rounds, but thereafter the German caught up with him and slowed him down until he was ripe for the knockout any time after the tenth round. It might have happened to Sharkey the summer before. That is the possibility that makes next summer's bout interesting.

Ryerson's 73 Card Low In Miami Medal Play

Miami, Fla., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—J. B. Ryerson, of Cooperstown, N. Y., hurrying through his qualifying round as darkness settled over the course, today carded 39—34—73 to win medalist honors in the Glenn Curtiss Trophy invitation amateur golf tournament here.

His 34 on the last nine was two under par and snatched medalist honors from H. F. Bowbeer, of Chicago, who led early qualifiers with a 75.

Winfield Day, Chicago schoolboy, stood third with 76 and was trailed in fourth and fifth places, respectively, by Celest Durand, of Brooklyn, with 78, and T. P. Phillips Perkins, British ace, with 79.

Match play starts tomorrow.

Max to Lose Crown, Poll Indicates

Canvass of N.B.A. by Associated Press Upholds Chief.

Complete Balloting Will Not Be Ready Until Next Month.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Max Schmeling, world's heavyweight champion, faces the possibility of losing the title without throwing a glove. This was indicated tonight as the result of a poll made by the Associated Press of members of the National Boxing Association, who will vote on a proposal to vacate Schmeling's championship because of his failure to defend it or to sign to defend it within the six months' time limit prescribed by the National Boxing Association.

Gen. John V. Clinnin, president of the National Boxing Association, dispatched ballots to the membership and expects them to oust the German title holder.

"The rules are made by the membership of the National Boxing Association," Gen. Clinnin said tonight, "and I expect them to be followed out to the letter. That, at least, has been the procedure before, when the membership has been asked to vote on questions of vacating a champion's title."

Vote Covers Wide Territory.

Gen. Clinnin said the complete balloting would not be available until probably the middle of February, as the votes must come from 29 States, several boxing commissions in Canada, from Cuba, Porto Rico and Mexico and from affiliations abroad.

Sharkey and Schmeling To Sign Contract Today

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Pending the arrival late tonight of a delegation of Jack Sharkey representatives, lawyers toiled today over contracts for Max Schmeling's heavyweight match defense against the Boston sailor, tentatively scheduled for June, here.

Little difficulty is expected in bringing the warriors to terms for the settlement of a controversy that has raged since the German first won title recognition here by defeating Sharkey on a foul almost two years ago.

The contracts must be presented to the New York State Athletic Commission Friday in order to insure reinstatement of Schmeling.

15-Round Chicago Law Might Interest Jacobs

Chicago, Jan. 20 (U.P.).—A new deal in the heavyweight situation seems likely to result from the passage of a 15-round boxing bill by the Illinois Senate today at Springfield.

The bill was passed by a vote of 33 to 3 and will probably be up for vote before the House of Representatives tomorrow. From present indications it will be a law by the end of the week.

"The Chicago stadium is vitally interested in the passage of the 15-round bill," Sidney Strotz, president, said today. "When the bill becomes a law the stadium will have a surprising announcement to make regarding a heavyweight match in Chicago."

With 15-round bouts legal in Chicago, Jacobs can now reopen negotiations for a bout between Schmeling and Walker or some other contender to be held in the Chicago Stadium in March. A Schmeling-Walker bout figures to draw $200,000 or more here.

"If Jacobs will show any indication toward letting Schmeling fight in March the N. B. A. will be reasonable with him. But we are not going to allow any champion to violate our six months rule repeatedly without taking action," said Gen. Clinnin.

Jack Kearns, Walker's manager, announced in New York today he was leaving for Chicago to appear before the N. B. A. and claim the heavyweight title because Schmeling withdrew from a bout with the former middleweight king.

"Kearns can't claim the heavyweight title for Walker," said Gen. Clinnin, "nor can any other manager or fighter. Titles have to be won in the ring. No title can be passed around by claims. If that was the case it would be all negotiating and no fighting."

Walker, however, is considered one of the leading heavyweights entitled to enter a tournament and fight for recognition by the N. B. A. as champion. Some of the others are Ernie Schaaf, Primo Carnera, Steve Hamas, Charley Retzlaff, Tuffy Griffiths, Young Stribling, King Levinsky, Max Baer, Larry Gains and Heine Muller, Germany.

It is believed that Jack Dempsey would seriously consider meeting the winner in Chicago for the title. In that case the winner of the Schmeling-Sharkey bout could not get public recognition until he met the N. B. A.'s champion.

Lindstrom Signed by Giants; Dickey Problem for Yanks

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The holdout list of the New York Giants, for a time the most virulent in either major league, was further reduced today with the receipt of Freddie Lindstrom's signed contract.

The "handy man" of John McGraw's team sent the document in from Sarasota, Fla., with an accompanying note that he was "perfectly satisfied" with the terms offered him for 1932. Whether the versatile fielder was asked to take a cut in salary, Secretary Jim Tierney would not say.

Only three Giants now remain as avowed holdouts. They are Bill Terry, first baseman; Freddie Fitzsimmons, pitcher, and Fred Leach, outfielder.

Contract matters, meantime, were at a standstill in the Yankees' camp. Bill Dickey, slugging catcher, was reported not only unwilling to sign for $10,000, a reduction of 20 per cent but determined to get a raise.

Brooklyn received a combination of good and bad news. The veteran, John Picus Quinn, one of the few surviving spitball pitchers, sent in his signed contract for 1932, but word came from San Francisco that Gordon Slade, young infielder, and Ernest Lombardi, husky catcher, were returning unsigned the papers offering them the same salary as last year.

Employed

BUSH SIGNED TO MANAGE MILLERS

Former Chisox, Nat Pilot Takes Berth at Minneapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Donie Bush announced here today that he had signed a contract to manage the Minneapolis baseball club of the American Association during 1932. Bush had been dickering with the Minneapolis owners for several weeks.

Mike Kelly, part owner of the club, handled the team last year. Kelly will become president of the club.

Bush managed the Chicago White Sox of the American League in 1930 and 1931. Injuries to players and the failure of his stars to equal past performances put the Sox out of the running last summer.

Prior to taking over the management of the White Sox, Bush managed the Washington club and the Pittsburgh Pirates, before he starred for many years as a shortstop for the Detroit Tigers.

Chicago, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Mike Kelly, owner of the Minneapolis club, was elated over the signature of Donie Bush as manager of the Millers.

"Bush signed a one year contract but he can stay as manager for a dozen years or as long as he desires," Kelly said. "He has that option along with one to buy stock in the club. Under my reorganization plans, I intend to give up active field managership forever and devote my time to the office of president of the club. George K. Belden (former president) will act as vice president."

Pro Golfers to 4-Ball Semifinals at Miami

Miami, Fla., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Charlie McAllister, Queens Valley, N. Y., and Jack Hagen, Salisbury, N. Y., halted a three-hole rally by Willie Dow, Fargo, N. Dak., and John Watson, South Bend, Ind., to win 1 up on the eighteenth hole in their quarter-final match today in a professional four-ball golf tournament.

Willie Macfarlane, Tuckahoe, N. Y., and Charlie Pairman, Kokomo, Ind., likewise stopped their quarter-final match at the fifteenth green as they won, 4 and 3, from Jules Huot, Quebec, and Frank Stuhler, North Boston, Mass. In the fourth match, Earl Howell, Miami, and Eddie Williams, Cleveland, disposed of Jim Dante, Braeburn, N. J., and Eddie Schultz, Troy, N. Y., 3 and 2.

Macallister and Hagen will meet Howell and Williams in tomorrow's semifinals, with Macfarlane and Pairman playing Mehlhorn and Bourne.

New York Group Seeks Tennis Control, Charge

Philadelphia, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Paul W. Gibbons, secretary of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, today charged attempts were being made to halt his reelection so that a group of New York men could better control the body. The association meets in New Orleans next month.

Gibbons, who is being opposed by Lawrence A. Baker, of Washington, said "the committee of 100's opposition to me is merely an instrumentality in their chief effort to gain absolute control of the United States Lawn Tennis Association for a small group of New York men.

"This purpose, in my opinion, will not make for the benefit of the game throughout the United States."

Lawrence A. Baker, chairman of the tennis committee at the Chevy Chase Club, and one of the so-called "committee of 100," announced his candidacy for the secretaryship of the U. S. L. T. A. last Sunday in The Post.

VETERAN TURFMAN DIES.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Robert C. Estill, 76, past president and for a number of years a director of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders Associatoion, died today after an extended illness.

Golf Requires Most Skill, Is Vote

Also Game Involving Most Luck, Poll of Editors Holds.

Football Rated Highest in Strategy; Rowing Most Gruelling.

(This is another of a series of stories analyzing results of the Associated Press sports editor's poll of newspaper opinion on sports facts, fancies and recollections. It answers the query as to sports involving the most skill, stamina, strategy and luck.)

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Even though this may serve only to intensify the points of argument among the country's sports experts, the fact is they have voted golf as the sport requiring the most skill as well as involving the most luck. Baseball is next on each count.

In this respect the Associated Press athletic poll reveals a house sharply divided against itself. Otherwise there is substantial agreement that rowing requires the most strength or stamina and that football calls for the most strategy.

Only three sports, football, basket ball and boxing, are voted for each of the four major factors considered.

Results of National Pool.

Here are the results of the national poll showing the first five sports in each category, the number of votes for each, also the approximate percentage of the element involved, as figured by those who gave detailed answers:

1. Sport requiring most skill—Golf, 24 votes (80 per cent); baseball, 19 votes (70 per cent); tennis, 17 votes (68 per cent); billiards, 10 votes (83 per cent); boxing, 8 votes (60 per cent).

2. Sport requiring most strength or stamina—rowing, 27 votes (76 per cent); wrestling, 18 votes (63 per cent); boxing, 14 votes (45 per cent); football, 12 votes (40 per cent); basket ball, 4 votes (50 per cent); marathon and distance running, 4 votes (82 per cent).

3. Sport requiring most strategy—Football, 57 votes (44 per cent); baseball, 14 votes (36 per cent); boxing, 4 votes (25 per cent); tennis, 4 votes (45 per cent); chess, 2 votes (100 per cent).

4. Sport involving most luck—Golf, 34 votes (30 percent); baseball, 15 votes (80 per cent); basket ball, 7 votes (40 per cent); horse racing, 12 votes (30 per cent); football, 7 votes (40 per cent).

Obviously golf has more than it can handle on the basis of 80 per cent skill and 30 per cent luck. So far as this feature of the poll is concerned, the divergent views of sports editors and writers are too far apart to be reconciled.

For example, an Iowa editor writes: "Golf, requiring, as it does, perfect timing, coordination between mind and muscle and absolute concentration on the play at hand, does, in my opinion, require the greatest amount of skill." "But," counters a Chicago duffer, "golf requires more luck because no one can putt consistently from any great distance."

Baseball Players Keen Athletes.

Where the element of skill is concerned, polo, ice hockey, skiing and fencing all have their adherents. As to the case for baseball, Secretary Taylor, of Des Moines, comments:

"Most coaches, even the football men, agree that a star baseball player would probably make good at any form of sports. He must have speed of foot and eye, be agile in every muscle, have a strong throwing arm, be rugged and strong physically to stand up under the daily play, and be a quick thinker. Polo would rank high, but a man might be a great polo player and not be able to run 100 yards in 13 seconds. Golf requires great skill, but not skill generally required of an athlete."

The vote for rowing, as the sport requiring most stamina, is based on the belief it takes plenty of muscle to go the four-mile route. Two experts go so far as to say rowing is 100 per cent stamina, but coaches who spend a lifetime on their "system" will hardly agree. Weight-lifting and the 440-yard run are mentioned in the stamina group.

Baseball is the only sport to give football any argument, so far as the factor of strategy is concerned, but it is surprising to find golf picked as the luckiest. The percentage of luck is considered much higher in horseracing by those naming the turf sport. In the Pacific Northwest they consider fishing the luckiest pastime.

Baron Long Was Ruled Off For Reversing Daily Coup Of Poolroom Bookmakers

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—All right-minded persons will sympathize with the desire of the racing stewards at Agua Caliente (pronounced Ah-Wah Caliente) to keep their sport free from suspicion's sordid taint, but there is something puzzling about their decision to suspend Baron Long, the erring brother, for rigging the betting price on the horse Linden Tree. Brother Long, a boy from the Indiana campmeeting country, became a pillar of the night club business and, after long and diligent schooling in the art of making change for night club customers, became part owner of a winter horse track at Agua, or Ah-Wah, Caliente.

There on a recent date, by dumping in $3,000 on the nonfavorites in a horse race at the last minute, he altered the price on the favorite, Linden Tree, from 1 to 3 to approximately 10 to 1. Having previously wagered $1,000 on the favorite, he won approximately $10,000 and, even when he charged off the $3,000 which he had invested to change the odds on Linden Tree, his profit was about $7,000.

The only harm was suffered by the chain of poolrooms which covers the United States, whose proprietors did not have time to telegraph back to the track the bets which they had accepted on Linden Tree and thus depress the odds again. They endeavored to settle with their patrons at the original odds of 1 to 3, but it is customary to pay off the closing odds of the track, and they finally decided it would be discreet to pay the long price, though the cost to them was tremendous.

Preakness Draws 96 Nominations

Six More Enter 1932 Event Than Last Year; Top Flight in Field.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 20.—As far as horse racing is concerned in Maryland, the depression is over, because six more 3-year-old thoroughbreds and eight additional owners are represented in the nominations for the 1932 renewal of the $50,000 Preakness Stakes, which will be run on May 1 at Pimlico, the home of the Maryland Jockey Club.

A tabulation of the entries and owners announced today shows that 96 kings and queens of the turf are entered. They are owned by 59 interests. A year ago 90 were nominated by 51 owners.

The entries include C. V. Whitney's undefeated and leading money winner, the filly Top Flight. Whitney also has three others entered in Mad Frump, Clotho and Fall Apple.

Mrs. L. G. Kaufman's Tick On, defeated a neck by Top Flight in the Pimlico Futurity, also is entered.

Among the other standout juveniles of last season nominated are Shandon Farm's Burning Blaze, the Nevada Stock Farm's Hygro, Edward R. Bradley's Burgo King, Thomas M. Cassidy's Universe, and the Northway Stable's Gallant Sir.

78-Year-Old Shooter Ill; Finishes Seventh

Pinehurst, N. C., Jan. 20 (U.P.).—Frank D. Kelsey, 78-year-old marksman, of East Aurora, N. Y., left a sick bed to take part in the 18-yard championship event of the midwinter target shooting tournament here. He had been ill with a touch of the flu for several days.

The first time up Kelsey broke 93 targets out of a possible 100, and the second time he broke 97 for a total of 190, to place him seventh in a big field.

Lott Enters Third Round in Canada

Three Other U. S. Netmen Advance in Indoor Tournament.

Montreal, Jan. 20 (U.P.).—George Lott, jr., of Philadelphia, advanced into the third round singles of the annual Canadian indoor tennis title.

Lott, the defending champion, defeated W. Thompson, of Boston, 8—6, 4—6, 6—2, in their second round match. He eliminated G. Blair Gordon, of Montreal, in the first round Tuesday.

Three other Americans accompanied Lott into the third round. Berkley Bell, of Austin, Tex., defeated H. P. Emard, of Montreal, 6—1, 6—4. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J., beat C. T. Plimpton, Boston, 6—2, 6—1. Fritz Mercur, of Bethlehem, Pa., defeated G. A. D'Arcy, Boston, 7—5, 8—6.

The two Bostonians, Plimpton and D'Arcy, had advanced to the second round by defeating Canadian opponents. Pimpton beat B. C. Drummond, of Montreal, 6—1, 6—4, and D'Arcy defeated William Sutherland, Montreal, 6—1, 6—1. Both were first round matches. Another Bostonian, John Nichols, lost his first round match today to Charles Leslie, Montreal, 6—3, 6—1.

Lott and Marcel Rainville, Montreal, defeated Leslie Clegg, Montreal and Jim McDougall, Montreal, 6—2, 6—2, in doubles.

College Boxer Dies From Injuries in Ring

Chico, Calif., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Casey Millsaps, 18, of Stony Ford, Calif., a freshman at Chico State Teachers College, died today from injuries received in a boxing bout with Paul Byrne, senior, last night. He collapsed in the dressing room after the bout.

Millsaps suffered a basal fracture of the skull in 1921, which is believed to have caused last night's injuries to prove fatal.

Assistant District Attorney J. M. McPherson expressed belief no action would be taken against Byrne.

C. U. BEATEN, 34 TO 31, BY DUQUESNE

Cardinal Rally Ended by Whistle; Visitors Lead, 33-17.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

DUQUESNE UNIVERSITY'S beautifully molded basket ball team downed its second consecutive local opponent last night, outlasting Catholic University by the count of 34-31 in a tense contest. Two brilliant C. U. spurts failed to check the burly Dukes, who gave one of the greatest exhibitions of basket ball man power seen here in many moons in piling up its winning stack of points.

The unrelenting final whistle stopped a C. U. rally that had nearly 1,000 fans on their feet shrieking for its continuance. Duquesne had toyed with the determined Cardinals like masters combating against novices through half of the second half. The score stood 33-17 in their favor, and an easy slide into a safe berth seemed to be their only fate.

But C. U. breaking out once more with the not totally sane manner of shooting from every angle and all positions, began hitting the dead center of the rim with a consistency that bordered on the amazing.

White Starts Rally.

The C. U. rally started when White dorpped in one from the middle of the floor and gained its full stride when Buster Sheary, racing down the sideline near the middle let fly and counted two more points.

Duquesne then gave a stupendous exhibition of freezing the ball, passing like fury in the very faces of the Cards, like a general explosion of skyrockets, and for four minutes would not yield the ball. Galiher broke the spell by intercepting a pass and shooting without either looking at the basket or hesitating. It was a knockout pot, and Sheary followed it up with a marathon heave. McGeever, giant and masterful, stopped C. U. a moment while he looped in a foul, and then C. U. was back in step again. Galiher and White came through on two long shots before the whistle sent the game down into local basket ball history.

Catholic started out well enough, leading 7-1 and 11-4 on long shooting, but Duquesne then fairly stopped the breathing of the fans and Cards with a display of unmitigated excellent play that left no doubt as to which was the better club. Catholic was overhauled at 11-11 in record time, as Duquesne came out of their zone defense pits and clamped an adhesive man-to-man style of play on C. U.'s long shooting. The Cards were unable to score a point for 7 minutes, while the Dukes' own marksmen, the gawky McGeever and that apparition of speed, Shorty Reiter, changed the score from 11-4 in C. U.'s favor to 21-11 in Duquesne's.

Layton Again Victor In 3-Cushion Tourney

Chicago, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Johnny Layton, the Sedalia, Mo., red-head, kept his slate clear in the battle for the world's three cushion billiard championship today by disposing of J. N. Bozeman, of Vallejo, Calif., 50 to 41 in 53 innings. Allen Hall, Chicago, who was upset in his first match, came back to defeat Bud Westhus, St. Louis, 50 to 29, in 51 innings.

Frank S. Scoville, of Buffalo, won his second contest by defeating Gus Copulos, Eugene, Oreg., 50 to 34 in 48 innings.

Boxing Career Defended In Tunney Autobiography

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—If he were 21 again and faced with the choice of a careers, Gene Tunney would follow his original course and pick boxing, he asserted today.

Ever since his retirement as heavyweight champion of the world, Tunney has insisted that when the time came for his autobiography to be prepared, he would write it himself. He has dictated 65,000 words for this purpose and Collier's Weekly will publish his story.

"Fortunately or unfortunately, according to how you look at it," he said today, "every heavyweight champion inherits biographers. With some champions, the more biographers the better. Personally, I have never seen the necessity for the numerous biographers every champion must stand for.

"There have been at least four biographies written about me. They were so inaccurate from beginning to end that to me they were more amusing than historical.

"I have come to the conclusion that since the public is sufficiently interested in its pugilistic champions to want to know the details of their careers, the least they should get in return for this interest is a true ac-

New Field House Is Dedicated as Gov. Ritchie Attends.

By JACK ESPEY.

MARYLAND UNIVERSITY'S Southern Conference basket ball champions fittingly observed the dedication of their new $200,000 coliseum at College Park last night, defeating the Navy's highly touted quintet, 26 to 15, before a crowd of 5,00, which jammed the big structure to the doors.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, in whose honor the building, Ritchie Coliseum, was named, headed a group of notables in Maryland public life and including Rear Admiral Thomas G. Hart, superintendent of the Naval Academy.

Gov. Ritchie and his party delayed the opening of the ceremonies a half hour and the game did not get under way until 9:45, as the members of the opposing teams waited nervously in their dressing rooms.

U. S. Senator Tydings Makes Dedicatory Speech.

United States Senator Millard Tydings, an alumnus of Maryland, rendered the dedicatory speech and, in closing, boosted Gov. Ritchie as the man "worthy in every respect to be the next President of the United States." Deafening appleuse greeted his speech.

The crowd represented the entire student body of the university and many points throughout the State and the District of Columbia. By 8:30 p. m., the ticket offices ceased operations, as the stands were filled at that time and all available standing room was rapidly being filled. It was the largest crowd ever to witness a basket ball game of any kind in the South Atlantic region.

When the game finally commenced both teams showed the effects of the nervous strain and throughout first half the game was spotted with wild passes and inaccurate shooting.

Maryland, however, was quicker to regain its bearings and assumed a lead of 10 to 5 before the intermission.

Elliott Loughlin, crack Navy forward, was held fairly well in check throughout the game by Maryland's tightly knit zone defense, and with their ace scorer failing to find the basket with his usual consistency, the Midshipmen were never a factor offensively after the first ten minutes of the second half.

Vincent, Berger Old Line Stars.

Rufus Vincent, Maryland sophomore center, and Bozie Berger, All-American guard, carried the burden of Maryland's decisive onslaught in the second period. Vincent scored two field goals and two fouls, while Berger, the pivotal point in the Old Liners' passing, directed the scoring of four other goals in which Vincent and Chalmers were on the scoring end with accurate tosses underneath the basket.

Navy threatened once midway of the second period when Kastein, Bedell and Loughlin scored goals in quick succession to pull up to within one point of a tie, 14-13. However, Vincent eased the tenseness among Maryland's rooters at this period by nonchalantly caging a free toss following which Buckey Buscher, sneaking away from his guard cleverly deposited the ball through the cords on one of Berger's beautiful passes.

Vincent, with four field goals and two fouls, won individual scoring honors. Ed Ronkin and Shorty Chalmers, each accounted for five points in addition to numerous fine defensive plays. Loughlin and Kastein were the only Navy men to score more than one goal, each holding the ball twice from scrimmage.

U. S. Selects Olympic Skiers Without Trials

Lake Placid, N. Y., Jan. 20 (U.P.).—The team which will represent the United States in the cross-country ski events of the 1932 winter Olympic games at Lake Placid was chosen today at a meeting of the American ski committee.

Charles N. Proctor, chairman of the committee, said the 11 men named to the team were selected on the basis of past performances because of the lack of snow and ice.

Those named for the team were Rolf Monsen, Lake Placid; Nils Backstrom, Lebanon, N. H.; Ollie Zetterstrom, Schenectady, N. Y.; Erling Anderson, Berlin, N. H.; Norton R. Billings, Denver, Colo.; Edward J. Blood, New Hampshire State College; Lloyd C. Ellingson, St. Olaf's College; John M. Erickson, Wakefield, Mass.; James Harsh, Granby, Colo.; Richard Parsons, Salisbury, Conn., and Robert Reis, Berlin, N. H.

VANDER POOL IS BEATEN IN YEAR'S BIGGEST RACE UPSET

Comstockery, 59 to 1, Wins At Hialeah

Aged Gelding, Jumper Last Summer, Cops by Nose.

Comes From Rear to Nip Odds-On Favorite at the Wire.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The Boynton Handicap, feature race here today, resulted in probably the biggest upset since the victory of the 100 to 1 shot Jim Dandy over Gallant Fox and Whichone in 1930. Comstockery, the elderly gelding from the Greentree Stable, which campaigned all last summer as a steeplechase performer and had not been to the races since last August, scored a nose victory over William M. Moore's Vander Pool, odds-on choice, which was noted for winning fifteen straight races as a 2 and 3 year old. Comstockery paid $119.60 for $2 and ran the 7 furlongs over a muddy track in 1:24 4-5.

Vander Pool took the place from Kincsen, the crack Western mare, by a length and a half. My Dandy was fourth and last. The large crowd was stunned when the rank outsider beat the mighty Vander Pool to the wire and there were a few wild cries from fortunate souls who backed the Greentree gelding with utter disregard of form.

Vander Pool Rushes To Front.

Vander Pool, apparently cured of the leg cut which he sustained when he got in a jam and ran last in the Inaugural Handicap opening day, had his speed today, and although My Dandy beat him away from the barrier, the Camp Fire colt quickly overhauled the Western gelding and went on to open up two lengths advantage around the bend.

Comstockery, a confirmed rail runner, showing great fondness for the soft footing, stole through on the inside at the turn for home, while Vander Pool was in the middle and My Dandy fading rapidly on the outside. Kincsen, a notoriously slow beginner, was gaining ground rapidly. Tommy Malley did not use the whip on Vander Pool, although Comstockery was hanging to the favorite with determination. My Dandy dropped out of it as Kincsen reached third place. Verlyn Smith rode strong and smoothly on Comstockery and the long shot got his nose in front a stride from the finish.

Ironsides Finally Wins At Jeff Park.

Jefferson Park, New Orleans, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—After failing to win a race since 1930, Ironsides, a 7-year-old son of Man o' War from the Sophia Lee Stable, finally found a field he could beat when he led a band of sprinters home in the Clem McCarthy Purse today.

The veteran campaigner had finished second several times in much better company, but today he dropped down to a claiming class to win. As it was, he was just able to get the decision by a nose over S. W. Labrot's Annapolitan in the 6-furlong sprint. Third share of the purse went to the Lone Star Stable's Aunt Deb. Ironsides' time for the distance was 1:14 1-5 and he paid $7.40.

Thirteen tickets were sold on the winning double combination of Cotton Time and Noel's First, which paid $147 for $2.

Martin Rides Three Winners At Havana.

Havana, Cuba, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The riding of Jockey R. Martin featured an all-claiming program at Oriental Park today. Over a track which was still slow from the rainfall of two days ago, Martin scored with three of his mounts. He started his triple with Harry Hieover, even money favorite in the second race, won with H. Nesteter's Bad Axe in the 5½ furlong feature and finished the day aboard Dea, winner of the sixth race.

Bad Axe paid 4 to 1, while Dea returned 3 to 1.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GLENSIDE, $7.80, $4.50, $2.90; ANGRY PLUME, $4.10, $2.60; BATTY, $3.80.

GLENSIDE moved up stoutly after going a furlong and, easily disposing of CHARLIE, opened up a commanding lead rounding turn into home stretch and appeared to be only galloping at end. ANGRY PLUME began slowly and went wide all the way. BATTY outgamed tiring FERVID. Latter, hustled along from the start, tired. CHARLIE broke fast and showed early speed, but stopped.

SECOND RACE—Two furlongs. Purse, $1,300. Aladdin City Purse. For maiden 2-year-old fillies. Start good. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 2:47. Off at 2:54. Winner, W. C. Weant's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WISE ANN, $11.10, $5.70, $4.70; MINTWINA, $5.00, $3.60; TRANSEN, $5.90.

WISE ANN, a good post actor, went to the front with a rush soon after the start, shook off MINTWINA and TRANSEN last furlong, bore out and was going away at end. MINTWINA broke rapidly and met with no mishaps, weakened under drive and was hard pressed to stall off TRANSEN. TOY TOWN looks like one of the improving sort. TRY COME broke with the leaders, but sprawled a bit and was not persevered with.

THIRD RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:20. Off at 3:21½. Winner, W. C. Weant's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—COADY, $11.10, $4.00, out; BRAGGADOCIO, $8.60, out; TOREALONG, out.

COADY raced in hand until well around the far turn, where he was taken around the leaders, made a wide turn into home stretch and finished courageously under punishment. BRAGGADOCIO worked his passage up next the inside rail, caught and passed the pacemaker at top of home stretch, but tired last sixteenth. TOREALONG weakened. DEDICATE appeared to be only galloping first half mile. He quit when challenged and finished with his ears pinned back.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:47. Off at 3:48. Winner, C. E. Hamilton's blk. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUN MASK, $5.00, $3.40, $2.70; SILVERY, $4.90, $3.90; RED FACE, $3.80.

SUN MASK outran his field to the first turn and, after taking the lead, was rated in front the remainder of the trip. Arthur had a snug hold on him at the finish. SILVERY saved ground rounding the far turn, where she came through next the rail, was hard ridden all through home stretch, but winner always held her safe. RED FACE moved up with a threatening challenge on the outside rounding turn into home stretch, but tired under the whip. JIMMIE L., bumped, was knocked off his stride at first turn.

FIFTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,500. Boynton Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:18. Off at 4:19½. Winner, Greentree Stable's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—COMSTOCKERY, $119.60, $11.10, out; VANDER POOL, $4.70, out; KINCSEN, out.

COMSTOCKERY, outrun first half, came through on inside rounding the far turn, fought it out with VANDER POOL all last furlong and outgamed the latter at end. VANDER POOL set a rapid pace, stalled off keen opposition from MY DANDY rounding far turn and hung on well under the weight in final drive. KINCSEN, a distant trailer first three furlongs, was taken to the outside and, closing an immense gap, was going the strongest of lot at end.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 4:50. Off at 4:53. Winner, George D. Widener's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PANETIAN, $3.80, $2.80, out; BOCCIOCCO, $2.30, out; ELLICE, out.

PANETIAN moved up in resolute fashion after passing the half-mile pole and drew away entering home stretch. He held BACCIOCCO safe all through home stretch. Assistant starter had hold of BACCIOCCO at post and latter broke slowly. He was blocked at turn out of back stretch, where Mills attempted to go through in between ELLICE and PANETIAN, was then taken to outside, but hung after getting to pacemaker. ELLICE set a very fast pace, but tired badly last quarter.

SEVENTH RACE—One add one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:17½. Off at 5:19. Winner, F. Hock, jr.'s ch. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—OUTPOST, $16.80, $7.00, $3.80; ROAN ANTELOPE, $17.00, $7.90; LION HEARTED, $4.40.

OUTPOST was well ridden and at home in the going, was rated close to leaders to far turn, where boy urged him forward. He easily assumed command and never was threatened once in front. ROAN ANTELOPE, displaying good speed, stuck to the pace all the way and closed gamely. LION HEARTED, in improved form, moved up threateningly around bend, but hung in stretch under pressure. FRANCES ST. L., outrun early, closed well. DUELIST stopped after reaching half-mile pole.

—Hialeah Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

HIALEAH PARK, Miami, Fla., Jan. 20.—Muddy track conditions have seriously affected the racing at Hialeah Park, being more pronounced because the course has been rebuilt recently and is green. It should improve from such condition after settling down. Featuring the card tomorrow, the Palm Island Purse, at seven furlongs, gives older horses a chance.

DANCING MACK is selected to win on his good showing Monday against Lady Broadcast and Raccoon, high class horses, in which he finished third. He also can run well in the mud. CHATFORD, second to Judge Schilling a few days ago, is the contender. MARTIS is a superior mudder and should figure in the race.

FIRST RACE—LOVE OFFERING was second to Sobieha in her last start and should win. MAE SWEEP, recent winner, should make it a close race. CHOLLA only has to repeat her last race to be in the money.

SECOND RACE—CHUCK B is selected. He won his last start at Tropical Park, beating an average field, and seems to have a chance to repeat. MIKE REYNOLDS, winner at the longest odds of the Hialeah Park meeting Tuesday in the mud, is rated the contender, and a dangerous one at that. ROME VENNIE, third to Mike Reynolds, should hold the others safe.

THIRD RACE—MISS CHILLA should repeat in the third race. She beat SUN MASK last out and is in top form. She has won her two last starts. BRUSH showed improvement last out and is rated the contender. He is a fast horse when at his best. CRACK PLAY, on his earlier races this winter, has a chance in this field.

FOURTH RACE—NIGHT EDITION, twice a Florida winner, should make it three in a row. OIL QUEEN, which beat James River and Song Hit a few days ago, in 1:06 3-5, may be the favorite and is conceded to be a dangerous rival for the purse. TROMBONE is a mudder and should get in the money. He has not started at this track.

SIXTH RACE—TYPHOON is well placed. WORKLESS is almost a match for him but lacks the necessary early speed. It will be a duel in the stretch, but on recent form TYPHOON has a shade advantage. TACK has a good turn of speed but the route may be a trifle long. These three should be the money horses.

SEVENTH RACE—FAIR BILL, most improved of the platers at the Florida course, is selected to defeat GRIFFIN in the seventh because of his apprentice allowance. Both won their last races, GRIFFIN scoring over TYPHOON, and FAIR BILL defeating TACK. BIRD OF PREY is rated third.

4 TURF ACES IN SPECIAL AT AGUA

Phar Lap in Debut in Mexico in $10,000 International Feb. 21.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—James N. Crofton, president of the Agua Caliente Jockey Club, announced today the posting of a $10,000 purse for a match race here Sunday, February 21, between Phar Lap, Australian wonder horse; Marine, Canadian champion; Dr. Freeland and possibly Plucky Play, two of the best in the United States, for "the international championship."

Thomas P. Gorman, assistant general manager, said arrangements had been completed for the racing of D. J. Davis' Phar Lap, which is expected to arrive here within a week, Bennie Creech's Dr. Freeland and Kenneth Dawes' Marine.

Entry of Plucky Play Sought.

Gorman said he and Crofton planned to get in touch with Norman Church, owner of Plucky Play, immediately in an effort to complete arrangements for that horse's entrance. No others will run in the event, a mile and one-sixteenth affair.

The weights to be carried by the horses will be approximately 10 pounds below standard handicap assignments.

Each of the four has been nominated for the $50,000 Agua Caliente Handicap March 20.

Wheatley Stables Buys Jockey Mills' Contract

Special to The Washington Post.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 20.—Mrs. H. C. Phipps, who with her brother, Ogden Mills, owns the racing string of the Wheatley Stables, has bought the contract on Hank Mills, the apprentice boy who has been winning so many races in the last six months. The price was $7,500.

Clark's Goal Decides For Takoma-S. S. Five

Clark's basket with a few seconds left of the game won for Takoma-Silver Spring a 19-18 victory over Hyattsville yesterday in one of the feature county games of the year. Play was nip and tuck from the start, and the winners overcame an 8-15 disadvantage in the third quarter to come home victorious.

In a preliminary game the Hyattsville High Midgets defeated the Takoma-Silver Spring Midgets, 14-3. The only basket the losers were able to score was earned by Vandervoot.

EARL LANFORD of Charlotte, N.C., MUST UNDERGO AN OPERATION EVERY DAY TO KEEP ALIVE . . .
McClure Newspaper Syndicate
1-21-32

SEVERAL years ago doctors discovered that Earl Lanford's esophagus had closed and that he was slowly starving to death. For six months his only means of taking food was through a rubber tube. Finally, his esophagus was forced open with water, and to keep it from closing again he was given a small metal ball with a string attached, so that he could swallow it, then pull it up again. The size of the ball has been increased, until now it is slightly more than one inch in diameter. He has to perform the operation daily.

G. U. Preps Eke Out 10-9 Win in Baltimore

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 20.—Georgetown Prep, of Washington, won a "baseball score" victory over Mount St. Joseph's basket ball team here today, 10-9, after holding an 8-7 advantage at the half.

Close guarding was the motif of the day's struggle. Al Heekin's shot from the foul line three minutes from the end was the deciding factor.

It gave the winners a record of 8 out of 10.

BAN ON LONG PUZZLE TO PEGLER

Winter Track Is Held Strange Place to Find Honesty.

What Brother Long did seems to have been nothing worse than a smart Yankee, or Hoosier trick, reminiscent of the smart Yankee trick which Mr. Gar Wood, the speedboat racer, put over on the Englishman in the race at Detroit last summer. It was strictly legal to bet any sum of money in the mutuels at the track up to the time of the closing of the books, and Brother Long merely availed himself of the privilege of all betters. It may have been unethical, from a fastidious point of view, for a man with an interest in the track and with horses of his own running in the same race to manipulate the odds by the pressure of money, especially as he was betting against his own live stock. But ordinarily they are not very fastidious at the winter horse tracks, particularly at Agua, or Ah-Wah.

Still more puzzling is the presence at Agua Caliente of Mr. Francis Nelson, the steward who took the action against Mr. Long, because Mr. Nelson enjoys a reputation for extraordinary honesty and independence. It would not be just right to say that Agua Caliente is no place for an honest man, but an honest man would not have to look far to find more congenial surroundings than those of a winter horse track, particularly one running in Mexico.

As an honest steward, under the ehics of the horse running business, Mr. Nelson's action was consistent with his reputation, and it will redound to his credit. But the circumstances of the case were such that in ruling out Mr. Long, one of the coproprietors of the place, and all his live stock, Mr. Nelson unavoidably acted in sympathy with the chain of pool rooms whose proprietors habitually practice the same sort of Yankee, or Hoosier tricks on their patrons that Mr. Long practiced on them.

Poolroom Betters' Squaks Unheard.

The patrons of the pool rooms, however, have no recourse but futile, individual squawks to one another, and when, for once, a price was rigged in their favor, the miscreant Long was visited by swift and terrible punishment. I have not read anywhere of any effective action to exclude from any of the horse tracks the representatives of the pool rooms who regularly engage in practices similar to those of Mr. Long to the benefit of the poolrooms and the detriment of their customers.

There has been no mention of the Caliente Sweepstake, or lottery, this year, and I wonder if that, too, has been affected by the depression. The Caliente Sweepstake was a copy of the Calcutta Sweep of England, and there was a large sale of tickets when it was first conducted in 1929. The most scrupulous precautions were taken to protect from error the clients who had purchased tickets at $1 each, or $20 for a book of twenty, and it was reported that several hundred thousand were distributed throughout the United States and Canada.

There was some thoughtless criticism of the sportsmen in charge of the sweepstake when the drawing disclosed an unknown copper miner as the winner of the capital prize of $80,000, some persons going so far as to suggest that the copper miner was a dummy and complaining that, anyway, $80,000 was not enough for the first prize, considering how widely the tickets had been circulated.

Administration Expensive.

The management of the sweepstake bore this criticism with commendable fortitude and dignity, however, realizing that thoughtless rabble seldom rewards altruistic service with anything but suspicion and complaint. The receipts of the sweepstake, over and above the various prize awards, were spent for necessary administration expenses, and any well-informed person will concede that administration is a very expensive thing. I thought the management acted in a wise and dignified manner when the boys decided not to honor these evil mutterings with a formal explanation or denial and to stand on their reputations as sportsmen of the highest type and also on their constitutional rights (Mex.).

Possibly, while the reorganization is on, the American Association of Poolroom, Handbook, Slot Machine and Punch Board Operators will wish to bid for influential places on the board, to keep the racing at Ah-Wah on a high plane and guard against unethical practices such as Mr. Long confessed to.

On second thought, however, maybe that would not be necessary. That interests seem to be well guarded at Ah-Wah.

EASTERN HIGH PUTS GONZAGA BASKETERS TO ROUT, 40 TO 22

Guyon's Five Always in Front

Eastern Steps Out in Final Period to Widen Gap.

Gonzaga Good Only in Spots as Victors Win 19th in Row.

CHECKED on all sides by the determined defensive play of Gonzaga High's basket ball team for three-quarters of the game, Eastern stepped out in the closing minutes of a well-played contest yesterday to down the Purple, 40-22, under an avalanche of last-minute shooting.

With only two players on the team capable of holding their shooting with truly fast competition, Nolan and Fitzgerald, Gonzaga hung tenaciously to the Lincoln Parkers and were behind by only 12-15 at the half.

Nolan, Fitzgerald Slump.

A natural let-down on the part of Nolan and Fitzgerald and the failure of Gonzaga's guards to remain as adhesively to the Eastern marksmen as before began to widen the breach between the teams as the third period wore on. By the end of the quarter Eastern had a 23-15 advantage.

Once in the fourth quarter, there was no stopping Eastern, as it shot its way to its nineteenth consecutive win of the season. Barney Kane and Al Waters, held scoreless up to that point, scored 17 points in the waning moments, giving a thrilling exhibition of marksmanship with the leather balloon.

Australian Olympic Hopes Get Hard Blow

Sydney, Australia, Jan. 20 (A.P.). Australian hopes of winning a sprint event at the Olympic Games at Los Angeles this year received a blow today with the announcement that James Carlton, 22-year-old sprint star, is to give up athletics to enter the church.

Carlton recently equaled world's records for the 220 and 100 yard events.

Davidson Coach Bid Is Declined by Dick

Charlotte, N. C., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—L. W. Dick, jr., at Woodberry Forest School, Orange, Va., today wired the Charlotte News that he was not accepting an offer to join the coaching staff of Davidson College.

Dick was reported in newspaper dispatches today as having been offered the post of head coach. Monk Younger, former head coach, resigned recently to become back field coach at Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Southeastern League Plans to Reorganize

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 20 (U.P.).—The old Southeastern Baseball League was revived here today. Representatives of eight Southern cities decided to reorganize the league and set January 31 as the date for a final meeting in Montgomery for posting of forfeits and framing of a constitution.

Each of the eight representatives expressed confidence in the success of the proposed loop and assured the gathering that his town would meet the tentative conditions and officially join the league at the January 31 meeting.

The eight cities represented were Columbus and Macon, Ga.; Pensacola, Fla.; Jackson and Meridian, Miss., and Selma, Mobile and Montgomery, Ala.

EX-HARVARD STAR DIES.

Boston, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—George B. Morison, 71, old-time Harvard athlete, died today. He was a member of the class of '83, played quarter back on the varsity football squad and attained prominence in track events. He was one of the active founders of the Boston Athletic Club. He was a native of Baltimore, but after his college career made his home here.

CASEYS IN THREE GAMES.

The Knights of Columbus unlimited quintet will meet the Naval Reserve tossers tonight at 8 o'clock on the Caseys' court. The Knights defeated the Reserves earlier in the season when they were playing under the name of the Pontiacs. Saturday the Caseys will tackle the Rockville A. A. at Rockville. Sunday the Santa Maria Council, of Baltimore, will meet the locals at the K. of C. at 3 o'clock.

Hitting the Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON

AS if the Hecht team in the Commercial League were not already strong enough, the powers that be inserted Red Megaw in the line-up against the Brodt crew at Convention Hall last night, and the result was something akin to applying a sledge hammer to dynamite. The department store team piled up a grand total of 1,707 and a game of 582, winning all three by a comfortable margin.

Individual honors in the circuit, however, were claimed by Paul Jarmon, of C. & P., who scattered the wood for a game of 136, and Clem Smith, of Convention Hall, who kept plugging away until he had the tidy sum of 358 reposing beside his name. Kanns, Briggs Meat, and Colonial Ice Cream won all the cake from Call Carl, Fitzpatricks Service Station and Edmonds. The home team dropped one to C. & P.

Frances Heil led Georgetown to a clean sweep victory over Recreation in another Ladies' District League match at Georgetown with games of 108, 116, and 115, a total of 339.

Three new records for the season and a flock of clean-sweep victories featured the action in the Nautical League at Columbia. George Fredericks hung up a new individual set mark for the boys to shoot at when he tumbled 395 pins in the three games allotted him. Washington No 1 chalked a pair of new team marks when it rolled a game of 601 and set of 1,794. Otto Biggs, of Columbia, had a game of 151, which enabled his mates to win the odd-one from Potomac. Washington, No. 1, Drifters No. 1 and Anchor applied the whitewash brush with glee to Bonzai, Eldorado, and Washington No. 2. Drifters No. 2 was one better than Washington No. 3 in the remaining tilt.

The individual spoils of the Bureau of Standards League were split three ways at Columbia, Barmash and Thomas dividing the set honors with 364 each, and Roeser taking the game prize with his 155. B. T. A. clamped down on the team honors with a game of 587 and set of 1,570. Files, B. T. A., and Technologists odd-gamed Ceramists, Engineers, and Chemists, and Industrial took all three from Mimeos.

Rendezvous enjoyed a field day at the expense of Takoma Park in the Ladies District League (how many more?) at Takoma Park, winning all three games by wide margins and also the individual honors. Every member of the winning team rolled 300 or better. The Rendezvous scores were 567, 551 and 584. Takoma Park's efforts were recorded by the official scorer as 469, 457 and 440. Irene Scott was the leading lady with a game of 126 and set of 353. Peggy Babcock gave her a run for the set prize with a score of 336. Maude Youmans was best for the losers with a game of 118 and set of 303.

"Hen" Bromley finally carried out a threat he has been making for a long time and knocked off the high set honors in the Georgetown Church League at Arcadia last night. "Hen's" 336 set was a big help to Peck Chapel No. 1, which bagged the team set honors with a total of 1,644. Skeen's 136 was good for the game laurels, and Grace Episcopal captured the team prize in this respect with a mark of 575.

The John Blicks beat the Columbias out of a couple of close ones to gain a 2-1 decision in the Ladies District League at Arcadia. The Blick's scores were 491, 503 and 470. The Columbia games were 495, 487 and 460. Lucy Owens rolled a game of 116 and Bess Hoffman a set of 308 for the winners, while Doris Goodall dented the wood for a 118 game and 322 total.

Central Armature, No. 1, which has enjoyed a good reputation ever since we can remember in the Electric League, added to its prestige at Convention Hall by knocking the maples loose from their moorings for a game of 553 and set of 1,594 to lead the others last night. Payne's 140 game and 355 total topped the individual list.

Joe McGolrick (derby and all), and Norman Schroth dominated the proceedings in the Knights of Columbus loop at the hall. Joe tickled the tenpins for a game of 159 and Norman shoved 370 off the alleys in his three games. Their team, Marquette, captured the game and set honors with scores of 610 and 1,714.

Entry blanks are now available for the first annual American Legion handicap tournament, which will be rolled Saturday, February 27, at the Arcadia Alleys. The affair is open to all veterans of the World War, regardless of whether or not they are members of the legion. The test will consist of three games and 115 will be scratch. Bowlers having averages of less than 115 will be given two-thirds of the difference between scratch and their highest league average. Those without a league average will be considered as having an average of 100. The entry fee will be $1, plus the cost of games. A trophy will be presented to the post of the legion having the six highest individual totals. Entries will be received at all alleys up until midnight of February 20.

John Blick's Midgets will shoot it out with the Mount Rainier Midgets Saturday at the Arcadia Alleys at 7:30 p. m. Bob Chalfonte, recently crowned District of Columbia boys' champion, will captain the Blicks. His teammates will be Jackie Simmons, Bob Sisler, Al Baer, and the inevitable Ouncle Harrison. Hauser, Quigley, Gardener, Woods and Ingram will roll for Mount Rainier. The weekly Arcadia Sweepstakes will be in order immediately following the match.

Eva Gude held the whip hand as Convention Hall swamped King Pin in the Ladies District League at Convention Hall. Eva had the bottles chattering with her game of 135 and set of 339, which enabled the home team to pick up all the marbles. The winning scores were 520, 502 and 532. King Pin's efforts were 484, 494 and 514. Marie Whalen's 324 set and Helen Sullivan's 121 game were high for King Pin.

Louis Chipouras, who stirred up a little excitement in the Ahepa League a few nights ago, visited Lucky Strike last night and put another record in the basket. He rolled a game of 153, high for the year, and a set of 381 to aid the Dri-Kleeners of the Dynamite League. The Lab Katz also were in a record-breaking mood, smashing the team game and set marks with scores of 563 and 1,622.

The Pale Drys squeezed three victories out of Takoma Park in a National Capital League set-to at Lucky Strike. The Drys' games were 583, 616 and 620. Astor Clarke was head man with a game of 140 and set of 395. The Takoma games were 503, 591 and 529.

In the fifty-eleventh Ladies' District League match of the evening the Bill Woods set the Meyer Davis quint down with the short end of a 2-1 count. Elaine Palmer's 332 set topped the Woodies' scores. The winning teams' games were 527, 493 and 479, while its rival turned in totals of 450, 509 and 472.

Ed Roudabush stole the show in the Business Men's League at Silver Spring, rolling a game of 149 and set of 366, but his team, Victor Flower Shop, finished on the wrong end of a 2-to-1 score with Jerry Johnsons. The Johnsons, by the way, had a set of 1,621, and the Florist's a game of 577. Forsythe's Drugs, Anderson's Cafe and Southern Railway gained one-game victories over Bergmann's Laundry, Silver Spring, Fire Department and Langdon Mills. Swann's Service took all three from Independent Oil Co.

BALTIMORE "Y" SEEKS GAMES.

The Baltimore Y. M. C. A. quintet, runner-up in the first round of the Baltimore Basket Ball League, would like to arrange games with Washington teams on a home-and-home basis. Teams interested should address Thomas H. Keller at 1908 East Fayette street, Baltimore, Md.

POTOMAC B.C. VICTIM IN UPSET

Boat Five Bows, 19-11, to Adelphites in Community Play.

THE Community Center League passed one of its busiest nights last night, dominated by an overwhelming upset when the last-place Adelphites, of the A league, downed the league-leading Potomac Boat Club five, 19-11. The Adelphites, terrific underdogs at the start, led from the beginning to the end.

Concentrating on Barker, ace of the Potomac team, the Adelphite guards, E. Farhood and the Finleys, held that star scoreless. Their fine defensive work was reflected in the rest of the team, for none of the Boatmen could score more than once from the floor.

Close victories were scored by the United Typewriter Grays, Saranacs and Tremonts in the other tussles. The feature of these games was Tremonts' 17-16 victory over Capital Awning.

ALEXANDRIA LISTS FOUR BOUTS

Lawson and Strickler Booked in One Tilt on All-Star Card.

ERIC LAWSON, who took the fans by storm last Tuesday night at Alexandria, will return to meet Billy Strickler in one of four eight-round all-star bouts at Portner's Arena Tuesnay night, it was announced last night.

Another match between Nick Antonelli, crack featherweight from the Mohawk Club, to meet Kin Cosden, Cordova, Md., youth, was also closed out.

Burns, Jacobs Bout In Making.

Efforts are being made to match Bobby Burns, Baltimore lightweight, with Stumpy Jacobs, Hopewell, Va., flash, for another eight-round Tommy Bashara, Norfolk lightweight, and Lew Raymond, hard-hitting Baltimore lightweight and brother of Phil and Joey, are being considered for a meeting.

If the last two bouts are closed it will bring together eight boxers of high caliber in what should be one of the best cards put on since the doors of Portner's Arena were opened.

The Strickler-Lawson match is a "natural." Strickler had Eric down for nine at Newport News last summer and claimed to be a victim of a "home town" decision. Billy has been training diligently for three weeks and is in the best of condition.

Seats are to be placed on sale at Goldie Ahearn's and at Vic's Sport Store tomorrow.

Skinkers Face Test In Philly Five Sunday

A carbon copy of "Chick" Passon, former Philadelphia and Washington Palace basket ball standout, will be introduced at Bolling Field Gymnasium Sunday when Passon professionals take issue with Skinker Bros. Basket Ball Team.

Capt. Nat Passon, who has been personally tutored by his well-known brother since early boyhood, will be among those heading the invasion when play is launched at 3 o'clock.

Singularly interested in the progress of the Quaker City independent champions, "Chick" Passon and Brother Harry, coowner of the Philadelphia Sphas, have assisted personally in coaching the club. And in doing so, automatically have succeeded in turning out one of the fastest and most colorful combinations in Pennsylvania.

BOXING, AS CAREER, DEFENDED BY TUNNEY

count and not a ghost writer's dream."

"Independence is the goal of all ambition," he wrote. "Fortunate men occasionally find the way to independence without much search. Wise men select the medium for which they are best equipped by nature and training.

"In my case, though, the ladder was short, the climb was sheer."

Tunney said he had no intent to discredit professional boxing in his series of articles, and had no vindicative intent if he happened "to step on the toes of the great or the small."

"I have only told the circumstances as I remember them and as I reacted to them at the time," he said.

"But, although I am an ardent devotee of the sport, it could only be with my tongue in my cheek that I could express affection for all the elements that make up the profession."

Tunney also philosophized somewhat on the public conception of the facts that made up some of the outstanding events in his career.

Tales of Fight Amused Him.

"I am one who enjoys reading biographies," he said. "I insist, however, on having accuracy. It is terribly amusing to hear barbers, policemen, waiters, fictionists and others express their expertness on what took place in the ring at Soldier's Field, Chicago, on September 22, 1927 (the night Tunney fought Jack Dempsey for the second time; night of the 'long count').

"It occurs to me, now that all the experts are on record, I, as one of the principals in that affair, might humbly add my impressions to that already greatly swollen record. The average record of an event, if reported by ten witnesses, will be somewhat garbled.

"To add to the general confusion I am going to tell what happened, but I insist here that there is no experience in my life that stands out as clearly as do incidents leading up to the Chicago match, the match itself, and what took place afterward."

Shikat, Szabo Headliners Of Good Mat Card Tonight

Freeman and Hagen in Cofeature; Calza-Aberg, Wilson-Lewis and Kirilenko-Gruburger Bouts Also Listed.

DICK SHIKAT, smoothest and strongest of all the mighty men of the mat menace in America, and once owner of the title now in the very safe keeping of a gentleman of Grecian extraction known as J. Londos, headlines tonight's wrestling show at the Washington Auditorium, into which Matchmaker Joe Turner has dragged much in the way of rassling talent.

Shikat meets Sandor Szabo, a clean cut young Hungarian with enough wrestling and rassling skill in his Apollo-like frame to warrant his billing as a headliner in all grunt and grumble districts. The two fought here a month ago in a match which ended with Szabo only partially conscious in the orchestra pit, and Shikat in little better state in the ring.

Shikat Figures to Win.

Shikat, to all appearances, was on the verge of being licked. Three times his middle had been the landing field for Szabo's leaping butts and the German was groggy, not to mention punch drunk. But he averted the final butt and Szabo, its prestidigitator, went sailing down into the composite lap of the $3 patrons.

The boys are down for a two-hour go, or one fall, and the feeling around the barber shop tribunal seems to be that Shikat should win by a fall.

The second feature tonight mates Herby Freeman and George Hagen, a couple of boys who go in for the scientific side of the thing, but the real next-to-best offering seems to be the giant George Calza, rassling's handsomest man, who is down on Mr. Turner's books to meet one Alex Aberg, whose nationality has been shifted back and forth between Finland and Siberia, but who is claimed to be a rather tough sort of hombre.

"Doc" Wilson Takes on Lewis.

Doc Wilson, who lures more women to rassling shows than you could shake a flying mare at, is another preliminary light. Wilson's partner tonight is Bill Lewis, who used to be quite the Roman candle in this precinct.

Matros Kirilenko, the ponderous Russian who parades out garbed in little more than a tiger skin, meets Fred Grubmyer in another bout.

Women will be admitted free, with escorts. First tangle at 8:30 o'clock.

Fraters Beat Virginians In Alexandria Series

Alexandria, Va., Jan. 20.—The Fraters triumphed over the Virginians by a score of 18-17 in a City League game played here tonight. It was one of the closest contests played in Alexandria this season. The Virginians jumped out in front in the first half and led by a 12-7 count at the half. This was the largest lead either team held throughout the entire game. The Fraters rallied in the second half and with Williams providing the best part of the punch managed to gain the victory in the closing minutes of the tilt.

Parksburg Tossers Play Vics Here Sunday

The Vic's Sport Shop quintet will be gunning for its fourth win of the season when it entertains the fast Parksburg, Pa., pros in the Silver Spring Armory Sunday at 3 p. m.

The invaders have copped the pennant in the Chester County League for the last four years and are well out in front of this season's race. They also finished second in the Lancaster County loop last year. They also boast the impressive record of 20 victories in 21 starts this season and are confident that another game will be chalked up on the right side of the ledger Sunday.

"Dink" Irwin, former Temple University star; Boice and Yohn, of Franklin and Marshall; McCarthy, of Dickinson; Toomy, of Villanova, and Lynch, former Eastern League star, comprise the main body of players who will perform Sunday. A preliminary game will precede the feature at 2 p. m.

TAKOMA VS. BROOKLAND.

The Takoma Boys Club quintet will play the Brookland Bearcats Tuesday at 6:30 p. m. in the former's gym.

PAYNE LOST TO WESTERN QUINTET

Center's Rib Broken; Tech Faces Eastern Minus Willison.

BILL PAYNE, center for Western in the high school basket ball series, received a broken rib in his collision with Jim Reed, center for Tech, Tuesday afternoon, it was revealed yesterday after X-ray pictures had been taken on the injured side at Sibley Hospital. He probably will be out for the rest of the season, materially dampening Western's hopes of making any sort of showing in the league.

The most vital game of the series will be played tomorrow afternoon at Tech, bringing together Eastern and Tech, holders of first and second place in the standings. A victory for Tech would cause a first place tie between the two teams.

Willison Not Yet Ready.

Tech will not have the expected use of Artie Willison tomorrow in its most critical game. Capt. and all-high guard, Willison was injured on New Year's Day, and his injured ankle was supposed to be in shape for tomorrow's game, but it mended slowly. The youth only yesterday was able to draw on his shoe.

Tech will use its customary combination of Russell and Wheeler, forwards; Reed, center, and Thomas and Reichardt, guards. Eastern has for its first line defense Courtney and Kane, forwards; Lieb, center, and Bayliss and Zola, guards. Al Waters is an able substitute. On paper Eastern is favored to win, but tomorrow's smart money doubtless will be on the underdog.

Today Central, which made a gallant but futile stand against Eastern Tuesday, takes on stern competition in the George Washington University freshmen, while Business will entertain Swavely, either at Business or the Boys Club.

RADIO SPORTS DEPARTMENT

Station WJSV, of Mount Vernon Hills, Va., will install a sports department in the near future with studios to be located in the downtown district of Washington. The department will be directed by O. L. Ayers. The station plans to broadcast baseball games, fights and the wrestling matches and eventually have a daily program given over to talks by sports experts in all lines.

SARANACS WOULD PLAY.

The Saranac basket ball team is seeking games with teams in the 145-pound class. Call Manager Askin at Adams 4922.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

DEMOCRATIC CAMPAIGN HIAWATHA.

ON the Mountains of the Prairie,
On the great Red Pipestone Quarry,
Gitchie Manito (called Ras-Kob),
He, the "angel" of the tribesmen,
On the red crags of the quarry
Stood erect and called the nations—
Called the braves to come together;
Smoked the calumet, the peace pipe,
As a signal to the warriors.

* * * *

From the land of the Ohios,
From the hills of Massachusetts,
From the far-off Oklahomas,
From the region known as Hyde Park,
From the land of Marylanders,
All the tribes beheld the signals;
Down the rivers, o'er the prairies
Came the warriors of the nations,
Came the Murrays and the Walshes,
Came the Ritchies and the Bakers,
Came the Roosevelts in feathers,
By the signal of the peace pipe
To the great Red Pipestone Quarry;
And they stood there in the meadow
With their weapons and their war gear
Wildly glaring at each other;
In their faces stern defiance.

* * * *

GITCHIE MANITO (called (Ras-Kob),
Sugar Daddy of the Party,
Looked upon them with compassion,
Looked upon their wrath and wranglings
But as quarrels among children;
Over them he stretched his right hand,
Spake he then with voice majestic,
Warning, chiding, spake in this wise:
"I am weary of your quarrels,
Weary of your claims and statements,
Weary of your noise and spoutings,
Of your plots and your dissensions;
All your strength is in your union,
All your danger is in discord;
Therefore be it peace henceforward,
Lest the beans we spill and scatter;
I will send a prophet to you,
A wise guy who knows his onions,
Who shall guide you, who shall teach you—
If you listen to his counsels
You will land the beads and wampum;
If his warnings pass unheeded
It will be too bad, I'm thinking."

* * * *

Then as Ras-Kob gave the signal
Came the prophet called Al-Smith-le,
Known to all as Happy Warrior,
Known to all for the Brown Derby.

* * * *

AT the instant from the wigwam
Strode the mighty Hyde Park Fran-Klin,
"Well, I thought so, Alf-Red Smith-le!"
Cried he in a tone of thunder;
"Hasten back—and take thy derby;
Twice I named thee in convention—
Now you turn and do me dirty!"

* * * *

But then Sachem Smith-le answered:
"Friends, we've been through two campaigns, but—
This looks like the year to win in!"
Then began the greatest battle
That the sun had ever looked on,
Through the heated days it lasted,
From the sunrise to the sunset,
For the shafts of Hyde Park Frank-Lin
Harmless hit the shirt of wampum,
Harmless fell the blows he dealt it,
Harmless fell the heavy war club—
It would dash the rocks asunder,
But it could not break the meshes
Of the magic suit of wampum.

* * * *

SPENT and weary then they rested,
Took a breath and looked about them,
Looked, and saw no braves were watching—
All alone they were—abandoned!

* * * *

Through the forest came the tidings,
Borne to them by Minnehaha,
Telling them that while they battled
All the warriors had left them,
Nominating New-Ton Ba-ker,
New-Ton, known as Little Father.

* * * *

AND the forests, dark and lonely,
Moved through all their depths of darkness,
Sighed "Farewell, O, Alf-Red Smith-le!"
Murmured "Farewell, O, My Frank-Klin!"

STOCK PRICES RALLY DURING FINAL SALES

Short Covering Aids Upturn, With Rails Making Gains of 1 to 3 Points.

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—After vainly waiting for something to turn up, the stock market took the bit in its teeth during the last hour today and helped itself to a fairly active rally.

The late move followed an interval of extreme dullness which, in turn, had succeeded an early, temporary advance of 1 to 3 points. These gains, mostly made at the opening, were gradually dissipated, but the market's inertness, while the decline was in progress, discouraged sellers and helped pave the way for a flourish of short covering. Transactions totaled 1,176,415 shares, nearly 50 per cent of the total trading occurring in the final hour and a half.

Iron Age's weekly comment on the steel industry was to the effect that improvement was "more in the promise than in the performance;" nevertheless operations have risen to an average of 28 per cent whereas a week ago they were around 25 per cent.

Effect of Publicity.

Publication of this estimate doubtless contributed to the strength of the initial market dealings, which saw U. S. Steel up 1¼. The publication remarked, however, that steel production was unusually slow in responding to seasonal influences and ventured no forecasts as to probable pickup.

Tobaccos were stimulated by declaration of the usual $1 extra annual dividend on the Liggett & Myers stocks. This company earned $6.87 last year on its combined common shares against $7.15 in 1930; the "B" issue closed 3½ points higher, the other 4½. American Tobacco "B" rose 3½, reflecting expectations that its holders, too, would be favored with an extra before the month was out.

National biscuit's annual report, showing $2.86 a share against $3.40 in the previous year, was read in the light of the company's strong cash position and the conservative write-off for depreciation. Net income was down about 13 per cent. General Electric tumbled 1¾ to a new low for the present shares, although the loss was reduced to a fraction. Brokers said the stock was harboring a large short interest in view of the decrease in 1931 sales. There has been little serious talk of a dividend cut, since the company has a large surplus, but many traders apparently believe a revision is among the possibilities.

Rails Look to Wage Cut.

Rails lived in the hope of favorable developments at Chicago and were well supported on the late rise. New York Central, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio gained 1 to 3 net. Steel common, after losing its early advance, finished 1¾ higher. American Can, firm all day, returned a gain of 2¼, while American Telephone's advance was nearly 3 points. Auburn, Case, Du Pont, Westinghouse and Allied Chemical also did well.

Money markets were steady to firm, suggesting that a lower Federal Reserve rediscount rate might not be coming this week, after all. Continental exchanges developed some uneasiness, although sterling, which had lost most of its recent advance, hardened slightly. The French franc backed up.

The congressional conference on the reconstruction finance measure decided against making the corporation's debentures eligible for reserve bank rediscount. There had been some expression of Wall street opinion in favor of such a provision, but its elimination failed to draw much if any comment and the prospect that the bill would soon become law was cheering.

Wheat gained ½ to 1 cent net. Some buying was accredited to European sources, another influence being bullish weather news. Corn rose modestly on Argentine crop advices and a steadier cash position. Cotton reduced its extreme losses but closed 20 to 35 cents a bale lower.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—In a sudden outburst of buying wheat prices made a lightning-like advance at the close today. Quick changes of front on the part of speculative traders appeared to be chiefly responsible for the day's net gain in wheat values. Earlier, the market had been depressed by reports of heavy chartering of vessels to carry grain from Russia and Argentina.

Wheat closed nervous at the day's top level, ⅝ to 1 one above yesterday's finish, corn ⅛ to ½ up, oats unchanged to ¼ off, and provisions unchanged to a decline of [illegible] cents.

Preceding the late rise in wheat values, houses with Eastern connections had absorbed offerings on declines to below 59 cents for the May delivery. Price setbacks at this stage had carried the market more than 3 cents under the top of Monday's bulge, and the pit gave evidence of having been oversold. Scarcity of fresh offerings was so apparent that a buying flurry ensued, and bears were on the run as the final gong sounded.

A change in Italian milling regulations to enlarge wheat import quotas 25 to 30 per cent commencing February 1, was a bullish influence today. Immediate general demand for North American wheat was not impressive, although Germany was reported to have bought some Canadian for prompt shipment. A temporary bearish factor was an official summary showing that crop conditions for domestic winter wheat were good to excellent in nearly all of the main producing sections.

Corn and oats swayed with wheat. Persistent mild temperatures had a transient bearish effect on corn. There was a better Eastern call for oats, as stocks at lake ports were said to be well cleaned up.

Provisions were easier, responsive to downturns in hog values to a new low since 1899.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—May, 59⅝ [illegible] 61⅞@62; July, 58¾@58⅞, 61⅛@ [illegible] September, 60⅛, 62⅝. Corn—May, [illegible] 42⅜@42½; July, 42¾, 44⅛.

EARNINGS AND DIVIDENDS.

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. today reported 1931 net income of $23,121,382 compared with $24,002,315 in 1930, equal to $6.87 a common share against $7.15 in the previous year.

Cash on December 31 was $27,075,001 compared with $33,021,432 at the end of 1930. Inventories were $90,044,681 as reduced from $101,131,955.

Sterling Securities Corporation reports 1931 net current income of $872,006, exclusive of a loss of $7,995,030 on the sale of securities, against net income of $1,589,153 in 1930. Investments carried in the balance sheet at cost of $22,081,803 had a market value at the end of December of $7,516,242.

The Public Service Corporation of New Jersey today reported 1931 net income from operations of $45,397,682 compared with $43,410,344 in 1930. The balance available dividends was $30,540,752 contrasted with $30,163,302.

The National Biscuit Co. issued its 1931 report today, showing net income of $19,739,491, equivalent to $2.86 a share on the common stock. This compares with 1930 net income of $22,879,898 or $3.40 a share. The report, one of the first of the larger industrial corporations to make its appearance, indicates that the company's business despite its well stabilized character was considerably affected by the depression last year.

It also marked the first year in more than a decade in which the company failed to report an increase in earnings over the previous year.

The Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. today declared extra dividends of $1 a share on the common and common "B" stocks. Similar disbursements have been voted at this time in the past several years. The extras are payable March 1 to stock of record February 15.

The Ingersoll-Rand Co. declared a dividend of 75 cents. Previously the company paid $1 quarterly. The dividend is payable March 1 to stock of record February 2.

Directors of Warner Bros. pictures took no action today on the quarterly dividend of 96¼ cents due on the preferred stock.

Curb Review

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Narrow and inconclusive price movements ruled the curb market today with trading almost at a standstill during the greater part of the session.

There was somewhat of a flurry in the last hour, however, and the turnover approximated 220,000 shares against 180,000 yesterday.

The majority of the list recorded slight declines, although some individual issues moved against the trend and maintained fairly substantial gains.

There was a sharp reaction in Aluminum Co. at one time, but it rallied to 57¾, up 1¼. Aluminum preferred, though, dropped 2¼ points, to 65½. Singer Manufacturing lost a point at 127. American Cigar fell 5 points, to 125. Cities Service closed steady at 6⅛ and Deere & Co. picked up 1⅜ points. Electric Bond & Share gained ⅝, to 12⅝.

There was a moderate demand for the lower priced industrial shares and the prices of a number of these advanced slightly.

Utility stocks continued steady. The oils were inclined to ease, Standard of Nebraska falling 2⅜ points.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—After selling off during the earlier trading, cotton steadied in the last hour on trade buying and covering promoted by the late firmness in grain and stocks.

March contracts, after easing off to 6.62 or 12 points net lower, rallied to 6.70 and closed at 6.67, with the general market closing steady at net losses of 4 to 7 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 9 to 10 points in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables and rather a less favorable view of the international finance situation. Southern selling was in comparatively small volume and the early offerings were fairly well taken by the trade. Demand was limited, however, and prices eased gradually during the middle of the day, with January working off to 6.53 and July to 6.93, making net declines of about 11 to 12 points.

The loss was partially recovered in the later trading on covering or rebuying promoted by the firmness of the grain and security markets.

January sold up to 6.61 and July to 7.03 or about 8 to 9 points from the low levels of the day, but closing prices were slightly off from the best.

A good part of the day's selling was attributed to liquidation through houses with Wall street or Western connections, while the bulk of the buying on the decline was believed to be for trade account. Reports of continued favorable weather for the movement in the South, but nothing was heard of any easing of the basis. Private reports from the Southwest said that the basis in some sections was higher.

Liverpool cables said the declines in that market was due to hedging with local and continental liquidation on the less favorable international situation, but this factor seemed to be offset to some extent by the action of the stock market. Exports today, 48,611, making 4,568,746 so far this season. Port receipts, 61,403. United States port stocks, 4,890,036.

RAIL BONDS ADVANCE AS MARKET REVIVES

General List Closes Higher in Late Rally; Utility Prices Unchanged.

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—A late rally in low-priced rail mortgages, after several hours of dull trading, today revived a somewhat feeble bond market, and enabled the general list to close fractionally higher.

Both good and bad reports filtered in from the railway wage reduction conference in Chicago, but some dealers still held to their belief that the executives and union leaders would stage a happy ending.

Gains of from 1 to nearly 6 points were recorded by some of the bonds of Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian National, Canadian Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, Chicago, Great Western, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific, Chicago & Northwestern, Denver & Rio Grande, Erie, Illinois Central, Kansas City Southern, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific and Southern Railway.

Industrials and utilities did not follow the movement of the cheaper carriers. The former raised their average slightly, while the latter closed unchanged from yesterday.

The foreign list was generally active. The various Argentine loans led this category upward with gains of from 1 to nearly 3 points. Announcement that Provisional President Uriburu intended to impose drastic tax increases in order to balance the Argentine budget renewed interest in this list. German loans gained moderately as did British obligations. Japanese government bonds sold higher, but French 7s and 7½s dropped more than a point. Finland's loans were also weak.

OFFICERS RECHOSEN BY CLEARING HOUSE

Stryker and Jacobsen Again Elected Committeemen; McKee Is President.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

President Frank J. Stryker, Columbia National Bank, and Cashier C. F. Jacobsen, National Metropolitan Bank, whose terms as executive committeemen of the Washington, D. C., Clearing House Association expired, were reelected at the annual organization meeting of the association yesterday. President Robert V. Fleming, Riggs National Bank, and President George L. Starkey, National Bank of Washington, reelected last year on the expiration of their terms of office, will continue to serve throughout the next administrative year.

The association reelected all of the present officers, who are: President H. H. McKee, National Capital Bank, chairman; President Victor B. Deyber, Second National Bank, secretary; Assistant Cashier Charles E. Bright, National Metropolitan Bank, manager; S. E. Moore, National Metropolitan Bank, assistant manager.

The statement of operations of Potomac Electric Power Co. for December and the year 1931 was filed yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission. The statement reveals a net income of $481,609.93 for the closing month of 1931, a decrease of $95,735.80 from the month in 1930. Net income for 1931 totaled $4,583,224.30, or $182,784.85 under that of the previous year.

Mount Vernon Bank Reelects.

Directors of Mount Vernon Savings Bank at their annual meeting of organization yesterday reelected all present officers as follows: Claude H. Woodward, president; A. O. Wharton, William H. Johnston, E. C. Davison, Frank W. Lee, vice presidents; Robert T. Highfield, cashier; Leo E. Madigan, comptroller; T. Edwin Norris, A. Mistretta, assistant cashiers; L. Harold Sothoron, attorney; Hayden Johnson, advisory counsel.

The annual tabulation of "The One Hundred Largest Banks in the United States," exclusive of mutual savings banks, published yesterday in the American Banker, daily banking newspaper, shows that one Washington, D. C., bank is represented this year among the 100 largest institutions in the United States. This is the Riggs National Bank, which ranks No. 88 with deposits of $54,054,229.

Deposits of the 100 greatest banks in the United States total $18,750,524,000, as of December 31, 1931, representing about 37 per cent of the bank deposits in the country. Capital funds of the 100 largest banks this year total $1,356,615,500. Surplus and undivided profits total $1,836,476,400.

Forum Meetings Announced.

A. E. Henze, chairman of the forum committee, Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, announces that the first of a series of forum meetings, planned for graduates of Washington Chapter, will be conducted by James C. Dulin, Thursday, January 28, at 8 o'clock in the evening in the tenth floor clubroom of the new American Security Building. The subject will be "Collateral Loans and Margin Buying." There will be no charge. The meeting is open to all graduate members who are asked to come and participate in an interesting exchange of opinions.

One of the largest single orders for typewriters ever received has just been placed by the New York Board of Education, with the Woodstock Typewriter Co., of Chicago, according to R. W. Sears 2d, president. This order, placed in December, 1931, calls for 1,305 new Woodstock typewriters, and was secured through Woodstock's New York branch.

The National Coal Association, from incomplete car loading reports from the railroads, estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended January 16 as about 7,000,000 net tons. The report of the Bureau of Mines shows production of 6,050,000 net tons for the week ended January 2, and 6,930,000 for the week ended January 9.

Regular Dividend Declared.

Directors of Lerner Stores Corporation have declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.62½ on the 6½ per cent preferred stock, payable February 1 to stockholders of record January 21.

The Mutual Benefit Health & Accident Association of Omaha has announced the appointment of William Gaines Lipscomb and Horace F. Ashton as District managers for the association in Washington with offices in the Barr Building.

Messrs. Lipscomb and Ashton, trading as Lipscomb & Ashton, are both well known in the insurance field here, Mr. Lipscomb having conducted a general insurance business for the past 15 years. Mr. Ashton formerly was associated with the local office of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States.

Ecuador Railway Bonds Are Reported in Default

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—It was understood in Wall street today that the $10,000,000 issue of 5 per cent bonds of the Guayaquil and Quito Railway, Ecuador, which matured January 2, had been defaulted as to the maturity.

Bankers said this was not surprising, in view of the fact interest on the bonds had been in default for several years. The last coupon to be paid was that of January 2, 1914, which was paid in 1929. It was explained that virtually all of the bonds are now held in England, where the interest is payable. The bonds were issued in 1899, and have been guaranteed both as to principal and interest by the Government of Ecuador which controls the railway.

Trade Held Bound By Antitrust Laws

Permitted Use of Statistics Would Aid Business, Expert Asserts.

Except for the limitations set by antitrust laws, business might better have utilized its mass of commercial statistics during boom days as a compass and so have charted its course to avoid the rocks of depression, L. Seth Schnitman, chief statistician of the F. W. Dodge Corporation on Monday told procurement officers of the United States Army Industrial College.

"We might be tempted from the disastrous results of this debacle to think that business men prefer romance to facts," Mr. Schnitman said. "We might even conclude that we can lead a business man to statistics, but that we can not make him think. Nevertheless, we must give him the benefit of the doubt and recall the restrictions which antitrust laws impose upon him."

"It is not now so much that we need more facts, though the more information the better; it is rather that we need a more intensive use of existing facts. And we need a loosening up of the laws to permit coordinated intelligent usage of the available data," he concluded.

$38,268,000 Loaned In Germany by 1 Bank

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—William C. Potter, president of the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, informed stockholders today that the company has investments in Germany totaling $38,268,000. These are mainly in the form of commercial loans to German banks and bankers and are exclusive of miscellaneous investments totaling $35,000, and of an investment in securities of less than $200,000 for the account of its subsidiary, the Guaranty Co.

At the annual meeting of stockholders of the Irving Trust Co., Lewis Pierson, chairman, said that institution's outstanding credits to Germany approximated $29,000,000, of which $5,000,000 was its participation in the banking credit to the German government, $22,000,000 to banks and bankers, and $2,000,000 to industrial concerns. Of the loans to banks and bankers and industrial concerns $23,000,000 is secured by collateral or guarantees.

Heavy Purchasing Soon Is Predicted

Head of Advertising Federation Says Worn Articles Must Be Replaced.

Chicago, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Gilbert T. Hodges, member of the executive board of the New York Sun and president of the Advertising Federation of America, today foretold a Nation-wide buying spree. Addressing the Association of Commerce and the Advertising Council of Chicago, the New Yorker said:

"Consumers who have been postponing the purchase of necessities and luxuries, through fear rather than lack of means, are about at the end of their rope. Our clothes have become threadbare. Our automobiles are beginning to rattle. Our radios are out of date. Our furniture is getting shabby and our houses need paint.

"The 40,000,000 people still at work will soon be forced to replace the goods they have worn out. Dealers' shelves hold but scanty supplies and factories will soon have to speed up to turn out the goods that are required."

Col. Kenyon Heads Reserve Officers

Other Executives Elected; C. M. T. C. Committees Are Appointed.

Col. J. Miller Kenyon was elected president of the Reserve Officers Association Monday at the Cairo Hotel. Lieut. Col. Thomas H. Shanton was elected vice president and Capt. Arthur C. Adair second vice president. Maj. Roy Hughes was elected treasurer.

Committees for the C. M. T. C. camps were appointed. A past commander's badge was presented to Maj. Charles Demonet. Arrangements were made for the reserve officers' reception to be tendered Maj. Gen. J. Malone, commander of the Third Corps Area, to be held February 5 in the auditorium of the Interior Department.

DAILY GOLD MOVEMENT.

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Gold transactions reported by the New York Federal Reserve Bank today indicated a net decrease of $15,365,700 in the country's monetary gold stock.

A shipment of $12,000,500 was reported to France, $4,141,800 to Belgium, and $3,250,800 to England. At the same time, there was a decrease of $4,027,400 in gold held for foreign account.

It had been reported in banking quarters that two shipments for France of around $12,000,000 were planned for this week, but that they would be taken entirely from stocks already held for French account. Today's transactions indicating gold exports to Paris in addition to metal already held here for France.

Paris, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Officials of the Bank of France declined to comment today on the withdrawal of French gold from the United States, nor would they say how much is to be withdrawn. The financial newspaper L'Information said the move was decided upon some time ago with the agreement of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

HOUSE GROUP PLANS ACTION ON 'PEONAGE'

Connery Will Introduce Bill to Keep Mississippi Wage Scale Up.

(Associated Press.)

A promise of remedial legislation arose yesterday from the House labor committee's study of what has been termed "near peonage" in Mississippi flood control work.

Chairman Connery said he would introduce and press a bill that would keep contractors in Mississippi from paying less than prevailing wages.

He intends, he said, to make contractors on all Government works—including levees, rivers and harbors projects and flood control—pay their employes the prevailing wage in the locality in which the work is being done.

Will Introduce Bill.

"Testimony from President Green of the American Federation of Labor and other witnesses has shown that conditions in Mississippi were very bad," Connery said. "Something should be done by law to remedy the situation. I intend to introduce a bill which I feel the committee will support, to change things."

The Massachusetts Democrat made this statement after hearing Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of Army Engineers, discuss his investigation of the Mississippi contractors' camps.

Brown said he had made one inquiry after reading newspaper accounts of "peonage and human slavery" that led him to notify contractors they would have to stop things "that didn't suit me," the officer said.

Another Survey Made.

Subsequently, he added, another survey was made by the president of the Mississippi River Commission.

"The report is in my office now," Brown testified. "I will take the same kind of action as in the first instance."

He predicted the contractors would make the requested changes, although he could not cancel their contracts if they refused. Unless "fair and just" treatment is given to employes on Government works, Brown added, contractors are stricken from Government lists, meaning they get no more Federal jobs.

Frederick H. Payne, Assistant Secretary of War, asked that the committee not enact additional legislation extending the prevailing wage scale. The same effect, he testified, could be achieved by an executive order.

Y. W. C. A. to Elect Officers Tomorrow

Annual Dinner and Meeting to Follow Naming of Directors' Board.

Election of the board of directors of the Young Women's Christian Association will take place tomorrow night at Barker Hall, Seventeenth and K streets northwest. Voting will close at 7 o'clock and the annual dinner and membership meeting will follow.

Fourteen well-known Washington women have been nominated for election. Nine of them have been renominated by the committee on nominations. Eleven will be chosen to serve on the board for the ensuing year.

Those who have been renominated are: Mrs. E. E. Danley, Miss Margaret R. Fox, Miss Elizabeth Hanley, Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, Mrs. Arthur K. Jones, Mrs. William Adams Slade, Mrs. Ben Temple Webster, Mrs. Charles Will Wright; Mrs. Fred E. Wright, Mrs. Joel T. Boone, Mrs. R. Branson Thomas, Mrs. E. C. Nourse and Miss Elsa M. Paterson.

Civic Opera Opens Week's Run Feb. 29

"The Gondoliers" Will Be Given at Belasco With All-Capital Cast.

The first opera by the Washington Civic Opera, "The Gondoliers," to be presented for a week at the Shubert Belasco Theater, beginning February 29, is rapidly being whipped into shape, it was announced yesterday.

The story of "The Gondoliers" was originally intended by Gilbert and Sullivan as a jest, directed at the then existing social system throughout Europe. Queen Victoria is said to have been so incensed by the quips aimed at royalty in general, that she refused to knight Gilbert as she had previously planned. He was knighted, however, 30 years later by Queen Victoria's son, King Edward VII.

The local production is under direction of Donald McDonald 3d, who has had 20 years experience in theatrical production. Those taking part have been selected from local vocal studios. Capital musicians, under direction of Alfred Manning, will constitute the orchestra. Scenery has been brought from New York.

Negro Girls' Home Is Held Vital Need

Dr. Mordecai Johnson and Mary White Ovington Are Speakers.

Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, president of Howard University, and Miss Mary White Ovington, one of the founders of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, were principal speakers Tuesday night at a meeting held under auspices of the Lend-a-Hand Club in the auditorium of the Metropolitan Methodist Church. The meeting was for the purpose of establishment of a home here for colored girls similar in function to that of the Florence Crittenton Home.

A home surrounded with strong religious influences for upbuilding of character and mental and physical standards, and development of vocations, was described by Dr. Johnson as a vital community need. Institutions of similar character in other localities were described by Miss Ovington.

Vital statistics of the District indicating need for the proposed home were outlined by Mrs. J. S. Cole, superintendent of the Florence Crittenton Home, and Mrs. George W. Dow, of the diocesan missions. Dr. Ionia Whipper is president of the Lend-a-Hand Club, and Dr. Ora Fisher and Dr. Amanda V. Gray-Hillyer, vice presidents.

Great Falls Road Conducts Election

Col. Robert Harper Chosen President; Toll Highway Pays All Debts.

Col. Robert N. Harper, of Washington and Virginia, was reelected president of the Washington-Great Falls and Dranesville Highway Co., which operates the toll road between Washington and Great Falls on the Virginia side of the Potomac River. The annual meeting took place Tuesday night in the offices of the Courtlands Title Co., at McLean, Va.

Other officers elected were Herman E. Gasch, of Washington, vice president; Ralph Powell, of McLean, secretary, and Douglas S. Mackall, sr., of Langley, treasurer. The directors selected by the stockholders include E. T. Simpson, of Washington; G. Wallace Carper and John Preston, of McLean; Mark Turner, of Forestville; A. C. Speight, of Dranesville; Albert Schmitz, of Great Falls, and John C. Mackall, of Langley.

The financial report of the year was submitted showing that all current debts had been paid, and all other earnings had been used in repairing the road. A large volume of traffic is expected over the road during the bicentennial celebration by visitors to the falls and ruins of the canal and iron furnace erected by George Washington.

$60,000 Approved For County Parks

Montgomery Commissioners Receive Gas Company Tax Appeal.

The Montgomery County Commissioners have formally adopted the resolution which authorizes the National Capital Park and Planning Commission to turn over to the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission $90,000 to be expended in construction of parks in the county under terms of the Cramton act. The Maryland commission is to turn over bonds which are to be held without interest for eight years by the Federal Government.

The bonds will represent $60,000 as the Federal Government makes an outright gift of one-third of the money.

The commission received the appeal of the Washington Gas Light Co. against the assessment placed against its intangible property by the State assessors. The appeal was presented in a petition by Robert B. Peter, jr., attorney for the company.

Fort Myer Exhibition Seats in Great Demand

All available seats for the exhibition ride at Fort Myer tomorrow afternoon have been taken, it was announced at the post yesterday. The opening ride last Friday in honor of Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley was attended by a record crowd and many were unable to get seats.

The rides are given at 3 o'clock each Friday afternoon. To obtain tickets, which are free, applicants should write or telephone requests to the Fort Myer authorities well in advance.

POLICE TRIAL BOARD ACQUITS MIDDLETON AND CONVICTS SAYER

Suspended Twelfth Precinct Policeman Is Freed on Conduct Charge.

PRIVATE FINED $30 ON ASSAULT COUNTS

Indictment Against First in Hi-Jacking Incident Is Still Pending.

The Police Trial Board, meeting yesterday, found one policeman guilty of "wilfully assaulting a prisoner," assessing a fine of $30, and adjudged another innocent of "conduct prejudical to the department."

The board acquitted Wallace J. Middleton, suspended Twelfth Precinct policeman, of charges of conduct prejudicial to the good order of the force which grew out of the policemen's alleged association with Jack Cunningham, slain informer.

Private J. P. Sayer, of the Fourth Precinct, was convicted by the police tribunal on a charge of "wilfully maltreating a prisoner" and of conduct prejudicial to the department, being assessed fines of $25 and $5 respectively on the two counts.

Became Incensed.

On the witness stand yesterday, Middleton said he did not know Cunningham personally, but had once told him he would "punch his face" if he did not cease attempting to have the policeman transferred from the First to the Twelfth Precinct.

Middleton was accused of having participated with Cunningham in a hi-jacking episode. The two were alleged to have entered an apartment at 1210 I street northwest and stolen a quantity of beer, ale and whisky and transported it in a taxicab to the rear of a restaurant at Fourteenth and H streets northwest.

Four headquarters detectives testified that Charles Wilson, driver of the cab, said the hacker nodded his head when confronted with Middleton and asked if he was one of the men in the cab.

Vague in Identification.

The cab driver was also said to have been shown a picture of Cunningham and said then that he thought the picture might have been that of the other man.

At other times Wilson was claimed by defense counsel to have been "very vague" in his identification of Middleton and the hacker was branded as a "perjurer" in the summation for the defense by Attorney Charles Ford.

An indictment against Middleton in connection with the same purported hi-jacking episode is now pending. The question of his being restored to duty, it was indicated yesterday can not be considered until the indictment is disposed of.

Sayer was convicted of having struck Jack Sheffield, of 319 Linworth place southwest, with a blackjack, in arresting the latter.

Maria Muller Sings Old German Songs

Walter Gieseking, Pianist, on Same Program, Is Well Received.

Maria Muller, prima donna soprano with a cosmopolitan operatic career which has included the Metropolitan in New York City, Berlin Grand Opera, and at the Bayreuth Opera, won many new friends at Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's musical morning at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday.

Fraulein Muller has a soprano of wide range and was particularly effective in a group of German lieder from classic composers.

The other artist on the program yesterday was Walter Gieseking, pianist, whose beautiful tonal production, smoothness of playing and technical skill gained him approval.

$50,000 Asked in Bill For Casualty Repairs

Congress is asked to appropriate $50,000 for alterations and repairs to Casualty Hospital, in a House bill introduced yesterday by Representative Clarence J. McLeod (Republican), Michigan, and referred to the House District committee.

All but $20,000 of the sum would be used for retiring existing indebtedness under the bill, which is similar to one introduced by Senator Arthur J. Capper (Republican), Kansas.

Gen. Edward King Is Assigned to Post

Maj. Gen. Edward L. King, assistant chief of staff, has been assigned to the command of the Fourth Corps Area, with headquarters at Fort McPherson, Ga., according to orders issued yesterday at the War Department. He will succeed Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, who has been placed on the unassigned list for service with the League of Nations Commission of Inquiry in Manchuria.

Magazine Vendors Plead Not Guilty

Trial for Six Dealers Is Set by Court for Next Wednesday.

Six vendors of illicit magazines yesterday denied that they had been guilty of selling salacious publications when they were arraigned in Police Court on a charge of violating the statute covering the sale of indecent periodicals.

The six, chosen by Assistant United States Attorney Michael F. Keogh as test cases, had filed demurrers to the informations against them that had been overruled the day before by Judge Gus A. Schuldt in Police Court

The next step was to arraign formally the six for a pleading. All indicated that they desire jury trials, and Judge Schuldt set their trial down for next Wednesday. The fate of the six will decide what action is to be taken in 127 other similar cases.

Cheers Used By Expedition To Rout Bear

College yells replaced cartridges in routing a menacing brown bear in the Aniakchak crater in the heart of Alaska's "Land of the Half Dead" last summer when a party of scientists was studying the volcano's eruption, Robert Dick Douglas, Georgetown University student, who was a member of the party, told National University's Segnu Forum last night.

Mr. Douglas, who was guest speaker at the forum's meeting, described the scenes which greeted the Rev. Bernard R. Hubbard, Jesuit geologist, and his three companions when they reached the six-mile-wide crater to spend a summer in camping and study. Douglas told National University's students that Aniakchak had not erupted for 150 years and that a fertile valley had grown within its crater. Just four days before the Hubbard party was to enter the pit, however, the volcano blew up and transformed the "Paradise Found" into a "Paradise Lost."

"We were walking about in the ash-covered desolation," Douglas related by way of introducing his comment on the efficacy of college yells as bear ammunition, "when suddenly we looked up to see one of Alaska's great brown bears. We were scared all right, then Father Hubbard seized his staff and a film case and began beating them together and yelling. One of the other boys got the idea and began giving California's yell. The other fellow followed suit and gave his school yell. Then I let out a couple of lusty 'Hoyas!' By the time those voices reverberated around in the crags and depths of the crater, they echoed until it sounded like a stadium crowd. That bear just backed off and ran."

Douglas spoke briefly also on lion hunting in Africa with Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson. He was one of the Boy Scout members of that party.

LACK OF SCARS TOLD IN BRUTALITY TRIAL

Identification Expert Heard on Examination of Boy After "Beating."

There were no noticeable scars on the head or face of Thomas McKeever Williams, 17-year-old colored boy, when he was photographed at police headquarters June 27, only a few hours after he alleged he had received severe beatings at the hands of Policemen Charles R. Brammerman and Hollis H. Clark, Sergt. Fred Sandberg, of the Bureau of Identification of the Police Department, testified yesterday in the trial of the two policemen.

The point was jubilantly received by Defense Attorneys James A. O'Shea and John H. Burnett, inasmuch as Williams had testified that he had numerous open cuts and bruises on his head from blows given him by Bremmerman and Clark just a few hours previous to the taking of the "rogue's gallery" picture.

Under cross-examination, though, by William A. Gallagher assistant United States attorney, Sergt. Sandberg, examining Williams in the courtroom, discovered a scar over Williams' left eye that he had not noticed in his previous examination. That was explained by saying that scars that would not be easily noticeable were never marked down.

Lieutenant's Stories Conflict.

Lieut. John T. Wittstatt contradicted a statement he had signed on September 12 for the Justice agents, when he testified that he had seen the colored youth in the station house when the two officers questioned him.

In the statement the lieutenant had said that he had no knowledge of the questioning of the prisoner. The admission was brought out when Gallagher exhibited the statement and called attention to his faulty memory.

The statement was read at the insistence of Defense Attorney James O'Shea, although Gallagher had stated that he did not wish to offer it as evidence.

Wittstatt had stated on the stand that he was on duty when the two policemen brought the three colored boys to the station house and that he was there when they were questioned. He said that he knew of no violence being used in any cases.

In the statement the lieutenant signed Gallagher read "at no time when I was in the station house do I remember seeing Officers Bremmermann and Clark bringing in any boys and questioning them." He was called as a defense witness.

Directed to Answer.

George Hellmuth, a sergeant of the Second Precinct, spent an uncomfortable half hour on the stand after the identification expert. Hellmuth said that he didn't have his "big eyes for nothing," denied vehemently that either Bremmerman or Clark was mishandling Williams or his friends when he saw them in the precinct station on three occasions.

Taken over by the Government for questioning, Hellmuth's memory failed him and he repeatedly said that he could not answer questions without referring to the books of the precinct station. Gallagher frequently chided Hellmuth for failing to answer questions, and twice he asked Justice F. D. Letts to direct the witness to answer questions.

PARK BODY TO STUDY SITES FOR PROPOSED DISTRICT'S STADIUM

3-Day Meeting Opens Today; East Capitol Street Site to Be Considered.

UNION SQUARE PROJECT ALSO TO BE DISCUSSED

Filling In of Anacostia River Is Given Indorsement by Committee.

Possible sites for a Washington stadium will be discussed at a three-day meeting of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, starting this morning. Consideration will be given the site at the foot of East Capitol street as well as several other tracts.

Numerous other matters will receive consideration. The commission will hear a report from members of its staff on the encroachment of the Mall building line. A tentative plan for development of Union Square will be shown the commission.

A report recommending that Twenty-third street at the Naval Hospital be paved in a 50-foot width will be read to the commission. The question of the location of a gas tank, or a gas holder, in the vicinity of Fort Totten in Northeast near the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad also will be studied.

Development of Circle.

A tentative plan for the development of Commodore Barney Circle at Pennsylvania avenue near the approach to the Anacostia River Bridge will receive consideration.

The commission also will give attention to the present status of the Mount Vernon-Woodlawn highway, connecting Mount Vernon with the Jefferson Davis highway, U. S. Route No. 1. The highway is to be built by the State of Virginia. Several local highway and street changes which have already been discussed in the office of the District Commissioners will be studied by the commission.

Anacostia River Work.

The filling in of Anacostia River at the foot of East Capitaol street as suggested by District engineers, was given approval by the coordinating committee at a meeting Tuesday. This approval will be forwarded to the committees parent body, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, at the latter's meeting today.

In addition the committee will recommend to the commission the further widening of Constitution avenue from Virginia avenue to the Plaza. This suggestion is made with the belief that such an improvement will greatly reduce traffic congestion on Mount Vernon Bridge when it is opened for regular service."

Dahlgren Citizens Support Arms Bill

Also Indorse Proposal to Build Stadium at Roosevelt High.

The Capper bill to restrict the sale of firearms in the District and the proposal to build a stadium at Roosevelt Business High School were supported in a resolution adopted last night by the Dahlgren Citizens Association, meeting at the Crosby Noyes School.

The association also indorsed repaving of First street northeast, from New York avenue to the Union Station Plaza, pointing out that this would reduce by a block the distance from the Dahlgren terrace section to the downtown area. Lynn C. Drake, Boy Scout executive for the District, appeared to make an appeal for funds for the Community Chest. After the business meeting the Chesapeake & Potomac Glee Club, under direction of G. A. Small, entertained.

Elgen to Expedite Work of Valuation

Appraisal of Gas Light Company's Property Is Started.

Riley E. Elgen, who was sworn in yesterday as a member of the Public Utilities Commission to succeed Harleigh H. Hartman, will assume charge at once of the commission's valuation work, which has grown by leaps and bounds within the past few months.

Valuation of the two street railways and the Washington Rapid Transit Co. is near completion, and work has started on the Washington Gas Light Co. Valuation of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. and the Potomac Electric Power Co. will be started shortly. Because of Mr. Elgen's long experience in valuation work before the Interstate Commerce Commission, he is considered especially fitted for the post.

Frank E. Cunningham, clerk of the District Supreme Court, administered the oath of office yesterday, and Mr. Elgen spent yesterday afternoon becoming adjusted to his new surroundings.

Police on "Shooting" Call Discover Barricaded Doors

Barricaded doors, "trick locks" and everything that made it impossible to gain entrance, confronted police of the First Precinct last night when they arrived at 722 Thirteenth street northwest, in response to a report that some one had been shot.

The first policeman to reach the scene found the door locked and no manner of pushing or hammering would open it. The combined efforts of other arrivals also failed to gain them admittance. At the moment their patience was about exhausted, the door was thrown open by a man, who inquired the nature of their visit.

He was informed of the report, and denying any knowledge of the shooting, invited the policemen to enter. At the top of a long flight of stairs another door was found. This, the policemen were informed, was as far as they could go. The upper floor was a private club for members only, it was explained.

Despite the fact the call they were investigating was classed as a felony, the officers awaited the arrival of Lieut. W. S. Carlin. He was admitted through the second door, which was equipped with a lock that could only be opened by an arrangement operated from the upper floor.

Satisfied the call was false, Lieut Carlin left.

A radio set to pick-up police broadcasts forewarned members of the "club" of their coming, police said.

Owners of Theaters Agree To Give Notice on Seating

Moviegoers to Be Warned If Show Is Crowded as Result of Understanding Reached on Provisions of Bill in Senate.

Moviegoers in Washington will be notified when they buy their tickets if seats are not available, it was promised yesterday by the theater managers, after a subcommittee hearing on the Carey bill to abolish waiting lines in the lobbies. Following the hearing, attended by virtually every theater owner in Washington, Senator Robert D. Carey (Republican), Wyoming, said that he would return a favorable report on his bill.

Modifications will be made to exempt from penalty theater operators who display signs in their ticket booths advising playgoers whether seats are available, he said.

He will make some alterations in a section of the bill dealing with theater operators who sell more tickets than they have seats, he made known after A. Julian Brylawski, representing Motion Picture Owners of Washington, testified on disadvantages of a change. The section may be stricken out altogether.

Motion picture owners agreed to notify playgoers both orally and by signs when seats are not to be had in their theaters, at a meeting following the hearings, in Mr. Brylawski's office. A resolution asking that this request be complied with was adopted and sent to each of the 47 theaters belonging to the association.

Mr. Brylawski told the subcommittee he was entirely in sympathy with provisions of the measure making it an offense to give out misinformation on the number of seats available. He said this was "an unethical practice that would bring its own punishment." He said, however, he thought this difficulty could be overcome by the operators themselves, without legislation.

He took issue with the proposal to restrict the number of tickets sold, declaring this would work hardships on a theater operating on a continuous performance policy, and might force owners to change to a reserved seat basis, which he said has never been successful heretofore. He said playgoers pay for an admission, not a seat.

Only one witness appeared in support of the bill. Senator Carey explained that in view of the letters of complaint he had introduced in the record he did not deem it necessary to call any one other than the operators.

Witnesses who supported the stand taken by Mr. Brylawski included B. L. Ormes, representing the Operators' Union; Harry Crull, representing the Fox Theater; A. C. Hayden, the Musicians Union; Sidney Lust, representing small theater owners, and Louis Bernheim, representing the small colored theaters.

DEEPER QUIZ LOOMS AFTER RILEY INQUIRY

Palmisano May Decide Soon to Continue Hearings on Welfare Work.

Original records of the Public Welfare Board in the Edith Riley case were undergoing close scrutiny by members of a special House subcommittee yesterday, pending decision that may lead to a much deeper inquiry into welfare methods here.

Chairman Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland, said he will decide whether further hearings will be held, following conference with Representative Loring M. Black, jr. (Democrat), New York, and Frank L. Bowman (Republican), West Virginia.

Representative Palmisano is debating whether to extend the hearings to embrace more than a dozen complaints on welfare agencies that have come to his office, not to mention more than a score of others in the hands of Representative Bowman, who instigated the inquiry.

Bowman wants to call stenographers who prepared the welfare board's "Riley record' and case workers who had anything to do with reports made to the organization over a period of five years before the "closet" child was released from the custody of her parents, but he has only one vote on the committee.

Chairman Palmisano earlier indicated that if he found "anything wrong" at the hearings held Tuesday, he would go to the bottom of the welfare situation here. Yesterday he said he was undecided whether testimony brought out at the hearings "indicated anything wrong."

O'Donoghue Wins Approval of Group

Subcommittee May Order Further Hearings on Lett's Appointment.

The Senate judiciary subcommittee has virtually decided to approve appointment of Daniel W. O'Donoghue to the District Supreme Court bench, but may hold further hearings on the nomination of F. Dickinson Letts, it was indicated last night.

Appointment of Letts was opposed by Edmond C. Fletcher, disbarred attorney, while O'Donoghue was objected to by John H. Adriaans, also disbarred, at hearings before the Blaine subcommittee Tuesday.

Senator Blaine said last night that so far as he is concerned the case of O'Donoghue is closed. He plans to confer with other subcommittee members on advisability of holding additional hearings in the case of Letts, he said.

Armed Force Proposed By Healy to End War

Armed preparedness inferior to no other nation is the quickest way for the United States to make effective its leadership in the cause of world peace, Thomas H. Healy, assistant dean of Georgetown University Foreign Service School, said yesterday in an address before the Optimist Club at the Hamilton Hotel.

Prof. Healy believes that nothing substantial will come from the Geneva conference, and said, "I can imagine no more inopportune time than the present to hold the conference. I believe that the conference, rather than decreasing armaments, may have the unfortunate tendency to increase them."

CHEVY CHASE CIRCLE MEMORIAL IS URGED

Improvement Recommended by Bloom to Library Committee.

Improvement of Chevy Chase Circle through the erection of a memorial fountain to conform with an appropriate landscaping plan was recommended to the House yesterday by Representative Ralph Gilbert's House library committee.

The fountain was proposed in a bill put forward by Representative Sol Bloom (Democrat), New York, which was favorably reported following hearings at which Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of public buildings and public parks, sponsored the measure.

Under its terms Col. Grant would be empowered to accept donations for the improvement, which would not be commenced until the amount of the donations equaled the cost of the work.

The fountain, it was indicated, would be erected as a memorial to one of the donors, whose name was withheld. The bill provides that the changes agreed on must have the joint approval of the National Commission of Fine Arts and Col. Grant's office.

Nominations of Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes, William Cabell Bruce, of Maryland, and R. Walton Moore, Virginia, to the board of regents of the Smithsonian Institution, were taken under advisement. The committee plans to consider the nominations in the light of geographic representation on the board as a whole, it was said. All three names have been approved by the Senate.

Auto Collision Results In Concussion of Brain

James Moffat, 36 years old, of 822 G street southeast, suffered a concussion of the brain and a possible fracture of the skull yesterday when the truck he was driving collided with an automobile at Virginia avenue and South Capitol street.

Moffat was taken to Providence Hospital.

Two District Bills Ready for House

Measure Passes to Relieve Commissioners of Ministerial Duties.

The House District committee yesterday voted to report favorably a bill to relieve the District Commissioners of routine ministerial duties, at a meeting in the House Office Building.

The bill, which has already passed the Senate, will be called up in the House on Monday, District day. The bill to incorporate the District Bicentennial Commission will be ready for action at that time. Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride explained that under the bill approved yesterday, the secretary to the Board of Commissioners could certify in legal papers action taken by the Commissioners, relieving them of this added work.

He asked that a bill now before the committee, for increasing the regulatory powers of the Commissioners, be taken up at an early date.

Reprinting of hearings held last year on a bill to provide a police training school here was authorized by the committee, to save the expense and time of repeating the testimony.

EARLY CHEST GIFTS MOUNTING AS UNITS LOOK TO MAIN DRIVE

GOVERNMENT WORKERS GIVE MORE THIS YEAR

Increased Contributions Appear in Practically Every Solicitor's List.

Taking the center of the stage in local civic life, the Washington Community Chest will spend the remaining few days of this week making final preparations for the inauguration of the main drive on Sunday afternon at Constitution Hall.

Leaders of the chest were guests of the Washington Rotary Club at its first 1932 dinner last night at the Willard Hotel. The team captains and workers of region No. 1, metropolitan unit, received instructions last night.

More than 500 chest workers of the group solicitation unit will meet at a precampaign dinner at 6:15 o'clock tonight at the Raleigh Hotel. Announcement was made at a report meeting at the Willard yesterday that the B. F. Saul Co., had donated $2,750 and the Washington Baseball Club, $1,500. A number of other special gifts, also announced, are named below.

S. P. Thompson Presides at Dinner.

S. Percy Thompson, president of the Rotary Club, presided at the dinner last night. Chest officers present included John Poole, president of the Chest; Edward F. Colladay, campaign chairman; Lloyd B. Wilson, chairman of the group solicitation; Richard W. Hynson, representing Clarence A. Aspinwall, special gifts chairman; H. L. Rust, jr., metropolitan unit chairman; Gov. Thomas E. Campbell, government unit chairman; Joseph D. Kaufman, chairman of the speakers' unit, and Ernest S. Johnson, publicity chairman.

Elwood Street, director of the Chest, traced the evolution of the Community Chest back to 1823, when Leisnig, Germany, founded a "common chest" for the aid of the poor and needy. Forgotten for years, the Chest plan was "reinvented" in this country, where it has spread with rapidity until the total now includes 400 cities. Mr. Street said.

Georgetown Boys Entertain.

The Georgetown Boys Club entertained the Rotarians and their guests with a skit. Boys from Friendship House were introduced and expressed appreciation of swims at the Y. M. C. A., made possible through Rotary bus transportation. Dr. Allen Talbot, of the charity and welfare committee, told of how many charges among the crippled children at Children's Hospital are being supplied with corrective apparatus from the Rotary welfare fund.

Tribute to the memory of William Knowles Cooper, past president of the club, was expressed in a resolution, presented by the Rev. C. T. Warner.

Contributions totaling $136,486.51 from 128 givers were reported at yesterday's meeting of the special gift unit. This sum, added to the $561,380 already reported brings the total to date to $697,866.51. More increases were reported, among them that of the Peoples Drug Stores, which gave $5,500, an increase of $2,500 over last year; Col. Stephen Slocum, $4,000, an increase of 1,500; Mr. and Mrs. Demarest Lloyd, $5,500, an increase of $1,000.

Many Increased Donations.

Among the gifts of $500 or more which showed an increase over last year were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Galliher, $1,000, an increase of $250; Mr. and Mrs. James Craig Peacock, $550, an increase of $50; Dr. and Mrs. William C. Rives, $7,500, an increase of $500; Mrs. John C. Boyd, $1,300, an increase of $200; Mrs. Charles R. Shepard, $1,000, an increase of $300; Mr. and Mrs. Dennis A. Upson, $1,200, an increase of $200; Mrs. B. F. Saul, $500, an increase of $300; Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Wilmer, $700, an increase of $150; Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Brookings, $4,000, in increase of $500; Mr. and Mrs. J. Herman Van Royen, $800, an increase of $200; Mr and Mrs. P. O. Coffin, $600, an increase of $300; Mrs. Henrietta B. Karrick, $750, an increase of $642; National Savings & Trust Co., $3,000, an increase of $408.39; Woodridge-Langdon Savings & Commercial Bank, $113.71, an increase of $63.71; Justice and Mrs. Harlan F. Stone, $650, an increase of $50; Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Hogan, $6,500, an increase of $500, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Burling, $2,000, an increase of $600.

Addresses will be given the key workers tonight at the Raleigh Hotel. Lloyd B. Wilson, president of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., will preside. Speakers will include the Right Rev. James D. Freeman, Bishop of Washington Diocese; Dr. Fulton J. Sheen, of the Catholic University, and Rabbi Abram Simon. The group solicitation unit will seek donations from 625 firms.

Jury Absolves Man Of Blame in Crash

The death of Mrs. Edna Caywood, of Boulevard Heights, Md., on January 3 was an unavoidable accident, a Prince Georges County coroners jury decided last night after deliberating more than 45 minutes.

This verdict absolved of blame John Hall, of Suitland, driver of the machine which was in collision with one driven by Mrs. Caywood's son-in-law.

Bicentennial Fund Upheld On House Floor by Texan

Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), Texas, revealed himself as a friend of Sol Bloom and his Bicentennial Commission on the floor of the House yesterday when he demanded that Senate-House conferees keep the $250,000 bicentennial appropriation in the deficiency budget.

"What do your conferees propose to do about that appropriation," he asked Chairman Joseph W. Byrns (Democrat), Tennessee, of the House appropriations committee.

"We propose to represent the sentiment of the House," said Chairman Byrns.

"The sentiment of the House is for keeping the full appropriation in the bill," said Blanton.

The Senate voted to cut the bicentennial item $50,000 under the House figure, which had already trimmed it $177,000.

RAPID PACKER

MISS A. T. AMOS, of this city, photographed yesterday aboard the liner City of Newport News in Baltimore, Md., as she sailed for France, after making complete arrangements—visas and all—in a little more than four hours. Miss Amos decided shortly after noon yesterday that she was going to Europe. At 5 o'clock she was bound for France.

EMPLOYMENT FIRM WINS IN TEST CASE

Operator of Boyd Agency Is Freed on Charges of Violating Rules.

Employment agencies that display the notice regulating their conduct in prominent places do not necessarily have to have the notice on the walls of the agency, Judge John P. McMahon ruled yesterday in Police Court in dismissing a case brought against D. N. Towe, of the Boyd Employment Service.

Towe had been arrested for failing to post the act of Congre according to the letter of the law, and Judge McMahon held that Towe had complied with the spirit of the law in having the act displayed in several places in the employment office

Charles S. Baker, defense attorney, brought out from witnesses of the corporation counsel's office that the Boyd agency had a spotless record and that there were no other charges against the agency other than that the 4,000-word license law was not tacked to the wall.

Towe, who has been active in working for the elimination of the registration fee among employment services here, will soon bring before the District committee of Congress an employment agency law, which will stress in every possible way the power of the Commissioners to revoke the license of an agency for unethical acts.

Association Hits At Mapes Tax Bill

Southwest Citizens May Ask Mass Meeting for Salary Cut Quiz.

Resolutions presenting disfavor toward the Mapes District tax bills and the proposed reduction of Federal employes' salaries were adopted last night by the Southwest Citizens Association which met at Fairbrother School.

The motion on the salary reduction included the suggestion that the Federation of Citizens Associations call a mass meeting to show Congress the sentiment of the people of Washington.

Mrs. John P. Neligh, of Neighborhood House, said that any reductions should not in any case affect the earners of small salaries. Harry Baker, principal of Jefferson Junior High Night School, asked the citizens to contribute toward buying textbooks for night students.

Episcopal Clergymen Gather at Cathedral

More than twenty Episcopal clergymen from the East, South and Middle West are attending a preaching conference on rural work and missions this week at the College of Preachers, Washington Cathedral.

The Right Rev. Samuel B. Booth, Bishop of Vermont, and the Right Rev. Frederick D. Goodwin, Bishop Coadjutor of Virginia, are the bishops attending the conference sessions, which end on Saturday.

TEACHERS' COLLEGES ACCREDITING BACKED BY EDUCATION BOARD

Plan Will Be Submitted t Congress as Result of Action Taken.

2 DISTRICT INSTITUTIONS AFFECTED BY PROPOSAL

Need of Change in Order t Aid Instructors Trained Here Is Stressed.

Necessary legislation to make th two teacher training institutions o the District properly accredited colleges was approved by the Board o Education yesterday. The suggeste changes in operation, submitted b Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintenden of schools, will be drafted into a bil by the committee on legislation fo submission to Congress.

Recommended changes includ Sufficient books for libraries of th colleges to come up to the standar required by the American Associatio of Teachers Colleges; appointment o a chief librarian, with one or mor assistants; additional personnel i the college offices, and a law providing for the appointment of teacher not specifically provided for in th salary schedule.

The recommended salary schedul for the faculty follows: President $5,000 to $6,000; professors, class 12 $4,000 to $4,500; assistant professors class 11, $3,260 to $3,700; instructors class 3A, 1,800 to $2,800, and instructors, Class B, $2,900 to $3,200.

Need of Change Stressed.

Emphasis was made that if thes improvements are not granted th teachers' colleges will run the dange of not being recognized as properl accredited colleges by the America Association of Teachers Colleges. I this eventuality graduates might no be able to obtain entry on their credits to other colleges or universities.

The board also approved a recommendation that the two and thre year course students at the college be given credit to pursue the newl established four-year course.

The two-teacher training institutions are the Wilson Teachers College, for white, and the Miner, fo colored. They were put on a colleg basis last year by act of the boar and approval of Congress, and presidents now head the institutions.

Action on Teachers' Bills.

The superintendent was authorize to handle complaints of overdu teachers' bills. Mrs. Henry Gratta Doyle, chairman of the personnel committee, who submitted the recommendation, stated that "very few teachers are concerned in presen complaints, and that there is no reason for employes of the board to hesitate in making purchases on credi as the leading stores of the city hav expressed their faith in the teachers

The board received notice from th Federation of Citizens Associations o opposition to the construction of a colored school near Rock Creek Churc road and Allison street northeast. N action was taken. The citizens ar planning to take their complaints t the Senate District committee.

The committee on legislation wa asked to give study to the possibilit of supplying the night schools wit free textbooks and report back at th next meeting. Lack of free textbook was brought to the attention of th board by the Citizens Forum.

Improvements Urged.

Resolutions from the Georgetown Citizens Association, urging the boar to buy playground space for th Curtis-Addison-Hyde group of schools and to provide a junior high school a a point near the junction of Massachusetts avenue and Wisconsin avenue were submitted to the financ committee.

The finance committee was als given a request from the Brent-Den Parent-Teacher Association for an appropriation for a school garden o the Brent grounds.

The board will ask the Distric Commissioners to delay an order o occupation of the Browne Junio High School until "it is thoroughl completed and grounds are put i proper shape."

A deficiency appropriation will b sought to employ custodians i schools unexpectedly completed before the next school appropriation bil is passed. A law, for submission t Congress, authorizing the superintendent to make interim appointments, was approved.

School Group Urges Speed on Reno High

Resolutions calling upon the Boar of Education and the District Commissioners to expedite building o the new Reno High School, so as t prevent overcrowding at Wester High School in 1933, were adopte last night by the Western Hig School Home and School Associatio at a meeting at the school.

The resolution was introduced b William H. Rastall, chairman of th legislative committee of the association. Newbold Noyes, Washington editor, addressed the association o the Community Chest. Charles V. Imlay, president of the association, presided. The business meeting wa preceded by a concert given by th Western High School Band.

Inquiry of Utility Ownership Begun

Rumors of Outside Control of Taxicab Company Brings Action.

William A. Roberts, special assistant corporation counsel, yesterday started an inquiry into the persistent reports that the Black & White and Yellow Taxicab Co. has been sold to out-of-town interests, presumably to the Parmalee Transportation Co., of Chicago. It was Mr. Roberts who conducted the investigation last year into the ownership of the Washington Gas Light Co.

William J. Brown, president of the company, has denied reports of a sale but has finally admitted that the fleet of the organization is being replaced with newer and lighter cabs.

The public utility law prohibits any foreign corporation from controlling more than 20 per cent of the stock of any District public utility.
